Farmers Work Around Spring Weather

BIRD-IN-HAND (Lancaster Co.)—Above, Gene Bare, left, and Bob Musser fill the fertilizer boxes on the corn planter Tuesday before rain in the middle of the week interrupted field work again. The corn planting operation on Bare's farm north of Bird-in-Hand was a no-till operation on soybean stubble. Bare said the savings of time and fuel from not plowing and cultivating the land was tremendous, and the yields in no-till planted fields in past years have been good.

Musser, who runs the custom planter with Merle Groff, said planting started late last week, but many fields still had wet spots from the spring rains. Many lime trucks and manure spreaders got stuck in the mud this spring and farmers complain about being three weeks behind on their work schedule. But for Bare, corn planting this year was within a day of the starting date last year.

At right, John Groff makes an early cutting of rye for the silos on his family farm south of Salunga. The wet weather makes the grass grow but keeps many planting operations at bay.

Below, Myron Rohrer, Landisville Road, Manheim, works the ground as field work began in earnest early this week. After the mid-week rains, the weather person now promises dry, sunny days into next week.

Legislature Approves Nutrient Management, Governor Will Sign

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Nutrient management is here.

On Wednesday morning, the state Senate approved House Bill 100, a proposal for nutrient management, ending the years-old struggle in the state Legislature and among special interest groups to create a program to ensure that those who apply nutrients to the earth are doing so in a responsible and non-polluting manner.

The 25-page law (reprinted with this article) outlines a program whereby high-density livestock producers must create and implement a plan for managing the manure produced by their operation. The number of operations to be affected is estimated to be small, relative to the number of farms in the state.

The law was requested by those seeking to fulfill a promise made by Gov. Robert Casey that Pennsylvania would reduce its nutrient load into the Chesapeake Bay by 40 percent, by 2000.

Agriculture had been selected as a first target for seeking tighter controls because it is included among that class of suspected applicators of excessive nitrogen and other nutrients, and because it is an obvious applicator of nutrients.

However, human manure, is also highly suspect as a non-point source of excessive nutrients, because of the number of on-lot septic systems and drainage fields, and the number of people as compared to livestock. The proposed law directs that all nutrient sources be researched and solutions found.

Also, the law effectively preempts local nutrient management ordinances, which were beginning to be passed in different sub-county municipalities and which threatened to create a statewide hodgepodge of rules, depending on political boundaries and bent.

New 4-H Center Will Link All County Roundups, Other Activities

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

GUTHRIESVILLE (Chester Co.) — An attempt to bring together all the various Chester County 4-H shows and attract the attention of those wanting to learn more about 4-H is beginning to crystalize.

That crystallization is taking place with plans to construct a new center, called the Romano 4-H Center of Chester County, along Rt. 322 north of Guthriesville and just south of Honey Brook.

The estate and heirs of Fiorre A. Romano of West Brandywine Township have recently donated 15 acres of land and have allowed the Chester County 4-H Center an option to purchase an additional five acres to create a 20-acre site for activities.

New England Chicken Parts

EDISON, NJ
MAY 05, 1993

NORTHEAST BROILER/FRYER PARTS - PART I FEDERAL-STATE

Trucklot buying interest was quite irregular. Supplies of smaller boneless skinless breasts from yellow skin product were adequate for current needs, bigger cutlets from white skin product were fully adequate, offered at competitive prices and slow to clear.

Line run breasts were fully adequate for the very cautious buying interest. Shipper asking prices and trading was reported at lower trending prices. Dark meat items from nearby production areas cleared well to a fairly good demand. Wings were ample and most buyers wait for further market developments.

PRICES PAID PER POUND, ICE PACKED AND CO2 PACKED BROILER/FRYER PARTS, DELIVERED TO FIRST RECEIVERS IN POOL TRUCKLOT AND TRUCKLOT QUANTITIES.

New York & Phila. Frozen Egg Report

Tuesday, May 4, 1993

The market tone was firm on whites, steady on whole eggs and barely steady to weak on yolks. Trading was about moderate but most buyers attempted to limit purchases to immediate needs. Raw materials were fully adequate to ample in instances. Floor stocks were usually sufficient to handle present trade needs.

EDISON, NJ
MAY 05, 1993

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds ranged moderate to good. Seller offerings were light and easy to clear on 3 pound and smaller sizes. Heavier weights were at least adequate. Live supplies were moderate; weights desirable to heavy. Processing schedules were very heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 57 to 65.50 cents. Trade sentiment was fully steady to higher. In the part complex, leg items, particularly leg quarters were in good demand. Breast items moved well at some plants, but were available and slow to clear at others. Wings were in heavy supply at most plants.

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE:

Prices were unchanged to lower for the large sizes in the Midwest and New England, unchanged on the balance. The market tone was cautiously steady to weak. Demand was mostly light to fair, occasionally better where featured. Supplies of all sizes were at least adequate and available, and the large sizes were in the longest position. Breaking stock supplies were adequate, and prices were unchanged to instances higher. Live hen offerings were light to adequate for the light to fair demand, and the trade sentiment was generally steady.

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

USDA'S ANNOUNCED BREAKDOWN OF FOOD AID PACKAGE TO RUSSIA GAVE GRAIN AND BEAN PRICES SOME SUPPORT BUT WHEAT SUFFERED SLIGHTLY WITH LESS WHEAT THAN HOPED FOR INCLUDED IN AID PACKAGE. WHEAT MIXED. CORN MIXED. SORGHUM 1 TO 2 CENTS LOWER. SOYBEANS 3 TO 7 CENTS HIGHER. ALTHOUGH WHEAT WAS INCLUDED IN U.S. AID TO RUSSIA, SOME DISAPPOINTMENT WAS NOTED AS LESS THAN ORIGINALLY THOUGHT WAS PORPORTIONED. MODERATE SUPPORT CAME FROM DECREASED INVENTORY OF OLD CROP SOFT RED WINTER WHEAT. POTENTIAL FOR A BUMPER WINTER WHEAT CROP ADDED PRESSURE TO PRICES. KANSAS FARM BUREAU FORECAST THE KANSAS WHEAT CROP AT 481 MILLION BUSHELS TODAY, A RECORD FIGURE FOR THAT STATE. CORN PRICES FARED WELL IN THE FOOD AID BREAKDQWN BUT DRIER WEATHER FORECAST FOR MIDWEST AND LACK OF NEW EXPORT INTERESTS LIMITED GAINS IN PRICES. MODERATE INCREASES IN SOYBEAN PRICES ALSO DUE TO RELEASED AID DETAILS AND GOOD AMOUNT OF SOYMEAL INCLUDED. INDICATIONS THAT CHINA SEEKING ABOUT 30,000 TONNES U.S. SOYBEANS ALSO A PLUS FOR BEAN PRICES.

EXPORT NEWS: USDA PROVIDED DETAILS ON THE FOOD AID PACKAGE FOR RUSSIA: THE 500 MILLION U.S. DOLLAR COMMODITY PORTION WILL COMPRISE 433.5 MILLION IN CREDITS TO RUSSIA AND 66.5 MILLION IN DONATIONS. THE PACKAGE CONSISTS OF 227.5 MILLION DOLLARS FOR CORN; 105 MILLION FOR SOYMEAL; 66.5 MILLION FOR BUTTER; 56 FOR WHEAT (12 MILLION IN DONATIONS; 5 MILLION FOR SUGAR AND 40 MILLION FOR HIGH- VALUE PRODUCTS LIKE VEGETABLE OIL, PEANUTS, POULTRY AND RICE. SUB-SAHARAN AFRICA BOUGHT 8,000 TONNES U.S. HARD RED WINTER WHEAT UNDER EEP FOR MAY SHIPMENT. USDA ACCEPTED A BID TO SELL 5,000 TONNES SUNOIL TO MEXICO UNDER THE SUNFLOWERSEED OIL ASSISTANCE PROGRAM FOR JUNE SHIPMENT.

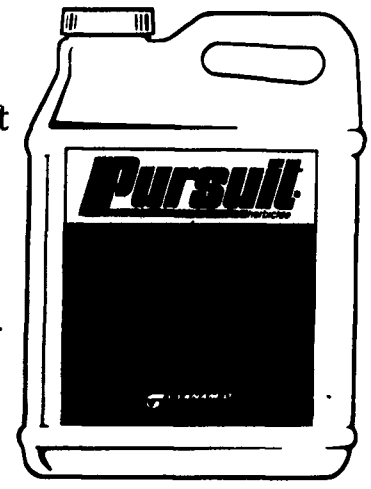
THE ONLY POST THAT CONTROLS GRASSES AND BROADLEAVES.

A single application of PURSUIT® herbicide not only delivers the highest degree of overall weed control, it's also the only postemergence product that combines contact and residual activity to give you superior control of more than 40 tough-to-control grasses and broadleaf weeds. Including velvetleaf, foxtails, cocklebur, pigweeds, nightshades, common ragweed, giant ragweed, sunflower, shattercane and seedling Johnsongrass. Without causing soybean injury.



And because of its advanced chemistry and low rates of application, PURSUIT offers a responsible choice for the environment. That's the kind of strength everyone can respect. And reason enough to try PURSUIT. See us soon.

Cuts more than hay. Cuts time.

New Idea 5212 Disc Mower Conditioners cut a big 11'9" swath and condition with 9'6" intermeshing rolls. It's a wider version of our well-known 5209. With it, you cut and condition lots of hay...every trip. And that means you cut time.

Because the New Idea modular disc cutterbar design makes routine maintenance simple and, although unlikely, repairs a breeze; there's less downtime, too.

Best of all, you'll find our disc mower conditioners are just one segment of our hay equipment line. Others include round balers, disc mowers, sickle mowers and mower conditioners, rakes and hay handling equipment.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

MAY 10 TO 16, 1993

A NEW THING

On May 15, 1940, the excitement that rippled across the country was almost palpable. It was the dawn of a new age in women's wear. Women queued up for hours before the stores opened that day, just to be sure of getting their share of the new commodity: nylon stockings. Thanks to public-relations fanfare, exaggerated claims that a pair of stockings would "last forever," and limited stock, hosiery departments were stampeded and near riots broke out. By the end of the year, three million dozen pairs of stockings made with the new miracle fiber had been sold. Not only did nylon stockings change the way women dressed, they changed the language. Just as silk stockings became obsolete, the term stockings itself fell into disuse, as women called them simply, "nylons."

Eat to please thyself, but dress to please others.

— Benjamin Franklin

EARTHWISE

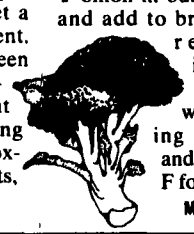
When buying recycled paper products here are some things to keep in mind. Don't assume "100% recycled" means made 100% from your old junk mail. "Post-consumer content" is the paper we've collected for recycling, the rest is industrial waste left over from paper manufacturing. Try to get a high post-consumer content. Look for paper that has been de-inked to remove harmful inks and dyes without adding chlorine. Bleaching with chlorine creates dioxins, highly toxic pollutants, and is unnecessary

ROYAL BROCCOLI CASSEROLE

2 cups chopped, cooked broccoli
1 large onion, chopped
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon tarragon or marjoram
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 pint sour cream

Place broccoli in buttered 1-quart casserole. Sauté onion in butter until soft and add to broccoli. Add remaining ingredients and blend well, smoothing top. Cover and bake at 325° F for 25 minutes.

Makes 4 servings.



The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

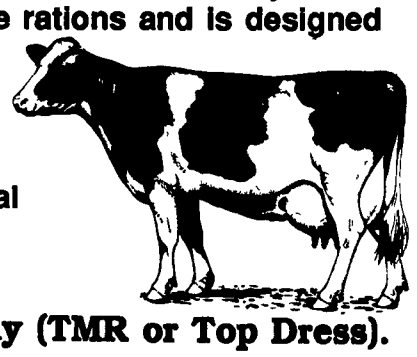
NUTRI-CATALYST
A Profitable Investment In The Future Of Your Herd

Nutri-Catalyst is a dietary ingredient that enhances the nutritional value of virtually all types of cattle rations and is designed as a rumen modulator that improves fermentation and digestion. It increases the availabity of protein, energy, minerals, and vitamins in practical forage and cereal grain diets.



FEED: 1 Ounce Per Head Per Day (TMR or Top Dress).

Can Be Used With Any Feeding Program To:

OPINION

More Than Enough To Feed Everyone

Sometime in the future, when the accomplishments of the 20th century are recorded for posterity, it may finally be acknowledged that our greatest achievement by far has been the introduction of high-tech, high-yield agriculture. According to Dixy Lee Ray in her new book Environmental Overkill, measured in terms of benefit to human society, an adequate diet of nutritious, abundant, and affordable food eclipses all other developments of this most remarkable century. Neither computer technology nor transistors, robotics, advances in communication and transportation, life-saving antibiotics and modern medicine, nuclear energy, synthetics, plastics, and the entire petro-chemical industry rank as high in importance as the advances in food production. And all these other wonderful breakthroughs probably could not have happened without a well-fed population.

No less an authority than Napoleon acknowledged the primacy of food when he observed that "an army marches on its stomach."

For the first time in history we can take for granted that food will be available whenever we wish to buy it. For the first time in the more than 6,000 years of recorded human progress, food self-sufficiency in the developed world has been achieved, and it happened on our watch! Modern society — that is, the Western industrialized world — is now able to feed itself and still have surpluses left over to help nourish much of the rest of the world.

Who points with pride to the fact that agricultural scientists and farmers have scored a monumental victory over the ancient scourge of hunger and malnutrition? Ironically, modern agriculture is, instead, under attack, and its most important tools and techniques are being questioned at a time we should be loudly singing its praises.

Given the extraordinary success of high-yield agriculture, why are there so many attacks upon it? Would the opponents and critics prefer that less food be grown? I believe the answer to that question is "yes." And the reason can be summed up in a single word — overpopulation.

As recently as 1991, the Public Broadcasting System program, "Race to Save the Planet," said flatly that world food production is falling behind population growth. That simply isn't so. The U.S. Agency for International Development's demographic survey published in 1991 shows birth rates slowing more rapidly than anyone had predicted. Third World food production continues to rise twice as fast as its population. The reality of the world's food and environmental gains are confirmed by all major published data series, including the UN's Food and Agriculture Organization and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Every reputable study of the world's "carrying capacity" has concluded that the world can feed its expected population growth.

But the doomsayers are not placated. Recently, Ted Turner, owner of the CNN network, said in an interview with Audubon magazine, "Right now, there are just way too many people on the planet." His plan is to cut back from the current 5 billion human beings to no more than "250 million to 350 million people." Will he and Jane Fonda lead the way?

In the same interview, Turner also revealed his opinion of his fellow Americans when he said, "When you look at us, we are a bunch of pigs...and losers." Speak for yourself, Ted. How does he think we should live? According to Turner, with spears, loin cloths, and human sacrifices. "The indigenous people were the ones who were right!" he said. "I mean they had their own religion, their ethics, their own technology. We just went down the wrong road." Surely no one listens to and accepts this drivel!

No one, that is, except the leaders and spokemen for the environmentalist movement.

NOW IS THE TIME

By John Schwartz
Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Examine Alfalfa Planting Time

This year's spring weather has been anything but helpful in getting crops planted on time.

Already it is early May and very little of anything has been planted, including alfalfa. Normally by the beginning of May nearly all the seeding of alfalfa is done.

As we move later into what would be the normal growing season, the question is, "Was the optimum planting time for a particular crop missed?"

According to Bob Anderson, extension agronomy agent, alfalfa may be planted through the month of May with good results. However, plantings which have been delayed this long will be under a lot of pressure from weeds if a herbicide is not used.

Many things should be considered when deciding whether to plant alfalfa this late or plant corn or another crop. You may want to consider planting this fall or wait until next spring. Thus, it may be worth saving an old alfalfa field until next year and planting another crop this year.

If a short season corn is planted for silage this year, it may be possible to plant a fall seeding of alfalfa. A careful selection of herbicides is necessary with this latter plan.

The decision to plant or not to plant will be determined by your own circumstances.

To Know Alfalfa Protein Content

Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, reminds us the best quality feed for dairy cattle may not be young cut, 22 to 26 percent protein alfalfa.

Instead, cut alfalfa at the late bud to early bloom stage of maturity and aim for about 20 percent crude protein, 30 percent acid detergent fiber, and 40 percent neutral detergent fiber.

However, you may want to harvest the first cutting at the first good break in weather, even if alfalfa is in the early bud stage. It could be the only good break we receive for the next 2-3 weeks.

Early bud alfalfa is high in protein but low in fiber (almost like a protein concentrate). Young cut alfalfa may be excellent feed for top producers, but you may need additional sources of fiber in the ration.

When young cut alfalfa is chopped and ensiled, the fiber becomes even less effective. Also, during fermentation, much of the plant protein degrades to soluble protein and to nonprotein nitrogen, both of which in excess may be toxic to the rumen and to the cow. These excesses may also cause a decline in dry matter intake, milk production, body condition, and conception, and an increase in foot problems.

Because of the above problems, test all high protein silages for soluble nitrogen and balance the ration accordingly. For best utilization of soluble protein, limit the intake of these silages or feed them along with a soluble source of carbohydrates such as high moisture corn, barley, corn silage, etc. The presence of soluble carbohydrates in the rumen helps to "grab" the soluble protein and hold it in the rumen long enough for the bacteria to utilize it.

Not To Grow Puna Chicory

The farm press has had numerous articles on the growing of puna chicory as a forage crop.

However, chicory is classified as a noxious weed in Pennsylvania, which makes it against the law to sell, transport, or grow chicory.

Many growers may remember that Johnsongrass, shattercane, and Jerusalem artichokes were all introduced as new, extremely productive forage crops.

Dr. William Curran, Penn State extension weed scientist, makes the following statement: "Puna chicory has not been thoroughly tested in the Northeast United States or Pennsylvania. The management guidelines are still in the infancy stage."

Therefore, based on this limited data and legal implications, we do not recommend farmers plant puna chicory at this time.

Feather Prof's Footnote: "No one has ever risen to the real stature of spiritual maturity until they have found it finer to serve others than to serve themselves."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

MORE TO COME!
May 9, 1993

Background Scripture:
John 1:35-50
Devotional Reading:
Matthew 10:1-10

When I was a junior in high school, I was hired by the Reading Eagle, the daily evening newspaper in Reading, PA, to write a weekly column about local high school sports. One of the first things I learned was how to prepare my copy for the composing room. This included typing the word (MORE) at the bottom of each page until the article was concluded, meaning that there was "more to come."

The implication of "more to come" runs through the gospel accounts like a litany. Every few paragraphs, we could write (MORE), especially in John 1. As John the Baptist is standing by the Jordan, he sees Jesus walking and says, "Behold, the Lamb of God!" (1:35). The Evangelist tells us that two of John's disciples were present for this mountaintop experience — to see the Lamb of God!

COME & SEE

Some accounts would be content to end right there, on the peak of that mountaintop experience. But that's exactly where I'd have placed the first (MORE), for, having seen the Lamb of God, John's two disciples feel constrained to follow Jesus. "Rabbi," they asked, "...where are you staying?" and Jesus answered, "Come and see." Once again, insert (MORE), for having found his place of lodging, they decided to stay "with him that day" (1:39).

And still there was (MORE). One of the two, Andrew, went out to find his other brother, Simon, so that he could share the good news with him: "We have found the Messiah!" (1:41). Andrew not only told him about Jesus, he took him to meet him and once again (MORE) would be appropriate, for Jesus says to Simon: "So you are Simon the son of John?" You shall be called Cephas' (which means Peter)."

Nor was that the end of this chain of events; there was "(MORE) to come when next day Jesus saw Philip and said, "Follow me" (1:43). Philip did just that — he followed Jesus — but he also went and found his friend Nathaniel, saying, "We have found him of whom Moses in the law and also the prophets wrote, Jesus of Nazareth..." And here, it seemed, the whole chain of events might come to a screeching halt as Nathaniel raised a nagging question: "Can anything good come out of Nazareth?" (1:46). It was a fair question: Nazareth enjoyed no special stature in the scriptures and it had a pretty lackluster reputation in Jesus' day.

GREATER THINGS THAN THESE

By his response, however, Philip indicated that there was something (MORE): "Come and see." I wouldn't say that no one was ever argued into following Jesus, but essentially the appeal is always experiential: "Come and see." Try it for yourself and then decide. When we do, we find there is always (MORE) to come.

What convinced the reluctant Nathaniel was the fact that Jesus knew him psychically. "How do you know me?" he asks Jesus, who replies: "Before Philip called you, when you were under a fig tree, I saw you." Amazed, Nathaniel blurts out, "Rabbi, you are the Son of God! You are the King of Israel!" and once again, the Evangelist could rightly insert (MORE) to come, for Jesus says, "Because I said to you, I saw you under the fig tree, do you believe? You shall see greater things than these."

All of us have seen our share of these "greater things." We have seen broken lives put back together, people saved from lifelong failure, lives salvaged, homes and marriages restored, the guilty forgiven, bodies, minds and spirits healed, and resue from temptation and grace when we have been tempted, and people led from darkness into light.

The gospel of Jesus Christ consists of an invitation, "Come and see," and a promise that if we do follow Jesus there will always be (MORE).

Ten Bulls Enter Program

DEFOREST, Wis. — Ten Pennsylvania-bred Holstein bulls were recently acquired by a Mid Western artificial insemination company for use in the company's progeny testing program.

Semen from test bulls is to be distributed among contract herds across the United States to determine genetic value, according to American Breeders Service, a division of W.R. Grace & Co.-Conn.

Three bulls acquired were bred at the Pen-Col Farms, in Millville.

29 H7290 Pen-Col Mechlin-ET is a son from Osdel-Endeavor Bova Cubby out of Hart-Two-Hart Cleitus Mecca-ET. Mecca has a Very Good mammary and the distinction of being scored 88 points during her first lactation. She is backed by a Gold Medal Enhancer daughter.

The AI company also bought Mechlin's maternal brother, 29 H7488 Pen-Col Megabucks-ET, who was sired by How-El-Acres K Bellman-ET.

The other Pen-Col bull acquired recently was 29 H7473 Pen-Col M Dreamer-ET, sired by Singing-Brook N-B Mascot-ET out of Pen-Col-A Star Dream-ET, a VG 86-point Blackstar daughter backed by Bell Dream.

Two other breeders sold two bulls each to the AI company.

Imperial C Breeders, of Saegertown, bred 29 H7355 Imperial-C Cannonball-ET, a Cubby son out of a Chief Mark daughter. She is backed by Bell and Rynd-Home Valiant Cutie, the dam of Cubby.

Wednesday May 5, 1993

USDA  ATTENTION DODGE CITY

OKLAHOMA NATIONAL STOCKYARDS WEEKLY CATTLE SUMMARY Compared To Last Week: Feeder steers, feeder heifers, and stocker steers over 600 lbs. steady to $1.00 higher. Light supply of stocker steers under 600 lbs. and all stocker heifers $2.00-$3.00 lower. Demand good. Trade active. Quality of feeder cattle average through attractive. Bulk offerings 575-950 lb. steers and 525-775 lb. heifers with majority in slightly thin to moderately fleshy wheat condition. Weigh-ups highly varied but generally average. Light stockers and calves not as attractive as past two months. The thin to very thin stockers that this area has sold since March were not readily available. Slaughter cows and bulls steady under moderate demand. Receipts this week 8,975; last week 12,209; last year 15,215. Supply consisted of 83% feeders and stockers over 600 lbs.; 11% calves and light yearlings under 600 lbs.; 6% cows and bulls. Bulk price ranges follow with weighted averages in parenthesis.

Use Caution With Underground Manure Pits

TERRY L. MADDOX
Huntingdon Co. Agent

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — Although many people think of milk as high in fat, it is actually a lowfat beverage, says Sidney Barnard, Penn State extension dairy specialist.

"Whole or regular milk is more than 96 percent fat-free. An eight-ounce glass of whole milk has about 145 calories and only about 30 milligrams of cholesterol," he said.

Most lowfat milk contains 2 percent milkfat, but you can find 1.5 and 1 percent milkfat products in some markets. Two percent milkfat provides 120 calories per eight-ounce glass if it is not fortified with added milk solids. One percent and 1.5 percent milkfat milk provide only slightly fewer calories. An eight-ounce glass of skim milk contains 90 calories and about five milligrams of cholesterol.

Include milk in your diet to get calcium and to prevent osteoporosis in later years.

"It makes little difference in what form you include milk," said Barnard. "You can get the equivalent of the recommended two glasses a day by eating cottage cheese, yogurt or other dairy products."

Underground Manure Pits

It is that time of year when farmers are emptying manure pits. The rains have delayed this springtime ritual but it is an important part of agriculture. It is recycling at its best, but there are hazards when working around manure pits.

Underground storage pits are convenient, efficient and an increasingly popular way to store large amounts of manure, but they must be handled with care, according to a Penn State College of Agriculture farm safety expert.

"The danger peaks when stored manure is being agitated or emptied," said Dr. Dennis Murphy, professor of agricultural engineering.

"The fermentation process that turns raw manure into fertilizer inside a storage pit also produces methane, hydrogen sulfide, carbon dioxide and ammonia. When these hazardous gases build up, the atmosphere inside the pit can become toxic, low in oxygen and even explosive."

If someone collapses in a pit, amateur rescue efforts often result in more fatalities. Several tragedies involving multiple deaths in a manure pit have occurred nationwide. In one incident, five family members died.

"Attempting to rescue someone who has collapsed in a pit is a no-win situation," Murphy said. "Gas concentrations are so high that it's literally suicide for anyone else to enter without protection. The only safe action is to ventilate the pit and wait for rescue personnel with the proper equipment."

Taking precautions can help to minimize manure storage hazards.

"Don't fill the pit to full capacity," Murphy said. "Allow a foot or two of air space to accommodate concentrations of these gases. When agitating stored manure or emptying the pit, keep out of storage buildings and provide strong, constant ventilation.

"Don't go into the pit unless you absolutely have to. The only safe way to enter is to wear a self-contained breathing apparatus, along with a safety line attached to a hoist with a person standing by to assist you in an emergency. Provide ventilation and keep in constant visual contact with someone who can pull you to safety using the hoist."

Summer's hot temperatures can increase gas buildup, but a manure pit is always potentially dangerous. Toxic gas concentrations can occur at any time of the year.

"Hydrogen sulfide, the most hazardous manure pit gas, is colorless, heavier than air and smells like rotten eggs," Murphy said. "At low concentrations it paralyzes the sense of smell and causes dizziness, headaches, nausea and irritation of the respiratory tract. At high concentrations it can cause unconsciousness and respiratory failure within seconds, and death within minutes."

Carbon dioxide is non-toxic, but low concentrations can cause labored breathing and headaches. High concentrations can asphyxiate people and animals by displacing oxygen in the air.

"But unless all ventilation into and around the pit stops for a few hours, carbon dioxide usually does not build up a lethal level," said Murphy.

Ammonia can severely damage the eyes, nose, throat and lungs when it combines with moisture in those tissues to form a caustic alkaline base.

"High concentrations can be fatal, but ammonia's irritating nature usually prompts people to leave the area quickly," Murphy said.

Methane is highly flammable and explosive, but it is impossible to detect without gas detection equipment. "Because it is lighter than air, methane rises out of manure pits," Murphy says. "But it can collect under hoods, roof ridges and corners, where torches, cigarettes or sparks from electrical shorts can ignite explosions."

More information on manure pit safety is available from the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, 4676 Columbia Parkway, Cincinnati, Ohio 45226, (800) 35-NIOSH, or from your Penn State Cooperative Extension county office.

York Holds Ag Skills Assessment Day

YORK (York Co.) — More than 140 York County agriculture education students recently participated in the first York County Ag Skills Assessment Day at Dover Area High School.

The students, from Dover, Eastern, Kennard-Dale, Northern and Red Lion, selected from eight events including agronomy, ag mechanics, ag sales, dairy foods, forestry, land, small gas engines, and wildlife.

The winner of the agronomy contest was Cale Leiphart, a student at Eastern High School. Cale correctly identify weed, crop, and insect samples as well as accurately located agronomic recommendations from the Penn State Agronomy Guide. Rounding out the top five winners were Quentine Crone, Northern H.S.; Jon Bish, Dover Area H.S.; Justine Hedrick, Kennard-Dale H.S.; and Mike Boyer, Dover Area H.S.

The ag mechanics event required students to demonstrate their mechanical abilities in masonry, welding, engine repair, and cold metals. Mat Creacraft of Kennard-Dale H.S. received the first-place honors in this event. Curt Stoner of Northern, Curt Ross of Dover Area, Mike Treffinger of Northern, and Shannon Smith of Dover placed in the top five.

Denise Shaffer of Kennard-Dale was the ag salesperson. She excelled in product knowledge, sales techniques, and product presentation. Following Denise was fellow Kennard-Dale student Adam McCallister. Kristi Ryder and Brian Smyser of Dover placed third and fourth and Dave Myers of Northern received fifth place honors.

At Pinchot Park, Carrie May of Northern correctly identified species of trees and forest practices in the forestry contest to outplace 70 other students. Kris Boldizar of Red Lion, Laura Fallon of Dover, Kate Francis of Northern, and Chasity Miller of Red Lion completed the top five winners.

The dairy foods contest required students to correctly identify off-flavors in milk samples, identify cheese samples, and correctly distinguish between real and artificial dairy products. Missy Meckley of Dover Area H.S. outplaced the other 42 contestants to win this event. Second place went to Adam McCallister, Kennard-Dale; third, Melissa Benner, Northern; fourth, Sean Johnson, Kennard-Dale; and fifth, Jed Smyser, Dover.

Justin Hedrick of Kennard-Dale was top land judge in an event in which students evaluated soil characteristics, land capability classes, and conservation practices. This event was held on the Wayne Hoffman farm in Dover Township. Places second through fifth were Carl Livingston, Jason Brubaker, Kristi Ryder, and Derwin Lamberson, all from Dover Area H.S.

Small gas engine knowledge, repair, and troubleshooting was the basis for the only team event of the day. Students worked in

New 4-H Center

The search for the new center, which will cost about $950,000 when all is tallied, began about 30 years ago. The goal is to raise about $750,000 through contributions — although private contributions can be made in the form of actual construction material or other methods. According to Walter Wurster, extension dairy agent in last week's Chester County Dairy Milk Lines in Lancaster Farming, the plan is to eventually build two pole buildings, two show rings, and a headquarters office.

The main building will have meeting and banquet space, kitchen, showers, and community facilities. Wurster noted that there is also the possibility to include space for ag-related agencies, and community groups will be able to use the buildings and grounds when there are no 4-H events scheduled.

The site will mirror some of the new buildings housing livestock shows, similar to the one built recently in Lebanon County.

But the Romano 4-H Center was designed specifically to bring together the various roundups in the county, which are split between the Goshen and Kimerton fairs and held at expensive private locations during the year.

Because the 4-H office depends on securing a place to show horses, which costs up to $1,000 a day to rent space, the new show space is a blessing.

"If we brought it all here and had a four-day 4-H fair weekend, we wouldn't conflict with any other fairs in the county at all," said Cheryl Fairbairn, county livestock agent. "In fact, we don't want to detract from the other fairs. It would just make life so much easier for 4-H families and make a lot more publicity for 4-H."

"Not only that, we want the community to be involved, too," said Pat Taws, president of the board of directors for the Chester County 4-H Center, Inc. "It's not just for us."

In all, there are about 2,577 members and 263 volunteer leaders in the county's 4-H program. According to Wurster, it is visualized that, by 1994, a countywide 4-H roundup, lasting several days, will be held at the site.

Although details of the actual building appearance are being finalized at presstime, the site itself will host two barns for dairy and livestock events, including sheep, goats, and other small animals. The design now will reflect what is in use now at Solanco, for example, with a huge show area in the center, room for tables away from the ring, and then bleacher-type seats surrounding it. "The ring capacity is going to be big," said Fairbairn.

There will also be two outside rings for horse and other events.

BIGGER FOIL CRYSTALS.
BETTER CPB CONTROL.

New Foil BFC. Big Fat Crystals For Better Control.

New Foil BFC

New Foil® BFC bioinsecticide is reshaping Colorado potato beetle control. Ecogen has developed a new Foil strain that produces a crystal that is three times as large and three times more effective than the original Foil formulation. That's three times more toxin in every bite.

Bigger is better.

Added strength means that less Foil BFC is needed to do the job. Recommended application rates have been reduced from 3 quarts per acre with the original Foil 1 to 1 1/2 quarts per acre with Foil BFC. Reduced rates and increased efficacy combine to save you time and money.

Best Choice For IPM.

Lead-off your Integrated Pest Management (IPM) program with Foil BFC. You can't find a more effective Bt than Foil BFC.

Consultants agree that Bts can play a critical role in CPB control. When properly timed, Foil BFC will stop the explosion of CPB larvae and permit a sensible rotation of insecticide classes.

When the season starts put Foil BFC to work. It will save you time, money and a small piece of the environment for your future.

Foil BFC is the best Bt you can buy.

Chore-Time And Northeast Agri

Following are 27 claims taken from our competitors' recently placed adve

Their Claims	Our Response
1. (We are) #1 in owner loyalty. More people buy (from us) when they remodel than any other system."	Since Ultraflo was introduced Chore-Time has out sold other brands in new and remodeled houses, in our sales area and nation wide. We admit we have had an advantage because much of our remodeling has been complexes. But when companies order 2, 3, 6, 20 or more houses at a time, changing over entire complexes - what does that tell you? Almost all houses remodeled with Chore-Time previously had other brands of cages. Send for our list of over 200 Ultraflo houses in the Northeast.
2. "(Our) superior suspension systems keep cages from sagging between stands."	Producers with older houses say truss rods have always been a problem - they eventually stretch, especially with cages installed on 10 foot centers. This results in trough wear and egg roll out troubles. That is why Chore-Time has designed truss rods out of their systems. Chore-Time uses 4 foot, 5 foot or 8 foot centers and has no truss rods. Cages are straight when new and stay straight.
3. "Our chain feeder trough allows easy access to feed but keeps feed levels further below the lip of the trough compared to drag auger trough."	The distance from the back lip of our trough is the same. Birds do not have to reach any farther to find feed. In addition, Ultraflo contains feed in the bulb shaped bottom of the trough and the auger acts as a grid reducing waste compared to chain. It's Another ULTRAFLO® By [redacted]
4. "Our chain feeder trough has a steep sidewall, discouraging feed build-up. Their slope can allow a build-up inviting mold and disease."	Ultraflo has the steepest sidewall of any feeder on the market and the least feed build-up. Ultraflo moves all the feed in the trough while theirs leaves feed beside the chain causing feed separation. Flat chain has barrels which are difficult to clean. Ultraflo will completely clean out in one run prior to wash down. 5. "Our trough is "ribbed" for strength. Theirs is built for price alone."	Chore-Time trough is not built for price alone, actually it is made with more expensive 20 gauge high tensile strength steel and has more continuous breaks (9 verses 7) for greater strength.
6. "Actual feeding space with drag auger is skimpy. In fact our chain feeder has 2½ times more feeding space per bird."	Actual feeding space is the same for both. The only space limitation is the birds per cage. Ultraflo actually carries more feed than chain at normal levels!
7. "This allows the chain feeder to run as few as three times per day while the auger must run eight or more times per day."	According to producers and field service people the Ultraflo is run as few as 3 times a day with the average being only 5 times. Each time Ultraflo runs, the feed is re-mixed at start-up making it more appetizing to the birds. With Ultraflo you are free to feed more often without concern for wear and tear or electric usage you have with chain. You also can use stimulations. (running the feeder for 30 seconds) Ultraflo can do this. Flat chain cannot. Breeders and producers agree that being able to add or subtract feedings, change feeding times and use stimulations is a valuable tool to limit feed consumption and fine tune egg size. With Ultraflo you can control feed consumption and you won't have to keep your house 90° in the middle of winter.
8. "Chain carries feed and supplies a uniform ration, with no feed waste."	When you watch chain run you will see that it only carries the feed that is on the top of the chain not what is along the sides. This results in a lot of feed separation. Ultraflo moves all feed. Chain allows birds to high-grade or pick over feed. Ultraflo's design and 80 feet per minute speed prevents birds from high grading feed. Our side by side video shows layers picking over feed when the chain runs, while when the Ultraflo runs birds do not eat until the auger stops. See for yourself! Send for our video showing chain feeders and Ultraflo running side by side.

...st Agri Systems Respond!

...aced advertisements which we believe to be inaccurate, misleading or untrue:

Our Response	Their Claims	Our Response
Birds turn their heads on both systems. The Chore-Time auger does not cause any harm to the birds and in fact saves feed by preventing birds from raking feed out the trough. Birds waste excessive feed on a chain by flicking and piling feed. (Ask to see side by side video.)	18. "Extra inches of auger, trough, cage wire, egg belt and building per cage really add up. Put a pencil to it."	While we do have extra supports, stands and cage wire, it is because our cage is designed to last longer. We have no more auger, trough or egg belt than our competition. Chore-Time cages are installed on 8 foot centers. Our competitor recommends cages which are on 10 foot centers. Although 10 foot centers save at first, cages built on 10 foot centers have had higher maintenance costs and have not lasted as long as cages built on 8 foot centers.
Birds per cage and therefore feeder space per bird are the same with either system.
Because Ultraflo runs faster than flat chain, because it does not have to be run around the cage row 1½ times each feeding like flat chain, because Ultraflo comes with a Microprocessor control not a 15 minute time clock you have greater flexibility in feeding times. Ultraflo completes a circuit in about half the time it takes the typical chain system. You get better results with less feed.	19. "Our chain feeder seems never to wear out. Some thirty year old units are still performing, day in and day out. On the other hand some "short term" drag auger systems are beginning to show their weaknesses. Time is the enemy of the drag auger system. Just a litte time."	We have seen chain trough worn through in less than one year. The chain itself is made out of metal stock made from scrap metal. It drags on the bottom of the trough or on top of the feed. It has a tendency to bunch up and break expensive corner wheels. Ultraflo moves easily through the feed in the trough in a predesigned "bulb" in the trough bottom. We have replaced less than 1% of the trough and elbows in over 11 years of operation. The poultry industry agrees - over 80% of the major egg producers (1 million birds or more) have already switched to Chore-Time. Send for our list of major egg producers who have switched to Chore-Time.
Their feeder has shown much extra wear even at the slower speed of 60 feet per minute, especially on the long cage rows required by today's capacities. The 120 feet per minute system is not proven and in fact there are few in the field. Some of these systems have had to install 3 horse power motors to run properly.
Chore-Time's repair parts sales run less than 1% of total sales. Competitor's are much higher. Ask them.	20. "Lower maintenance costs."	Our biggest problem is lack of repair parts business. Talk to users who have both Chore-Time and other equipment. Get the facts about who has lower maintenance costs.
Chore-Time has not used brazing for 5 years. Our auger connector is simple to use and only requires a small Allen wrench which can fit in your wallet. The easy-to-use auger coupler has eliminated all brazing. Remember, all you need with Ultraflo is a small Allen wrench, no chain breaker, hammer and come-along.	21. "It's a proven fact. Chain feeders use less electricity."	Call for our list and talk to users who have both Chore-Time and other equipment. Get the facts about who has lower energy costs.
	22. "Better Performance! This isn't just talk. Ask your feed company..."	Feed service people will tell you that Chore-Time Ultraflo out performs flat chain. Ask them yourself. Chore-Time producers consistently do better than their peers. That's why most major egg producers have switched to Chore-Time and keep on buying it. (send for list of major egg producers)
When you watch our video you will see that when Ultraflo runs birds stay calm until the auger stops. Then, they all begin eating at the same time. The opposite is true with chain. Because hens on the out going side are already eating, birds on the return side have to wait long periods for fresh feed. See for yourself. Send for our side by side video.	23. "Re-use your old corners... re-use your old gearboxes...Your old hoppers aren't wore out... save money and re-use them on your new system."	Sounds like a good idea, maybe. Save money initially but when you do have to replace corners, hoppers, gearboxes, sprockets, wear shoes, etc., you will probably have to pay parts price. You end up paying more!
With a chain system, heavy feed components such as corn and calcium tend to be left behind along the edges of the trough. This combined with birds ability pick out means hens on the return side of each cage row may not get enough calcium to form strong egg shells. With chain, because of separation and pick out, birds get different nutrition as the chain travels further from the feed hopper; this results in higher feed consumption, poorer performance and causes shell and uniformity problems. Since Ultraflo moves all feed and birds can't pick out while its running, all birds get the same ration. Birds in Ultraflo houses are uniform throughout the house. Producers confirm production is better, feed consumption lower and undergrades are the same or less with Chore-Time.	24. "(We have) a stronger cage top and front than competitive cages."	Chore-Time's new front and top is heavier and thicker than competition's. In fact Chore-Time cages are over 11% heavier than their cages. That's over 3½ tons more galvanized wire in a typical house. Call or send for actual test results on Chore-Time verses their cages. Or ask to see both cages side by side.
	25. "(Our) collector is the best there is."	You get a choice of three collectors with Chore-Time, including our new Ultralift, all built stronger with solid shafts, solid rollers and galvanized steel. Our rubber finger collector eliminates all transfers and isn't as steep as other collectors.
	26. "Our cage design allows eggs to roll front and out of the cage, not get stepped on and cracked by birds as in competitor's cages."	Once again talk to the users. Our undergrades are lower than other systems. Major egg producers would not keep switching to Chore-Time if this was a problem. (send for list) Our egg tray is much further away from the cage front to keep eggs cleaner and prevent dead bird caused jam ups.
Who's buying 12 inch cages? According to Chore-Time sales records 60% of Chore-Time cage sales are 16"x20" - 6 bird cage. In this area we sell mostly 24"x20" - 9 bird cage - same as the competition.	27. "(Our) systems provides a bigger percentage of larger eggs for a longer period of time."	Like a lot else, you only hear this from our competitor. Chore-Time producers say this is ridiculous. They get the egg size they need and do it with less feed. Check out the facts for yourself.

This has clearly established Chore-Time as the cage industry leader and made it the largest supplier of cage systems. But please, if you have thought of something or have better ideas we would sure like to hear from you.

Think about it. In only 7 years, 1 out of 3 layers in our region and 1 out of 4 layers nation wide have been switched to Chore-Time with Ultraflo. Many farmers bought one Chore-Time house and after seeing the results ordered more. Some large farms have replaced all their equipment with Chore-Time cages and Ultraflo feeding and are now only buying Chore-Time.

The site will provide ample parking for the major events, according to the planners.

"When we decide on the date for the 4-H Fair, we will definitely stay far away from other (county) fairs," said Fairbairn. "Because our people want to continue showing there."

This year, the county steer roundup is held at the Kimberton Fire Company Fairgrounds and will feature close to 40 exhibits. The dairy roundup is held the Saturday before the Kimberton Fair and will feature close to 100 exhibits, with more than 150 spectators. The hog show, currently held at New Holland Sales Stables, includes 30 members and upward of 100 hogs. The market lamb show features about 45 exhibits from 35 members, held at the Goshen Fair, and the breeding sheep show features about 20 exhibitors and about 40 head of sheep, also at Goshen.

This year, the horse show was held at Coming Attraction Farm in Nottingham. The horse club, which features about 100 4-H members, will feature all the shows at the new location.

Keystone Farm Credit has donated office space to serve as fundraising headquarters in Avondale. The Romano location was secured also with the help of Russell C. Albright, senior loan officer at Keystone, who helped negotiate to obtain the land.

Albright told Lancaster Farming that a development plan has yet to be presented to the local board supervisors before building permits can be obtained. According to Albright, construction of the building should proceed in late fall of this year with completion next spring.

The building will be a welcome sight for many who are associated with the county program, according to Fairbairn.

"This is nice for all of the clubs," said Fairbairn. "Ag, home ec, and urban club projects can all be exhibited at one place and one time. Youth carrying ag projects can see community club and other projects, and we will probably see youth stary carrying projects they may never thought of carrying before. It will be educational for everyone."

Officials Assume Farmers Want Property For Houses

Editor's Note: This is part two in a two-part series about how local government decisions have affected farmers. The first article reported on how a Dauphin County dairyman had to resort to the courts to correct county officials error in recalculating tax assessment values for properties included in the preferential tax Clean and Green program.

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — No one from the county government and no one from the borough hall, a mile away, had telephoned or stopped to talk with Glen and Linda Krall about the possibility of rezoning their dairy farm for building houses.

But government officials set out to do just that: rezone a small dairy farm for residential development without telling the landowners.

It's called a snafu.

The Kralls are a young couple, in their 30s, who, several years ago, bought a 112-acre dairy farm in southern Lebanon County with the intention of producing and selling milk.

Dairying in Lebanon County is a well supported industry and the county rolling herd average has been the highest in the state for the past four years.

There are several markets available for selling milk, and crops do well in the deep-soiled, limestone-rich, valley.

The county extension office, the USDA support offices and the conservation district office are all located about a mile away from the Krall farm.

Equipment dealers are nearby. Markets are strong.

However, late last fall, about the time the Krall's children were preparing their swine and cattle for 4-H showing, the couple read in the local newspaper that their farm was to be rezoned from agriculture to medium density residential.

As it was, the Kralls acted in time to attend a mid-December public hearing and object to their farm being rezoned to residential.

Had they not seen the newspaper article, Glen and Linda may have faced being shut down for building projects and had their real estate taxes skyrocket.

While no public official took credit for proposing a zoning change for the Krall farm, officials told the Kralls that "someone said" the couple intended to sell the farm for building houses.

Rumors based on speculation, and also the fact that zoning officers are charged with planning wisely for growth, resulted in the farm being proposed as a very suitable area to zone for residential development.

In the Kralls' case, the farm is cursed with being ideal for residential development.

In fact, according to M. Lee Meyer, Lebanon County planning officer, the Krall farm was considered for residential zoning because the borough has committed itself to installing public water and sewage lines for residential and commercial use and the main service lines cut right through the farm.

In Lebanon County, the county planning office serves as the planning and zoning development and enforcement agency for municipalities, if the municipalities are willing to allow the county people to function in that role.

Several municipalities, including Cornwall Borough, have done so, mainly because the issuing of permits, the followup and the enforcement of building permits and zoning allowances requires almost fulltime attention — especially in areas where real estate development speculators actively try to get projects approved.

Some other factors played a role in the attempted rezoning of the Krall farm: The county and the borough had been working for years to develop a long-term plan for the growth of population, business, transportation, etc.

Called the interim plan of 1987, the Cornwall Borough revised zoning was to comply with the long-term plans of the county. Cornwall is seen by planners as a bedroom community.

Also, the state laws covering planning and zoning for land activities do not take into account any kind of threshold limits for land use.

In other words, the laws tell municipalities to set aside tracts of land and label them for a certain use even if no one in the community ever desires to use land that way.

Aggravating the situation is that state agencies charged with different responsibilities not only do not cooperate, they frequently seek opposite ends.

In Cornwall Borough, the residents were told that they needed to go along with a public sewage project because DER said it was needed; and a public water line extension to the city of Lebanon was agreed to because borough officials said that DER directed the borough to have the water from its small reservoir and well system treated through an expensive and costly-to-maintain filtration and treatment plant.

For both costly infrastructure projects, environmental and health reasons were given as justification for taking on the large debt and raising the cost of living in the community.

When it finally comes down to reaping a reward for spending all the money for both projects, the benefactors are not easy to pinpoint.

What the projects do to the area is make it attractive for real estate development, especially the Krall farm.

But what the Kralls now know is that there are probably real estate deal-makers eye-balling their farm, speculating on when it might come up for sale.

In fact, by the actions of some of the borough officials, the Kralls aren't sure where the affection of local government lies.

The ordeal for the Kralls isn't over. While borough officials rescinded the effort to have the farm rezoned, it has not been very communicative or necessarily understanding in its zest to get the the water and sewer lines crossing the Kralls' property.

Glen and Linda were forced to hire an attorney after the first sewer line went through their property, paralleling a stream.

Not only did the project destroy much of the stream bank and reduce the meanders and the possibility of planting strong-rooted shrubbery to stabilize the stream, but the contracter had left a mess and had to be called back.

Next, when the borough wanted to put a water line along Tice Lane, they had planned to put it parallel to the roadway, but about 15 to 20 feet out in crop fields.

The small farm can't take much more loss of cropland. The Kralls milk 85 cows and rent additional land, but in order to maintain an income and also balance the land with the number of livestock, they need to retain the usability of the farm's crop fields.

From the top of the hill behind the 112-acre Lebanon County farm of Glen and Linda Krall, residential development sits ominously on the edge of their land, having already taken over neighboring farm fields. County and borough officials are planning for more residential development and without asking, almost rezoned the farm to residential. In the meantime, the borough has installed a sewage line which parallels the stream, and a water line which parallels the road. Another sewage lines is planned to run right up through the crop fields. The Kralls want to farm.

With the water line, borough officials insisted they had a 50-foot right of way. They also told Glen he had to hook up to the water line and pay the fees.

Glen argued about the damage to his fields it would cause. He also told them he didn't want or need public water on his farm.

The Kralls' attorney helped. He discovered the borough only had 33-feet of right of way. And he discovered that the borough couldn't force the public water onto a farm.

Taking a quick break, while milking cows Friday morning, Glen and Linda talked about the large financial investments they already put into the farm and how much more money it has cost them to try to keep it from being ripped up and turned into a playground for "developers."

The Kralls had rennovated an old bank barn to accomodate their 85 Holstein milking cows, put up new silos, installed an expensive, circular manure pit, fencing, have planned a heifer facility and have other projects under consideration.

But that's all based on the assumption that their 100-acre dairy farm will be able to remain in agriculture.

While the rezoning attempt was a slap in the face to the Kralls, they hoped to be left alone to farm to the best of their ability.

"It's not over yet," Glen said. "Didn't you hear about Phase II? They want to put another sewage line right up through the fields to get to six or seven houses."

Glen said it would be about 4,800 feet of land taken, and he'd have to plow around the manholes jutting up out of the ground.

Putting another sewage line through those fields would destroy all of Glen's work upgrading the fields. He spent years to upgrade them and has practiced all the latest and best management practices.

He said he doesn't know how it is all going to work out, and while the battle isn't over, he's not going to let it get to him.

"I only get disgusted when I look out and see several trucks driving around my fields and a backhoe out there," he said. Last year a crew showed up, without previous notice, to check the proposed sewage line site in case there is anything of archeological importance buried in the fields.

"You should see what they did to my rye. There's spots 30- to 40-feet around where there's nothing growing. I should charge them for crop damage," he said.

"It's not over yet with the borough."

U.S. Delegation Sees Dairy Markets In Russia

UTICA, N.Y. — The U.S. dairy leaders who came to Moscow with humanitarian aid said recently that there may be opportunities for U.S. dairy cooperatives to export specialty cheeses and other specialty dairy products to Russia.

"There's a definite and immediate possibility to do business with these people by one or more member cooperatives of National Milk Producers Federation," delegation leader Michael Donovan said after spending a morning last week with officials of Quality Products International, an American and Russian partnership venture.

Quality Products, with U.S. headquarters in Little Rock, Ark., has operations in Moscow, Kiev and St. Petersburg. Donovan said they met with sales manager Dale Collins, marketing coordinator Kellie Carney and company attorney Gregory Padgham.

Steve Eure, a staff member from National Milk's Arlington, Va. office, said, "This is a natural for member cooperatives who manufacture specialty cheeses and other specialty products." He said specialty dairy products typically have a longer shelf life.

"The trip would be worth it alone just for this opportunity," added delegation member Joseph Shine, assistant general manager of Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers headquartered in Reston, Va. Shine said Quality Products International "deals in specialty and quality products catering to western style markets and western hotels and restaurants."

The seven-member dairy delegation arrived in Moscow on Monday with hopes of exploring ways to boost sales of U.S. dairy products, said Donovan, who heads Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative in Syracuse, N.Y.

The food distribution was expected to be handled by the Russian Journalists Charity Foundation, over the weekend. The mission to Moscow was coordinated by the Washington and Moscow offices of the Center for Democracy.

Also in the delegation are Marvin Schlitzer, board vice president, Swiss Valley Farms, Dubuque, Iowa; Robert Dever, assistant general manager, Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, Southampton, Pa.; Leon Berthiaume, general manager, St. Albans Cooperative Creamery, St. Albans, Vt., and Anthony Schlesier, cooperative relations manager, Eastern Milk Producers, Syracuse.

The current mission is being sponsored by the Center for Democracy, National Milk, the Council of Northeast Farmer Cooperatives, and the following dairy cooperatives who donated products or money to buy products to send to Moscow:

— Associated Milk Producers Inc. (AMPI), San Antonio, Tex.

— Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative, Syracuse, N.Y.

— Independent Cooperative Milk Producers Association, Grand Rapids, Mich.

— Land O'Lakes Inc., Minneapolis, Minn.

— Middle Atlantic Cooperative Marketing Agency (MACMA), and three of its members, Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, Southampton, Pa.; Middle Atlantic Division of Dairymen Inc., Sykesville, Md., and Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association, Reston, Va.

— Milk Marketing Inc., Strongsville, Ohio.

— O-At-Ka Milk Product Cooperative and its majority owner, Upstate Milk Cooperatives, Leroy, N.Y. (O-At-Ka is also owned by Niagara Milk Producers and Dairylea.)

— Prairie Farms Dairy, Carlinville, Ill.

— Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA), Liverpool, N.Y.

— Swiss Valley Farms, Dubuque, Iowa.

— St. Albans Cooperative Creamery, St. Albans, Vt.

AGA Reviews Top Cows

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — The list of the top 300 high CPI cows in the Guernsey breed has been released. Animals that make the list are cows that produce, reproduce and pass on desirable traits to their offspring.

This list is frequently used as a screening tool by artificial insemination (A.I.) organizations for selecting dams for tomorrow's A.I. sires.

The highlights of the top 10 CPI cows in the breed were provided by the American Guernsey Association.

Myrtledales Able Hope

Myrtledales Able Hope, a Rozelyn D M Ernies Able daughter, moves from fourth place to top the January 1993 CPI list for the first time for her owner Perry Hamm of Newberry, S.C. This 90 point gold star cow has PTA totals of +1,742M +88F +$236 +%4P +$233P and a PTAT of +2.3. She has records to 23,130M and has three daughters also ranking in the top 300 CPI list. Her 90 point Kellogg Minnies Choice dam ranks number 38 on the January CPI list and has records to 21,340M. Hope has three daughters also ranking in the top 300 for CPI.

Valley Oaks Ideal Foe

Sliding from first into second on the January 1993 high CPI list is Valley Oaks Ideal Foe. An 82 point Wooded View Admirals Ideal daughter, Foe has PTA totals of +1,556M +90F +$220 +52P +$223P and a PTAT of +2.6. At 2-02 in 305 days she had 19,330M 5.7% 1,102F 3.3% 637P. Her 90 point dam, a gold star cow sired by Maurana Wis Telestar, has records to 27,410M 5.4% 1,487F 3.4% 933P. Foe, whose two maternal sisters also rank in the top 10, is owned by Raymond Orisio Jr. of Woodburn, Oregon.

Spring Walk Victorys Streak

Spring Walk Victorys Streak moved from second to third to remain in the top 10 on the January 1993 high CPI list. An 89 point Bettawards Telestar Victory daughter, she made 17,230M at 2-01 in 305 days and has PTA totals of +1,706M +86F +$231 +52P +$227P and a PTAT of +2.6. Her dam, an 87 point gold star cow sired by Welcome Choice Admiral, made over 27,000M. Streak is owned by the Streak Syndicate, West Salem, Ohio.

Valley Oaks Foxies Fonda-ET

Ranking fourth is an 85 point Clearbranch Jeans N P King-ET daughter, Valley Oaks Foxie Fonda-ET, owned by Raymond Orisio Jr. of Woodburn, Oregon. Fonda, who has one full sister and one maternal sister in the top 10, has PTA totals of +1,510M +89F +$214 +51P +$218P and a PTAT of +2.1. At 1-11 in 305 days she had 19,310M 5.8% 1,119F 3.5% 677P. Her dam, a 90 point gold star cow sired by Maurana Wis Telestar, has records to 27,410M 5.4% 1,487F 3.4% 933P in 305 days.

Jensgolden Volanco Helen

Moving up one ranking to her current status in fifth place on the January 1993 high CPI list is Jensgolden Volcano Helen. This 87 point gold star cow is sired by Harmony Quantity Volcano. She made over 22,000M at 4-07 and has PTA totals of +1,452M +73F +$196 +55P +$208P and a PTAT of +2.3. Her 83 point Kellogg E Choice Pender dam has 3-08 334D 18,280M 4.1% 753F 3.4% 622P. Helen is owned by Dale Jensen of Amery, Wis.

Valley Oaks Foxies Fancy-ET

Moving up one notch from seventh to sixth on the January 1993 high CPI list is Valley Oaks Foxies Fancy-ET, an 84 point Clearbranch Jeans N P King-ET daughter. Fancy, who has one full sister and one maternal sister in the top 10, has PTA totals of +1,543M +80F +$210 +52P +$214P and a PTAT of +2.0. At 1-11 in 305 days she had 15,640M 4.8% 746F 3.4% 532P. Her gold star cow dam, a 90 point Maurana Wis Telestar daughter, has records to 27,410M 5.4% 1,487F 3.4% 933P in 305 days. Fancy is owned by Raymond Orisio Jr.

Myrtledales B Most Heather

Holding her own in seventh is Myrtledales B Most Heather. Owned by Perry Hamm of Newberry, S.C., this 89 point high CPI cow is sired by Lincrest Telestar Buttermost. Heather has PTA totals of +1,534M +85F +$213 +45P +$207P and a PTAT of +3.3. She made 16,800M 4.9% 817F 3.1% 526P at 1-11 in 305 days. Her dam, the 90 point Rozelyn D M Ernies Able daughter ranking first on the January 1993 high CPI list, has 23,130M 4.9% 1,133F 3.6% 827P at 4-05 in 365 days. Heather has three other family members on the high CPI list as well.

Twin L Farms Fayette Farrah

Dutch Mill Telestars Fayette is the sire of the 90 point Twin L Farms Fayette Farrah ranking 8th on the January 1993 high CPI list. Farrah, a gold star cow, made over 27,000M at 3-02 in 365 days and has PTA totals of +1,663M +59F +$213 +51P +$210P and a PTAT of +2.8. Her dam, a Harmony Quantity Volcano daughter also ranking on the high CPI list, has 22,580M 4.3% 979F 3.2% 727P at 5-0 in 365 days. Farrah is owned by Jack Krull of Bonduel, Wis.

Myrtledales Andy Hannah-ET

Remaining in ninth place for the second consecutive time is Myrtledales Andy Hannah-ET owned by Perry Hamm. This 90 point Olympic View Prince Andy-Twin daughter has PTA totals of +2,033M +58F +$237 +51P +$218P and a PTAT of +3.9. Hannah has 23,970M 4.1% +972F 3.2% +778P at 2-05 in 365 days. Her dam, a 90 point Idle Nerr Rondas Hornet daughter, has 24,350M 4.3% 1,051F 3.2% 769P at 4-02 in 365 days. Hannah is from the same cow family as the first and seventh ranking high CPI cows.

Valley Oaks Perfect Angel

Rounding out the top 10 on the January 1993 high CPI list is Valley Oaks Perfect Angel. This 91 point Lily Lane Penny Perfecto-ET daughter has PTA totals of +1,638M +65F $208 +51P +$205 and a PTAT of +3.0. She made 22,360M 3.8% 841F 3.2% 710P at 2-08 in 305 days. Her dam, an 86 point Rozelyn D M Ernies Able daughter, has records to 16,690M 5.6% 931F 3.6% 600P in 305 days. Angel is owned by Raymond Orisio Jr.

One of the best indicators that Guernsey breeders have of a cow's genetic transmitting ability and the performance of subsequent generations is the Cow Performance Index (CPI). The CPI formula combines the Predicted Transmitting Abilities (PTA) for pounds of protein, pounds of butterfat and type on a 4:2:1 ratio. The resulting number is divided by a standard deviation that adjusts the final CPI number differences among breeds and changing milk prices.

To qualify for the high CPI list, cows must have calved on or after October 1. Animals must be alive according to the most recent United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) information, and must have an appraisal score assigned by an American Guernsey Association appraiser. CPI information is calculated bi-annually by the USDA.

The American Guernsey Association is the national organization for the registration and promotion of Guernsey cattle and is headquartered in Reynoldsburg, Ohio.

Resource Helps Deere Dealers Convey Safety Message

MOLINE, Ill. — Farmers and their families are the ultimate beneficiaries of a new John Deere safety resource manual designed to help John Deere dealers promote farm safety in their marketing areas.

The manual contains up-to-date safety information plus suggestions and examples from nearly 40 John Deere dealers who recently test marketed a "Safety Day" in their communities.

"The purpose of the manual is to provide John Deere dealers with a single resource they can use to find current safety information, plan and conduct safety activities, and help farm families and local communities become more actively involved in farm safety," said Neil Christenson, Deere & Company vice president of farm equipment marketing for the U.S. and Canada.

Christenson notes that some dealers will promote safety with a stand-alone event, such as a John Deere Safety Day. Others will make safety an important part of other events.

"The message John Deere and its dealers want to communicate to farmers and their families is that we are concerned about their safety," said Christenson. "By all of us working togethr, we can help save lives and prevent injuries on the farm."

THE HARVESTING SPECIALIST

The Quadrant 1200 delivers for commercial operators. Its reliable gear/shaft drive and high capacity mean bales are the ideal size and configuration for efficient shipping.

The smaller 1100, for dairy farmers, also offers high capacity and CLAAS's trusted gear/shaft drive. These dense bales keep the air out and inhibit spoilage.

The Quadrant handles all crops from dry hay to silage, fitting all the needs of hay farmers.

Two Markant square balers offer CLAAS quality and maximum capacity in a conventional package.

The Markant's pick-up is fast and thorough. Rotary feeders move the crop evenly for neat bales, and the speed of the ram produces dense, weather-tight bales.

The Quadrant and the Markant share CLAAS's reputation for durability, low maintenance and performance in the field. Nobody keeps you running better, and nobody gets you back up faster.

Farmers Work Around Spring Weather

Reporting Service reported that across the state, 28 percent of the reporting farmers called soil moisture adequate, but 72 percent of the farmers said they has surplus moisture.

Hay stands across the state looked good with the exception of some of the new seedings. Last year's late small grain harvest resulted in more than normal sprouting of volunteer grain plants in the alfalfa. The abundant rainfall this spring has also washed out some new alfalfa stands. Most pastures were showing good growth and color. There continued to be reports of pasture damage due to livestock grazing on wet pastures. Photos by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

Salmonella Testing Program Necessary, Indicate Project Reps

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Because of the continuing outbreaks of Salmonella enteritidis (SE) in the Northeast that have been traced to this area, SE Pilot Project representatives indicated a need for a flock certification program to help control the problem.

About 50 layer industry representatives met at the Farm and Home Center Thursday afternoon to discuss the formation of a program that will aid in testing flocks on a regular basis to control SE.

At the meeting, a motion was unanimously passed to allow the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation to petition the USDA Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) to provide funds from the SE Pilot Project to initiate the SE Project "Second Tier" proposal.

The Second Tier project will help producers more effectively control SE in their flocks and to deal in a more direct way with the increasing concern over food safety, according to Dr. David Kradel, director of the USDA SE Pilot Project. Also, if the Second Tier program is carried out successfully, it may be effective in stemming possible producer litigation.

The proposal would involve input in terms of funding initially from APHIS. Later, the program would more actively engage industry in funding and other means, although details are still being worked out.

According to the Second Tier proposal, producers would have the option of having the flock environment tested at peak production (or as spent fowl) or blood egg monitoring (five samples/week). Also, cleaning and disinfection stages would be monitored regularly, as would chick/pullet testing.

Producers, in effect, would have the option of either the egg or the environment test to help certify them as under the SE control program.

The Pilot Project began in April 1992 to help monitor the incidence and control of SE in producer flocks in the region. The objectives, according to Dr. John Mason, director of the SE Control Program in APHIS, were to identify the number of outbreaks and provide ways in order to control and prevent the disease.

But the number of outbreaks of SE in the past year have continued to rise at a high level, according to Mason, and "a lot are coming from this area," he said. The outbreaks in the Northeast are originating here, he said. "It's obvious to everyone we have to do more than what we've been doing."

According to Mason, so far there has been no traceback to any of the flocks in the SE Pilot Project, which he said may be an incidence of either good luck or better management as a result of testing. Data accumulated on 67 flocks under the program have been accumulated and results from that data have been incorporated in monthly newsletters, fact sheets, and various organizational meetings, according to Kradel.

Regardless, according to Mason, the SE problem continues to be tremendous and the issue now is food safety.

The Pennsylvania Poultry Federation has agreed to gather information from producers to determine which ways the industry can help in implementing the Second Tier program. For more information, contact the Federation at 500 N. Progress Avenue, Harrisburg, PA 17109.

Those attending the meeting agreed with Mason when he said that the program must remain flexible to the industry. Mason said the main thrust should come from industry. Kradel said the industry must sell the program to the public health agencies, insurance companies, egg buyers, and regulatory agencies such as the FDA.

Mason indicated the money from the SE Pilot Project is better spent with the SE prevention program than the traceback program.

More information on the Second Teir program can be obtained from reading the "Poultry Pointers" column on page C5 of this issue of Lancaster Farming or by contacting Dr. Kradel at the SE Pilot Project, 1352 Harrisburg Pike, Lancaster, PA 17601, (717) 399-8810.

Dealing with the problem will involve about 20 percent science and 80 percent public relations, Kradel told the producers and other industry representatives. "We must begin some type of certification program," he said. "If we don't do it, somebody is going to come along with a program and tell us what to do."

Livestock Notes

PIGS PER FEEDER SPACE AND PERFORMANCE

Kenneth B. Kephart

Most swine producers allow one feeder space per five hogs. Scientists at the University of Missouri tested that standard allotment against one feeder space per ten hogs. In the study, 10 pigs were housed in each pen by sex (barrows or gilts). Pigs were given access to either a one- or two-space feeder from approximately 93-220 pounds.

Barrows and gilts responded equally to the feeder space restriction. Overall, daily feed disappearance was slightly less for the 10-pig/feeder space group. Other growth performance indicators were similar, as shown in the table.

Effect of feeder space allotment on finishing hog performance

	Pigs/Feeder Space
	5	10
Average daily gain, lb	1 72	1.69
Daily feed disappearance, lb/head	5 55	5.32*
Feed/Gain	3.22	3.21

*P < .05

Conclusions

Under the conditions of this study, growth rate and feed efficiency remain normal when feeder space is restricted to one space per 10 hogs. It should be noted that the width of each feeding space was about 11.5 inches in this study.

According to Ian Taylor and Stan Curtis, who have conducted extensive studies on feeder design, a finishing hog requires about 14 inches for each feeding space. This means that, with the feeder design used in this study, two hogs would not have had enough room to comfortably eat, even though two feeder spaces may have been available.

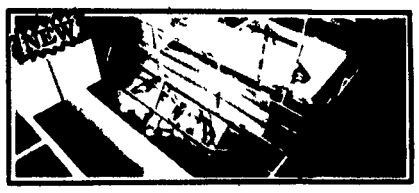
PIG SAVER "DUTCH CRATE"



Dutch Farrowing Crate is another product developed through testing in our research farms. The goal was to develop a crate that nearly eliminates crushing, due to lay ons, unmatched durability and be easy to work around. All this has been achieved by a unique gravity fliprail that forces sows to lie down slowly and using stainless steel for rear doors and legs, proven horizontal and solid steel rod construction. All this at a reasonable cost. Crate also can be installed on an angle.

CONFINEMENT STALL

Horizontal Confinement Stall was developed recently in our R&D farm. Our goals were convenience, safety and durability. The low back and flat top rails are easy to reach over with no sharp edges. Stainless steel rear legs and front feet along with solid steel horizontal rods through punched uprights provide the strongest, most durable stall ever produced by Tri-County (available in 21"-24" O.C. x86").

Nutrient Management

On Wednesday, Gov. Casey said, "We're very pleased with this bill. We've been working on it for three years. We feel it's the cornerstone of our commitment to cleaning up the tributaries that feed the Chesapeake Bay."

A spokesman for Casey, Tom Kelchner, deputy press secretary, said Thursday evening that the governor intends to sign the proposed law, but it must first be signed-off by the speaker of the House, and the Senate president pro tempore before going to the governor.

While a date hasn't been set, it is reasonable to expect the governor to sign it shortly after receiving it, since he has requested the law.

Though the proposed law is the result of many years of effort by various legislators and committee staff members, the prime sponsor of House Bill 100 is Jeffrey Coy, D-Shippensburg.

Coy, who is also a member of the Chesapeake Bay Commission, said Wednesday, "This is has been a five or six-year process for me since the first bill was introduced in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, and I feel very good about it (now passing). It should have been passed before, but it took a lot of negotiations, and the end result of all that negotiation is good legislation."

Though he said he was pleased with passing of the bill, Coy said it should have been done last year. "I hesitate to be critical of the past, (but) this could have been passed, certainly very easily last year," he said.

Last year as the previous legislature was readying to end, Coy and several others in the House had taken a draft bill crafted by a team of negotiators and had it introduced as an amendment to an environmental education bill, getting it easily pased in the House. That bill was very close to the wording included in HB 100.

That was done at the same time that Senate Democrats took control of the Senate, setting up a fast-track for legislation, since the governor, the House and the Senate were all controlled by the Democratic Party.

Rep. Sheila Miller, a R-Host, had been executive director of the Senate Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee, prior to last fall's election.

According to her, much of HB 100's wording is a result of work that she and others, including those in the House, had been circulating in hopes of arriving at a workable compromise over nutrient management. She said that draft was taken by Coy and other House Democrats last year and was offered as a final nutrient management proposal.

The proposal was quickly pushed through the House, with only those very close to the negotiations having any knowledge of what was actually contained in the proposal.

It then failed in the Senate, because the Senate adjourned before the bill got to the floor. But it had been expected to pass and was supported by all major agricultural groups.

Since being reintroduced by Coy this session, the proposal passed the House by an overwhelming majority, and then went to the Senate where no amendments were offered.

Coy said he isn't trying to take credit for the creating the bill.

"There was significant negotiation. I don't want to say I did it all. There has been substantial negotiation on this matter and many different points, and I don't think any one segment can take credit," Coy said. "The fact that time was involved and negotiations occured was probably good, but it could have been done last session."

State Secretary of Agriculture Boyd E. Wolff said Thursday, "Pennsylvania's Nutrient Management Act resulted from a great deal of give and take between varying interests and organizations.

"The compromise that resulted has a number of benefits for the farmers who will be affected. Number one, the act provides for uniform requirements for all farmers in the commonwealth so that a local entity can't pass stricter measures," Wolff said.

"This version also has a reasonable time frame and gives farmers more input. The advisory board called for in the act is something we worked very hard to obtain. In addition, Pennsylvania's nutrient management act forces the commonwealth to also look at non-agricultural nonpoint sources such as urban runoff and septic systems."

The Pennsylvania Farmers' Association, in a statement made shortly after the bill's passage in the Senate, "... welcomed the passage ... of nutrient management legislation by the Pennsylvania Senate."

"While we're not looking foward to more regulations, we believe this legislation is the right way to help clean up ground and surface water," said Keith Eckel, PFA president.

"PFA believes that a more comprehensive assessment is necessary to understand the extent of contributions by all entities which are polluting.

"Controlling pollutants such as on-lot septic systems, septic cleaners, municipal waste-water plants, residential fertilizer application, inadequately constructed wells, storm drainage systems, storm water run off and other non-point sources, needs to be examined with a critical eye and properly addressed," he said.

Sen. Noah Wenger, R-Ephrata, who was instrumental in some landmark agricultural legislation such as farmland preservation, said the bill represents, "the best possible solution to the issue that we can reach at this time." He estimated it would affect 15 to 20 percent of the state's farmers.

"This recognizes that there are many sources of water pollution, and everyone has a responsibility for maintaining water quality," Wenger said.

Lamonte Garber, agricultural policy specialist for the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, said Wednesday, "This is the most important step Pennsylvania has taken to prevent non-point pollution to state waterways and the Chesapeake Bay."

William Baker, CBF president praised Coy and said, "The Nutrient Management Act gives Pennsylvania a necessary tool in the effort to meet the Chesapeake Bay Agreement's 40 percent nutrient reduction goal. We urge the other Bay states to follow Pennsylvania's lead."

HOUSE BILL
NO. 100
Nutrient Management

An act providing for the management of nutrients on certain agricultural operations to abate nonpoint source pollution, for the certification of nutrient management specialists and for the assessment of other nonpoint sources of nutrient pollution to the waters of this Commonwealth; establishing the Nutrient Management Advisory Board and providing for its powers and duties; establishing the Nutrient Management Fund; and providing for enforcement and penalties.

Section 1.
Short title.

This act shall be known and may be cited as the Nutrient Management Act.

Section 2.
Declaration of legislative purpose.

The purposes of this act are as follows:

(1) To establish criteria, nutrient management planning requirements and an implementation schedule for the application of nutrient management measures on certain agricultural operations which generate or utilize animal manure.

(2) To provide for the development of an educational program by the State Conservation Commission in conjunction with the Cooperative Extension Service of The Pennsylvania State University, the Department of Agriculture and conservation districts to provide outreach to the agricultural community on the proper utilization and management of nutrients on farms to prevent the pollution of surface water and ground water.

(3) To require the State Conservation Commission, in conjunction with the Cooperative Extension Service of The Pennsylvania State University, Department of Environmental Resources, Department of Agriculture and the Nutrient Management Advisory Board to develop and provide technical and financial assistance for nutrient management and alternative uses of animal manure, including a manure marketing and distribution program.

(4) To require the Department of Environmental Resources to assess the extent of nonpoint source pollution from other nutrient sources, determine the adequacy of existing authority and programs to manage those sources and make recommendations to provide for the abatement of that pollution.

Section 3.
Definitions.

The following words and phrases when used in this act shall have the meanings given to them in this section unless the context clearly indicates otherwise:

"AEU." Animal equivalent unit.

"AEU per acre " An animal equivalent unit per acre of crop land or acre of land suitable for application of animal manure.

"Agricultural operations." The management and use of farming resources for the production of crops, livestock or poultry.

"Animal equivalent unit." One thousand pounds live weight of livestock or poultry animals, regardless of the actual number of individual animals comprising the unit.

"Best management practice" or "BMP." A practice or combination of practices determined by the commission to be effective and practicable (given technological, economic and institutional considerations) to manage nutrients to protect surface and ground water taking into account applicable nutrient requirements for crop utilization. Best management practices include, but are not limited to:

(1) Conservation tillage.
(2) Crop rotation.
(3) Soil testing.
(4) Manure testing.
(5) Diversions.
(6) Manure storage facilities.
(7) Storm water management practices.
(8) Nutrient application.

"Board." The Nutrient Management Advisory Board created by section 8.

"Commission." The State Conservation Commission established by the act of May 15, 1945 (P.L. 547, No. 217), known as the Conservation District Law.

"Concentrated animal operation." Agricultural operations meeting the criteria established under this act.

"Conservation district." Any county conservation district established under the act of May 15, 1945 (P.L. 547, No. 217), known as the Conservation District Law.

"Cooperative extension." The Cooperative Extension Service of The Pennsylvania State University.

"Department." The Department of Environmental Resources of the Commonwealth.

"Fund." The Nutrient Management Fund.

"Nutrient." A substance or recognized plant nutrient, element or compound which is used or sold for its plant nutritive content or its claimed nutritive value. The term includes, but is not limited to, livestock and poultry manures, compost as fertilizer, commercially manufactured chemical fertilizers, sewage sludge or combinations thereof.

"Nutrient management plan." A written site-specific plan which incorporates best management practices to manage the use of plant nutrients for crop production and water quality protection consistent with the criteria established in sections 4 and 6.

"Nutrient management specialist." A person satisfying the certification requirements of section 7.

Section 4.
Powers and duties of commission.

The commission shall have the following powers and duties:

(1) Within two years after the effective date of this act, and periodically thereafter, to promulgate regulations in consultation with the Department of Agriculture, the department and the board, establishing minimum criteria for nutrient management plans developed in accordance with section 6 and other regulatory requirements to implement this act. In establishing such criteria, the commission shall consult the department's manure management for environmental protection manual, the Pennsylvania agronomy guide, published by the Pennsylvania State University and the Pennsylvania Technical Guide for Soil and Water Conservation, published by the United States Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service. The criteria to be established pursuant to this section shall include the following:

(i) An identification of nutrients as defined by this act. Unless otherwise appropriate pursuant to specific criteria which shall be established by the commission, there shall be a presumption that nitrogen is the nutrient of primary concern.

(ii) The establishment of procedures to determine proper application rates of nutrients to be applied to land based on conditions of soil and levels of existing nutrients in the soil and the type of agricultural, horticultural or floricultural production to be conducted on the land.

(iii) An identification of best management practices to be utilized for proper nutrient management.

(iv) The establishment of recordkeeping requirements related to land application and distribution of nutrients.

(v) The establishment of minimum standards of construction, location, storage capacity and operation of facilities intended to be used for storage of animal manure.

(vi) The establishment of conditions under which amendments to nutrient management plans are required to be made after initial development or filing.

(VII) The establishment of special criteria which may be utilized for manure handling in emergency situations where there is an outbreak of a contagious disease.

(VIII) The establishment of conditions under which changes due to unforeseen circumstances render the plan amendment process set forth in section 6 (E) impracticable. Where such conditions exist, the owner or operator of an agricultural operation shall follow the procedures set forth in section 6 (F).

(2) To continually evaluate emerging practices, methods and technology for utilization as best management practices and to so identify same, where appropriate, pursuant to paragraph (1) (III).

(3) Five years after the effective date of regulations adopted pursuant to paragraph (1), and periodically thereafter, to evaluate the criteria for concentrated animal operations in this Commonwealth and to make appropriate changes in those criteria by regulation. Any such regulatory change related to concentrated animal operations shall require a two-thirds majority vote of the commission.

(4) Prior to the adoption of regulations under paragraph (1), to recommend in consultation with the Department of Agriculture, the department and the board, interim criteria for the sole purpose of facilitating the initial development of the nutrient management certification program established by this act.

(5) Within two years after the effective date of this act to develop and implement, in cooperation with the Department of Agriculture, the board, the Cooperative Extension and conservation districts, a program to provide education and technical assistance to the agricultural community and, to the extent funds are available, to provide financial assistance to existing agricultural operations for implementation of proper methods, practices, facilities and techniques for the utilization and management of nutrients on the farm to prevent the pollution of ground water and surface water.

(6) To consult with the board as provided in section 8.

(7) To issue orders and take actions as are necessary to administer and enforce this act.

(8) To delegate administration or enforcement authority, or both, under this act to county conservation districts that have an adequate program and sufficient resources to accept and implement this delegation.

Section 5.
Powers and duties of department.

The department shall have the following powers and duties:

(1) Within one year after the effective date of this act, to make an assessment of and report to the Environmental Quality Board and the General Assembly on the extent to which malfunctioning on-lot sewage systems contribute to the pollution of waters of this Commonwealth, and to identify what regulatory or legislative initiatives, if any, the department deems necessary to abate that pollution.

(2) Within one year after the effective date of this act, to make an assessment of and report to the Environmental Quality Board and the General Assembly on the extent to which improper water well construction contributes to groundwater pollution due to the intrusion of nutrients from the surface and to identify what regulatory or legislative initiatives, if any, the department deems necessary to abate that pollution.

(3) Within two years after the effective date of this act, to make an assessment of and report to the Environmental Quality Board and the General Assembly on the extent to which the application of chemical fertilizers and other plant nutrients for nonagricultural purposes contributes to the pollution of the waters of this Commonwealth and to identify what regulatory or legislative initiatives, if any, the department deems necessary to abate that pollution.

(4) Within two years after the effective date of this act, to make an assessment of and report to the Environmental Quality Board and the General Assembly on the extent to which nutrients from storm water runoff contribute to the pollution of waters of this Commonwealth and to identify what regulatory or legislative initiatives, if any, the department deems necessary to abate that pollution.

(5) Within two years after the effective date of this act, to make an assessment of and report to the Environmental Quality Board and the General Assembly on the extent to which atmospheric deposition of nutrients contribute to the pollution of the waters of this Commonwealth and to identify what regulatory or legislative initiatives, if any, the department deems necessary to abate such pollution.

(6) To include in the above assessments, recommendations to the General Assembly for budgetary and legislative initiatives where program resources or statutory authority is not adequate to address pollution sources identified therein.

(7) To provide technical and administrative assistance to the commission in carrying out its responsibilities under this act.

Section 6.
Nutrient management plans.

(a) Concentrated animal operations. Concentrated animal operations are those agricultural operations where the animal density exceeds two AEUs per acre on an annualized basis. Five years after the effective date of regulations adopted pursuant to section 4(1), and from time to time thereafter, the commission, in consultation with the Department of Agriculture, the board, the department, and the Cooperative Extension Service shall review the criteria used to identify concentrated animal operations and make appropriate changes to the definition of concentrated animal operations by regulation.

(b) Development of nutrient management plans. The operator of any concentrated animal operation shall develop and implement a nutrient management plan consistent with the requirements of this action.

(c) Certification of plans. All plans and plan amendments shall be developed by nutrient management specialists who shall certify that the plans are in accordance with the requirements of this act and the regulations promulgated under this act.

(d) Review procedure. Nutrient management plans required by this section shall be submitted for review in accordance with the following schedule:

(1) For a concentrated animal operation in existence on the effective date of regulations promulgated under section 4(1), within one year after the effective date of such regulations.

(2) For a concentrated animal operation which comes into existence after the effective date of regulations promulgated under section 4(1), within three months after such date or prior to the commencement of operations, whichever is later.

(3) For an agricultural operation which, because of expansion, meets the criteria for a concentrated animal operation within three months after the date of expansion.

DHIA SCC As Per Cent Of Bulk Tank

How many cows are responsible for half of the somatic cells in your bulk tank? What percentage drops do you need in your herd's SCC to qualify you for milk quality premium payments? How many cows are responsible for you not collecting your premium payments?

In many herds, one or two cows could be responsible for all of this, especially in a small herd and if the rest of the herd is relatively free of mastitis. If this is the case, a few chronic mastitis cows could be costing you big bucks.

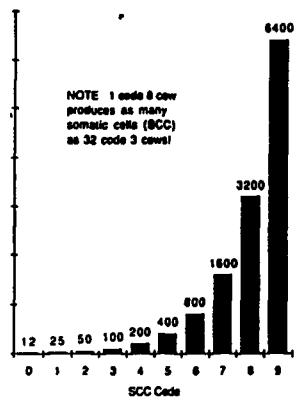
One code 8 cow can put as many cells into the tank as 32 code 3 cows producing the same amount of milk! This is illustrated in Chart 1.

Let's say your herd count is 400,000, and you are aiming to get below 200,000 in order to pick up a 20 cent quality premium on your milk check. If you are shipping 30 cwt (3000 lbs.) of milk per day, the quality premium would be worth $6.00 per day or $2,190 per year. Let's also say your DHIA SCC report might look something like the illustration in Table 1:

Table 1: Cows Sorted by SCC on Test Day

Barn Name	Prv SCC Str	Curr SCC Str	Lact Avg SCC	Prv TD Milk	Curr Td Milk	DIM on TD	Pct Tank SCC	Over 3.5 SCC
Verna	5.0	8.0	6.0	52	44	344	22	9
Jean		7.0	7.0		73	80	32	1
Jane	5.0	5.0	5.0	44	39	221	12	2
Delise	2.0	2.0	2.0	65	82	120	10
Alyce	1.0	1.0	1.0	54	59	228	3

Chart 1: SCC Output By Codes (1,000's)



To drop the herd count down to 200,000, you have to reduce your present count by 200,000 or 50%. If you look at the "Pct Tank SCC" column in Table 1, you'll see that 2 cows, Verna and Jean, are responsible for 54% of the cells in the tank (22 + 32 = 54). Combined, they are costing the dairymen $6.00 a day in premiums; that's $3.00 per day or over $1,000 for each of these 2 cows per year.

Lost premiums makes mastitis very expensive for these two cows. This is an addition to other mastitis costs associated with lost production due to tissue damage, treatment costs and discarded milk, not to mention the risk of them spreading infection to other cows in the herd.

The question is should you cull these cows? First of all look at how many days they've been in milk and how many times their SCC code has been over 3.5 Verna has been milking 344 days and has been high 9 times — almost every test. She is chronic, possible contageous and a good candidate for culling, especially if she has not responded to dry treatment. If you do hang onto her until you get a better cow to fill her stall, try to milk her last.

Jean, on the other hand, put the highest percent cells in the tank, partly because of her higher level of production. However, her cell count was over 3.5 only once so far in this lactation, but she has only been milking 80 days. She is a cow to watch closely for the next few tests.

Census Bureau Asks For Help

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Commerce Bureau of the Census is requesting farmer cooperation in filling out its forms so that federal decisions on agriculture can be based on an accurate understanding of agriculture.

In a news release, the bureau stated, "If all farmers and ranchers are not counted in the Census of Agriculture, decisions on farm programs, agriculture trade, extension programs, and others will suffer. In the long run, every farmer and rancher will be affected."

The data from the Census of Agriculture are essential in allocating billions in agriculture funds every year.

Many familiar programs receive and depend on adequate federal funds and would be affected negatively by a poor census response.

Some of those decisions to be made which depend the census include the distribution of extension program funds; the number of acres of cropland that can be put into the conservation reserve program in each county; the amount of funds for farm disaster relief; and the amount of farm loan money available to states and counties.

In addition, negotiators for the government rely heavily on the information when dealing with agricultural commodity trade. According to the buruea, "If the information is understated, then American producers may not get the best benefits possible from current trade negotiations."

According to George Pierce, assistant chief of the Census Bureau's Agriculture Division, "More than 75 percent of America's farmers and ranchers have completed and returned their Census of Agriculture report. Others have requested time extensions until they complete their tax returns.

"But there are still quite a few that we haven't heard from. Response in some states and counties is better than others."

What the discrepency in cooperation means is that those states and counties with the greatest undercount may not receive their share of the agriculture programs, funding, trade considerations, educational funds and consideration in Congress.

"What we also think has happened is that a lot of people who are no longer actively farming pitched their forms in the trash. That's human nature. But we need to know who's not farming by sending the form back indicating their situation," Pierce said.

"Meanwhile, the slow returns from non-farmers combined with farmers and ranchers who haven't mailed back their forms keeps the returns below the level we need to publish complete and accurate data."

Nutrient Management

(e) Plan review and approval. Plans or plan amendments required under this act shall be submitted to local conservation districts for review and approval, or alternatively to the commission for agricultural operations located in counties not delegated administrative authority under section 4. Any person performing the plan review must be certified in accordance with section 7. Within 90 days of receipt of a nutrient management plan or plan amendment, the reviewing agency shall either approve, modify or disapprove the plan or plant amendment. Approvals shall only be granted for those plans or plan amendments which satisfy the requirements of this act and the regulations promulgated under this act. Notice of determination to approve, modify or disapprove a plan or plan amendment shall be provided in writing to the person submitting same. Notice of a determination to modify or disapprove shall include an explanation specifically stating the reasons for modification or disapproval. If a plan or plan amendment is disapproved, the person submitting a plan or plan amendment for the first time shall have 90 days after receipt of notice of disapproval to resubmit a revised plan or plan amendment. An agricultural operation that submits a complete plan or plan amendment is authorized to implement the same if the reviewing agency fails to act within 90 days of submittal. Where the reviewing agency fails to so act and the plan or plan amendment is resubmitted and the reviewing agency again fails to act within 90 days of resubmittal, it shall be deemed approved.

(F) Amendments due to unforeseen circumstances. Amendments to plans or to implementation of plans made after initial development or filing which satisfy the criteria established under section 4(1) (VII) shall be certified by a nutrient management specialist prior to implementation and submitted to the district within 30 days of implementation.

(G) Implementation. A person required to develop a nutrient management plan pursuant to subsection (B) shall fully implement such plan within three years of the date such plan is approved, or is deemed approved, or for which implementation is otherwise authorized pursuant to subsection (E), unless extended for cause shown or by a plan amendment. The three-year implementation schedule shall be extended an additional two years for individual substantial capital improvements required under an approved plan for an operation required to submit a plan under subsection (D)(1) if:

(1) The owner or operator demonstrates that the cost of all or part of the individual improvements for which the extension is applicable cannot be financed through available funding mechanisms; and

(2) A sum of $2,000,000 or more has not been appropriated for grants and loans to the nutrient management fund created under section 10, above and beyond any Chesapeake Bay Nonpoint Source Pollution Abatement moneys that may be appropriated to the fund, within one year of the effective date of regulations adopted pursuant to section 4(1).

(H) Voluntary plans. Any agricultural operation which is not a concentrated animal operation may voluntarily develop a nutrient management plan and have it reviewed pursuant to this section To the extent possible, the commission, the Cooperative Extension Service, the Department of Agriculture, the department and conservation districts shall assist and promote the development of voluntary plans.

(I) Financial assistance. Any agricultural operation receiving financial assistance under the Chesapeake Bay Nonpoint Source Pollution Abatement Program or otherwise receiving financial assistance under this act for the development of a nutrient management plan shall agree to develop and implement a nutrient management plan as a condition for receiving this financial assistance.

(J) Compliance plans. Any agricultural operation found to be in violation of the act of June 22, 1937 (P.L. 1987, NO. 394), known as the Clean Streams Law, may be required to submit a nutrient management plan within three months or notification thereof and implement the plan in order to prevent or abate such pollution.

(K)Transferability of plans. A plan approved under this section shall be transferable to a subsequent owner of an agricultural operation upon notification thereof to the district, unless the transfer results in operational changes requiring plan modification pursuant to the criteria established under section 4(1)(vi).

(L) Construction of Section. The density criteria for concentrated animal operations, as identified in subsection (A) or as it may be subsequently modified by the commission, shall only be utilized to identify those agricultural operations for which the planning requirements of this section shall apply and shall not be construed to prohibit the development or expansion of agricultural operations meeting or exceeding such criteria

Section 7.
Nutrient management certification program.

(a) Content of program. The Department of Agriculture shall establish, in consultation with the commission, a Nutrient Management Certification Program for the purpose of certifying individuals who have demonstrated the competency necessary to develop nutrient management plans. The Department of Agriculture, or its designee, shall develop such written testing procedures, educational requirements and examinations as it deems appropriate to carry out its responsibilities under this section The Department of Agriculture shall by regulation establish such fees and terms and conditions of certification as it deems appropriate and establish individual, commercial and public certification categories, including a certification category for farmers to develop and certify nutrient management plans for their own agricultural operations.

(b) Interim certification program. Until the Department of Agriculture develops and implements a certification program, persons having the following qualifications shall, upon request, receive interim certification from the Department of Agriculture.

(1) the person has at least two years experience in the development of nutrient management plans;

(2) the person is approved to develop nutrient management plans approved under the Chesapeake Bay Nonpoint Source Pollution Abatement Program, the United States Department of Agriculture's Water Quality Improvement Projects Program or other programs requiring submission and approval of a nutrient management plan including sludge disposal under the act of July 7, 1980 (P.L. 380, No. 97), known as the Solid Waste Management Act; or

(3) the person is a farmer who has been provided training and assistance in developing and implementing nutrient management plans.

(C) Nutrient management specialist. A person shall not certify a nutrient management plan or plan amendment unless that person has first satisfied the requirements of this section

Section 8.
Nutrient Management Advisory Board.

(a) Creation. There is hereby created the Nutrient Management Advisory Board. The board shall consist of 15 members appointed by the chairman of the commission and approved by a two-thirds vote of the commission. The members so appointed shall consist of five active commercial farm owners or operators representing the livestock, swine, meat poultry, egg poultry and dairy industry nominated by statewide general farm organizations, one veterinary nutrition specialist, one representative from the feed industry, one representative from the fertilizer industry, one representative of commercial agricultural lenders, one representative of local government, one representative of academia who shall be an agronomist or plant scientist faculty member of the school of agriculture of a Pennsylvania college or university, one hydrologist, two citizen representatives who are not farmers and one environmental representative, all of whom shall have sufficient knowledge, experience or familiarity with agronomic or nutrient management practices and all of whom shall be residents of this Commonwealth

(b) Compensation. Board members shall not receive a salary but shall be reimbursed for all reasonable and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their duties.

(c) Meetings A majority of the board shall constitute a quorum All actions of the board shall be by a majority vote The board shall meet upon the call of the commission, but not less than semiannually, to carry out its duties under this act The board shall annually select a chairman and such other officers as it deems appropriate

(d) Duties. The board shall review and comment on all commission regulations and the interim criteria established under section 4(3) developed to implement the provisions of this act. The commission shall have no power to promulgate regulations under this act until receipt of written comments on the proposed regulations from the board or until 60 days have expired from the date when the regulations were submitted by the commission to the board for its comments. Existing regulations shall continue until modified, superseded or repealed by the commission under this section.

(e) Term. The term of office for each board member shall be three years except that the commission shall stagger the initial terms of the charter members such that five shall serve for one year, five shall serve for two years and five shall serve for three years. Board members may be appointed to successive terms at the discretion of the commission, provided that no member may serve more than two three-year terms.

Section 9.
Financial assistance.

(a) Loans, grants, etc. The commission shall, to the extent funds are available, provide financial assistance in the form of loans, loan guarantees and grants for the implementation of nutrient management plans for existing agricultural operations.

(b) Criteria for eligibility. In reviewing applications for financial assistance, the commission shall consider the following:

(1) Whether the project will improve the health, safety or environment of the people of this Commonwealth and otherwise satisfy the purposes of this act.

(2) The cost effectiveness of the proposed practices in comparison with other alternatives.

(3) The applicant's ability to operate or maintain the practices in a proper manner.

(C) Issuance and terms. Subject to this section, the commission shall issue loans and set terms applicable thereto in any manner it deems appropriate. The commission may consider such factors as it deems relevant, including current market interest rates, the financial ability of the applicant to repay, and the necessity to maintain the funds created hereunder in a financially sound manner. Loans may be based on the ability to repay from future revenue to be derived from the applicant's agricultural operation, by a mortgage or other security interest, or by any other fiscal manner which the commission deems appropriate. The board shall have the power to defer principal on loans for up to 12 months. The minimum rate of interest to be paid on any loan made pursuant to this section shall be 1%.

(d) Grants. Grants shall be made available as follows:

(1) where funds therefore have been made available to the commission, subject to any conditions that may have accompanied the receipt of such funds;

(2) where the commission in its sole discretion, determines that the financial condition of the recipient is such that repayment of a loan is unlikely and that the recipient will be financially distressed by the implementation of practices without a grant.

(E) Grants and loans. The commission shall, where it deems it appropriate and to the extent financial circumstances permit, mix grant funds with loan funds.

Section 10.
Nutrient Management Fund.

(a) Establishment of fund. There is hereby created a special nonlapsing fund in the State Treasury to be known as the Nutrient Management Fund. All fees, fines, judgments and interest collected by the commission under this act shall be paid into the fund. All money placed in the fund and the interest it accrues are hereby appropriated to the commission on a continuing basis for any activities necessary to meet the requirements of this act.

(b) Supplements to fund. The Nutrient Management Fund may be supplemented by moneys received from the following sources:

(1) State funds appropriated to the commission.

(2) Federal funds appropriated to the commission.

(3) Proceeds from the sale of any bonds made available to the commission.

(4) Repayment of loan principal.

(5) Payment on interest loans made by the commission.

(6) Gifts and other contributions from public and private sources

(c) Fund administration. The commission shall have authority to adopt procedures for the use of moneys in the fund including the creation of accounts within the fund for the purposes of administering the loan and grant programs authorized by this act

(d) Status of fund. The Nutrient Management Fund shall not be subject to 42 Pa.C.S. Ch. 37 Subch. C (relating to judicial computer system).

(e) Deposit and use of funds. No administrative action shall prevent the deposit of moneys into the fund in the fiscal year in which they are received. The funds shall only be used for the purposes authorized by this act and shall not be transferred or diverted to any other purpose by administrative action.

Section 11.
Unlawful conduct.

It shall be unlawful to fail to comply with or to cause or assist in the violation of any order or any of the provisions of this act or the rules and regulations adopted under this act or to fail to comply with a nutrient management plan.

Section 12.
Civil penalties and remedies.

(a) Civil penalty. In addition to proceeding under any other remedy available at law or in equity for a violation of a provision of this act or a rule of regulation adopted, order issued or nutrient management plan approved under this act, the commission may assess a civil penalty of not more than $500 for the first day of each offense and $100 for each additional day of continuing violation. The factors for consideration in determining the amount of the penalty are:

(1) The gravity of the violation.

(2) The potential harm to the public.

(3) The potential effect on the environment

(4) The willfulness of the violation.

(5) Previous violations.

(6) The economic benefit to the violator for failing to comply with this act.

Whenever the commission finds that a violation did not cause harm to human health or an adverse effect on the environment, the commission may issue a warning in lieu of assessing a penalty where the owner or operator, upon notice, takes immediate action to resolve the violation and come into compliance. If the commission finds the nutrient pollution or the danger of nutrient pollution results from conditions, activities or practices which are being or have been implemented in accordance with a nutrient management plan developed and approved pursuant to and consistent with this act and the regulations developed under this act and which is being or has been fully implemented and maintained, the owner or operator of the agricultural operation shall be exempt from the imposition of penalties under this act.

(b) Collection. In cases of inability to collect the civil penalty or failure of any person to pay all or a portion of the penalty, the commission may refer the matter to the Office of General Counsel or the Office of Attorney General which shall institute an action in the appropriate court to recover the penalty. Any penalty assessed shall act as a lien on the property of the person against whom the penalty has been assessed.

(c) Civil remedies. In addition to any other remedies provided for in this act, any violation of this act, the rules and regulations promulgated under this act OR any order or nutrient management plan approved under this act shall be abatable in the manner provided by law or equity for the abatement of public nuisances. In addition, in order to restrain or prevent any violation of this act or the rules and regulations promulgated under this act or any order or nutrient management plan approved under this act, suits may be instituted in equity or at law in the name of the Commonwealth upon relation of the Attorney General, the General Counsel, the district attorney of any county, the solicitor of any municipality affected or the solicitor of any conservation district, provided that the General Counsel, District Attorney or solicitor shall first serve notice upon the Attorney General of the intention to so proceed. These proceedings may be prosecuted in the Commonwealth Court or in the court of common pleas of the county where the activity has taken place, the condition exists or the public is affected, and, to that end, jurisdiction is hereby conferred in law and equity upon these courts. Except in cases of emergency where, in the opinion of the court, the exigencies of the case require immediate abatement of the nuisance, the court may, in its decree, fix a reasonable time during which the person responsible for the nuisance may make provision for the abatement of same.

(d) Equitable relief. In cases where the circumstances require it or the public health is endangered, a mandatory preliminary injunction, special injunction or temporary restraining order may be issued upon the terms prescribed by the court, notice of the application therefore having been given to the defendant in accordance with the rules of equity practice. In any such proceeding, the Attorney General, the General Counsel, the district attorney or the solicitor of any municipality or conservation district shall not be required to give bond. In any such proceeding, the court shall issue a prohibitory or mandatory preliminary injunction if it finds that the defendant is engaging in unlawful conduct as defined by this act or is engaged in conduct which is causing immediate and irreparable harm to the public. In addition to an injunction, the court in such equity proceeding may assess civil penalties in accordance with this section.

Section 13.
Limitation of liability.

If a person is fully and properly implementing a nutrient management plan, approved by the local conservation district or the commission and maintained under this act for an agricultural operation, the implementation shall be given appropriate consideration as a mitigating factor in any civil action for penalties or damages alleged to have been caused by the management or utilization of nutrients pursuant to the implementation

Section 14.
Enforcement authority; enforcement orders.

(A) Right of access. A duly authorized agent of the commission or a conservation district shall have authority to enter any agricultural operation at reasonable times to conduct such investigations and to take such actions as are necessary to enforce the provisions of this act or any order, rule or regulation issued hereunder.

(B) Duty to grant access. Any person owning or operating an agricultural operation shall grant access to any duly authorized agent of the commission or a conservation district pursuant to subsection (A) shall not hinder, obstruct, prevent or interfere with such agents in the performance of their duties, provided, however, that agents shall perform such reasonable measures and actions as directed by the owner or operator of an agricultural operation as will reasonably and substantially prevent the spread or outbreak of contagious diseases.

(C) Orders. The commission or any conservation district delegated enforcement authority may issue such orders as are necessary to aid in the enforcement of the provisions of this act. Any order issued under this section shall take effect upon notice unless the order specifies otherwise. An appeal of the order to the Environmental Hearing Board shall not act as a supersedeas provided that upon application for and cause shown, the Hearing Board may issue such a supersedeas under the rules established by the Hearing Board.

Section 15.
Appealable actions.

Any person aggrieved by an order or other administrative action of the commission issued pursuant to this act shall have the right, within 30 days from actual or constructive notice of the action, to appeal the action to the Environmental Hearing Board.

Section 16.
Powers reserved under existing laws

Nothing in this act shall limit in any way whatever the powers conferred upon the commission, Department of Agriculture, department or conservation district under laws other than this act, including, but not limited, to the act of June 22, 1937 (P.L.1987, No.394), known as The Clean Streams Law and the act of July 7, 1980 (P.L.380, No.97), known as the Solid Waste Management Act and common law. All such powers are preserved and may be freely exercised. A court exercising general equitable jurisdiction shall not be deprived of such jurisdiction even though a nuisance or condition detrimental to health is subject to regulation or other action by the board under this act.

Section 17.
Preemption of local ordinances.

This act and its provisions are of Statewide concern and occupy the whole field of regulation regarding nutrient management to the exclusion of all local regulations. Upon adoption of the regulations authorized by section 4, no ordinance or regulation of any political subdivision or home rule municipality may prohibit or in any way regulate practices related to the storage, handling or land application of animal manure or nutrients or to the construction, location or operation of facilities used for storage of animal manure or nutrients or practices otherwise regulated by this act if the municipal ordinance or regulation is in conflict with this act and the regulations promulgated thereunder. Nothing in this act shall prevent a political subdivision or home rule municipality from adopting and enforcing ordinances or regulations which are consistent with and no more stringent than the requirements of this act and the regulations promulgated under this act, provided, however, that no penalty shall be assessed under any such local ordinance or regulation for any violation for which a penalty has been assessed under this act.

Section 18.
Repeals.

All acts and parts of acts are repealed insofar as they are inconsistent with this act.

Section 19.
Effective date.

This act shall take effect in 60 days.

Ten Bulls Enter Program

Morrow, Hiller Seek Penn State Trusteeship

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)—At the Penn State Board of Trustees meeting on Thursday, two well-known agricultural leaders seek election: David Morrow, DVM, PHD, from State College, and Gordon Hiller, state Grange master from Williamsport.

Morrow currently serves on the board as vice-chairman of the physical plant committee and as a member of the educational policy committee. He previously served as vice chairman of the Hershey Medical Center committee and member of the finance committee.

Marrow is an active participant in university activities as a trustee and as an alumnus. He has edited an annual newsletter for the agricultural community on behalf of all the trustees representing agriculture and is past president of the College of Agricultural Sciences Alumni Society and is president of the 117,000 member University Alumni Association. Recent Penn State honors include the distinguished alumnus award from the department of dairy and animal science and honorary memberships in Golden Key National Honor Society and Lion Ambassadors, the Penn State student alumni corps.

Hiller is a former conservation program specialist with the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources, a regional director of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, and a retired dairy farmer. He is also a past chairman and director of the Lycoming County Conservation District, past chairman of the Old Lycoming Township Planning Commission and a past chairman of the Lycoming County Agriculture Conservation Coalition.

Hiller is a certified professional erosion and sediment specialist and has received various meritorious awards for distinguished service from the county conservation district and from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Representatives from Pennsylvania agricultural societies will elect two members to the Penn State Board of Trustees on May 13 at University Park at their regular board meeting.

FOCUS

Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association

Pennsylvania DHIA news is presented in FOCUS each week in cooperation with Dixie L. Burris, manager of membership development.

For more information about these news items or the services of DHIA call 1-800-DHI-TEST. The call is free.

New Official DHIA Testing Plans Offered

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The new official DHIA testing plans are available.

Those plans include the DHIA AM/PM (code 31), DHIA Milk Only (code 33), and DHIA Milk Only AM/PM (code 34), and also DHIR AM/PM.

To participate in a testing plan, you need to contact your state DHIA office at 1-800-325-2720, or your technician for more information.

Herds participating in any of these testing plans will need to follow test-day procedures as follows:

MILK: Milk weights are obtained for all cows each test day as prescribed for AP plans in NCDHIP Rule 4, with the exception that a milking interval recorder is not required. For MILK ONLY herds, it is the same, except no milk samples are not taken.

COMPONENTS: Milk sampels are obtained for all cows each test day as prescribed for AP plans in NCDHIP Rule 4. For MILK ONLY herds, no component data are included in this plan.

DHIA Field Technician and Dairy Product Involvement In Data Collections: All data are collected by DHIA field technicians. The MILK ONLY herd users follow the same guidelines as stated.

SPECIAL PROCEDURES and/or DATA: Bulk tank shipment milk weights must be reported by the dairy producer as described in the official NCDHIP Rules, Appendix 2. MILK ONLY herds are the same as stated.

A copy of the NCDHIP Rules can be obtained by calling the state DHIA office, or by ordering through a technician the next test day.

The following is a revision of Appendix 2 to the NCDHIP Rules, which was effective as of October 1992.

"Bulk tank pickup milk weights shall be recorded each test day for monitoring 24-hour total herd yield separately from the test day milk weights of each cow. Ideally, this should be accomplished by reporting the three daily pickups from the three days immediately preceding each test day.

"In some herds, other procedures may be needed due to unusual pickup schedules. If other procedures are required, they should be designed to fulfill the basic purpose of providing an independent measure of total-herd, 24-hour milk yield, each test day.

"Each state DHIA should approve alternate procedures to ensure they fulfill the purpose intended."

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's this week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania. Remember these are averages so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Corn, No. 2y - 2.43 BU. 4.35 CWT.

Soybeans, No. 1 - 5.70 BU. 9.52 CWT.

Ear Corn - 65.45 TON 3.27 CWT.

Alfalfa Hay - 103.50 TON 5.18 CWT.

Mixed Hay - 91.50 TON 4.58 CWT.

Timothy Hay - 94.50 TON 4.73 CWT.

Board Election

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — On April 8, the Pa.DHIA State Board of Directors met in State College to elect officers for 1993.

Frank Orner, of Clearfield County, was re-elected president. William Jackson, of Fayette County, was re-elected vice president.

Also re-elected were Joe Lyons, of Columbia County, as secretary, and Norm Hershey, of the Garden State Red Rose County DHIA, as treasurer.

How Does Your Herd Compare?

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — This data is pulled from Pennsylvania DHIA's mainframe computer each week. It is a one-week summary representing approximately one-fourth of the herds on test, as they are tested monthly.

These data are valuable from a business management standpoint and can be used for comparing your operations to the averages from almost 1,400 herds across the state.

When Is Prime Time For Heat Detection?

GEORGE F.W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — This is April, and adding 279 days doesn't get us to a projected calving date at the end of June, so why worry about it now?

First, the end of June is just before the beginning of the "base" period in dairy cattle management. It's the time when many dairy farmers in this region find it most profitable to have their cows begin lactation.

At least that's what the milk-marketing people are striving for with their quota-like base-making period from July to December, when they usually increase milk prices.

So April is the wrong time to breed cows, and worrying about estrus detection for breeding is not a high priority.

But the right time, the beginning of September, will soon be here. We cannot relax our vigilance toward an ever better success rate.

Look at the DHIA records and you will understand quickly what I mean about greater vigilance.

Missed estrus and missed pregnancies result in lost milk income, but you can change this without an extra penny of investment.

DHIA records show several entire herds averaging a calving interval of more than 13.5 months. This means the cows were not detected in estrus in time to get them pregnant again for a new lactation 12 months from the last one, an optimum cycle in terms of dairy herd net income.

Even in good herds, we find calving intervals of more than 13.5 months for individual cows. Getting them on time by using better estrus detection will put money into the dairy farmer's pocket.

So, how do you do it?

This is where I must say, "Oh my!" It's not easy, as one can surmise from the long list of tools and gadgets necessary to perform the task the bull used to accomplish so easily.

He has a sense that people do not have, and this has turned out to be a major handicap whether we admit it or not. The bull uses his nose to sniff the scent that is part of estrus in cows. He curls up his nose in a chracteristic behavior of scent analysis called "flehmen."

With his nose curled up, he sniffs, carefully drawing in air from the cow's back through his sinuses.

Humans cannot tell the difference. What can we do instead? We observe whether a cow shows restless behavior, has mucous secretion around the tail, mounts others and begins to stand like a sawhorse.

Observing behavior is so unreliable or depends so much on conscientious people watching at the right time that success in getting cows bred on time after calving always suffers, especially in larger herds.

This is where the endless list of gadgets comes in, endless because none of them seem to do the job really well.

First on the list is a "clean-up" bull, the nearest to the real thing and not a gadget. It is at the top of the list of resorting to something else when everything fails.

A clean-up bull is an admission that everything else has failed.

Next is a bull who has had one of several possible operations to make his penis unable to breed. He wears an ink stamp under his chin to mark the cows in estrus. This method is similar to the popular practice among sheep breeders who keep a ram with an apron performing the same task.

Instead of a bull with an operation, some dairy farmers use an "androgenized" cow, one injected with a male hormone to make her think she is male. She, too, wears an ink pad under her chin.

Following along similar lines is the gadget of a patch glued to the rump of cows due to come into estrus. When one is in estrus, other cows mount her. Paint in the patch becomes visible because of the exerted pressure.

Alternatively, farmers paint the rumps with crayons which then become wiped off or smeared. All this requires daily attention to the gadget details and a certain investment.

Another approach to detecting restless behavior in cows is the so-called pedometer like joggers use. In cows, the pedometer is mounted around her legs or neck strap to detect a difference in activity from day to day. Sometimes, manure covers that part of the leg!

In herds with electronic feeding and milk weighing systems, the differences in feed intake and milk production can be related to estrus.

So are slight increases in body temperature, measured directly in milk at milking time, although on warm summer days the increase in milk temperature usually comes from the sun.

The traditional approach has been to rely on a recurring 21-day celendar or on a sophisticated "breeding wheel," which call into view the cows that should be in estrus on a certain date so the herd manager can check them.

Good herds usually do fairly well with any of these gadgets, but marginal herds don't.

The next step is to the veterinarian for treatments, not just for his monthly visits of pregnancy checks. Why did this cow not come into estrus? Why is she not yet pregnant when she should be? Treatments usually involve reproductive hormones of some kind or related substances.

Dairy farmers could test (it doesn't have to be only the veterinarian) the progesterone hormone content, minute as it is, of milk samples from individual cows to determine where she is in her normal cycle to know for certain when her estrus will occur.

Then the veterinarian can accelerate the process by administering a series of estrogen and progesterone hormones to bring her into estrus on a certain date.

The veterinarian also can inject prostaglandins, which are not hormones but fatty acids. Prostaglandins act on the corpus luteum in the ovaries to bring about estrus within 72 hours.

This is also called estrus "synchronization," because more than one cow can be brought into estrus at the same time with all the possible economic benefits, when one thinks in terms of base time for getting the most milk income at the best time.

This brings me to the final point. Should we continue to worry about detecting estrus when we have to admit that our noses are not made for it and the many gadgets are only partial solutions?

Many good new ideas and solutions in the dairy business have come from New Zealand. A popular practice there is to synchronize the entire herd. Herd owners then have two months vacation without worrying about milking and they don't seem to worry much about estrus detection.

A few farmers in Ohio have recently considered trying this method. I don't know whether it's crazy for our circumstances or whether it will have merit eventually.

If the milk processing plant assigned certain months of synchronized calving for certain farmers, the market supply of milk every month could be maintained.

Not having to worry about how well and how efficiently to detect estrus may be worth trying to synchronize certain herds at certain times. It's bound to be used more and more now, even if only to get cows to rebreed on time after calving.

This has worked out best in our University of Delaware dairy herd, and more and more farmers are finding it profitable.

Extension Sets Pasture Feeding Meeting

WELLSBORO (Tioga Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension is sponsoring a pasture feeding meeting on May 11.

The meeting will be held at the Penna. Electric Building south of Mansfield on Business Route 15 from 12130 p.m. till 3 p.m.

Lisa Holden will speak on pasture ration balancing and feeding. Lisa has worked closely with the pasture research trails with the Penn State University dairy herd.

A farmer panel will discuss what they feed with pasture and how they do it. Also general discussion on pasture layout, feeding, watering systems, and fencing will take place.

This is the first pasture meeting of the season. Last year several Tioga County dairy farmers met regularly to discuss intensive grazing.

Call the Tioga County extension office for more information at (717) 724-1906.

Ephrata High School Facility To Host Ag, Other Research

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — A drive to help pay for the construction of a regional first-of-its-kind small animal laboratory/headhouse through the efforts of the Cloister FFA is under way at the Ephrata Senior High School.

The FFA and the Vo-Ag Advisory Committee have joined forces to raise funds to construct a 24-foot by 40-foot building to be attached to an existing 26-foot by 48-foot greenhouse.

The purpose of the new headhouse/laboratory will be to house projects and materials that can be used by all departments of the high school, including the FFA, science department, and ag classes, according to Ernest Orr, chairman of the school's ag department.

Cost of the building will be approximately $26,900. According to Orr, the new building will supplement the existing greenhouse and will be used by the ag department to help students incorporate various types of activity projects, including work with plant science, aquaculture, hydroponics, and aeroponics, and will include a small animal laboratory for students to monitor the growth and development of chicks and rabbits. Also included in the plans are rooms for incubators, chick brooders, cages for rabbits and other small animals, a pen for broilers, and space for three 300-gallon fish tanks. There is space available for the connection of another greenhouse to the laboratory at a future time.

In addition, the new building will incorporate a special retail sales room from which students can help sell the material grown in the greenhouse. A work area will also be established in the center of the building, according to the plans.

The Cloister FFA program has 70 enrolled now. Overall, the benefits of the facility will extend to the additional 80 enrolled in some type of ag program at the school. Also, the rest of the students involve in an array of science classes at the school will benefit.

More importantly, however, the laboratory will allow students to become more active in hands-on projects that the department promotes throughout the year.

"We'd like to do more research-type projects," said Orr. "That's the main thrust — to try to do something that has more substance to it, to make kids think more, to provide more hands-on activities."

Not only students who elect to sign up for agriculture-related projects will be using the facility. Also, students from all grades involved in various science courses will be allowed to conduct experiments and establish projects on their own, according to Larry Hess, chairman of the school's science department.

"There's a multitude of different types of project research the students can do," said Hess. "We may have somebody who wants to do something with antibiotics in feed, and so they'd do some testing. Or testing manure.

"Even though we're here for the ag students, we'd also have a number of science students," said Hess. Many would elect to conduct research if such a facility would exist. Right now, the school doesn't have the proper facilities to handle certain kinds of projects, such as DNA analysis, cholesterol studies in eggs, electrophoresis (molecular study of materials or compounds), and other types of projects.

Also, students who need the proper facilities for building county science fair projects from the district could use the facility.

All in all, the new facility would "allow us to do things that we can't do now," said Orr.

The new facility would allow all the materials for the greenhouse to be stored in a nearby location. At this time, the materials, including soil, seeds, and other items are stored in a shed adjacent to the ag workshop, some distance away from the greenhouse. Equipment to run the various laboratories is also waiting to be utilized.

"The idea of this is to give us some additional work room," said Orr. "Right now, when we do things, we have to bring the plants down here. We transplant and take them up to the greenhouse."

The greenhouse schedule includes starting poinsettias the first week of school, followed by Easter lilies in the beginning of December, then mums, bedding plants, and flowers, and finally vegetables near the close of the school year.

So far, the FFA chapter has applied for and received a $13,450 competitive matching grant from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. The school must raise a matching amount from nontaxable funds through the efforts of community based organizations.

Recently, the ag department mailed a request for help from area ag businesses to fund the construction. So far, according to Orr, about $4,000 has been pledged, including $2,000 from the Cloister FFA.

Individuals or corporations who want to contribute may contact the following Advisory Committee members: Kerry Boyd, president, (717) 626-0506; David Zimmerman, vice president, (215) 484-2718; Sam Beamesderfer, secretary, (717) 738-2929; or Ernest Orr at (717) 733-1478.

Orr said he expects construction to begin in September this year for completion at the start of 1994.

"We see a big window of opportunity," said Hess. The science department chairman said he has seen this kind of laboratory only in colleges, and doesn't recall anything of this sort in area high schools. "It's going to provide a window for some of these students to do some power-packed research."

Orr said the laboratory would provide a forum "where kids can see a lot of practical things, as well. They can see it, touch it, feel it, play with it . . . all kinds of possibilities."

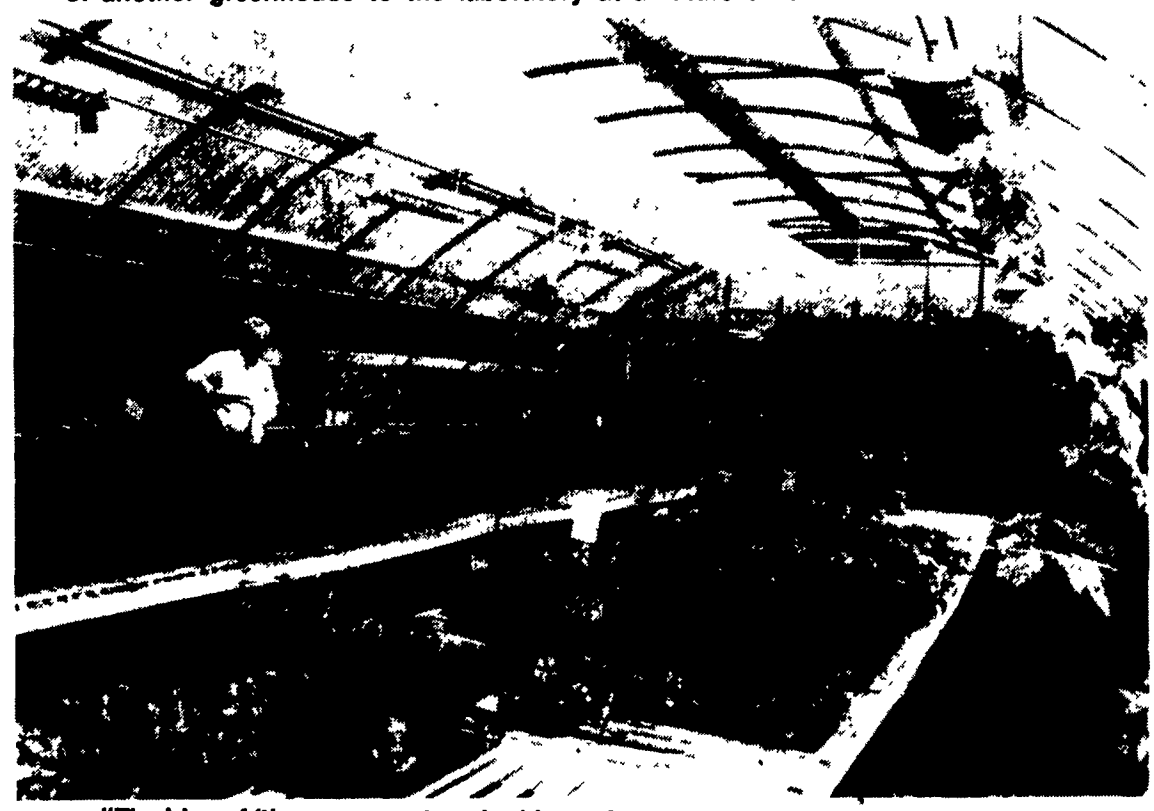
Orr said the plans for the new laboratory will be studied at the upcoming Pennsylvania Agriculture Teachers Conference in Lebanon in July this year. On July 12, the department will be conducting a tour of the greenhouse at the school.

Hess said he has heard from several students who went on to study animal science at various colleges.

"What we hear the most if that the students who are doing independent reearch, which would be right in this area, the benefits of that have no equal when it comes to discipline, stoic patience . . . they find it has helped them in all areas — the stoic patience thing, the stick-to-itiveness to research.

"Our department is excited," said Hess. "We push independent reearch, we push that a great deal. And the feedback we're getting is don't ever stop that push."

The Cloister FFA and the Vo-Ag Advisory Committee have joined forces to raise funds to construct a 24-foot by 40-foot building to be attached to this 26-foot by 48-foot greenhouse. The purpose of the new headhouse/laboratory will be to house projects and materials that can be used by all departments of the high school, including the FFA, science department, and ag classes, according to Ernest Orr, chairman of the school's ag department, pictured here. There is space available for the connection of another greenhouse to the laboratory at a future time.



"The idea of (the new construction) is to give us some additional work room," said Orr. "Right now, when we do things, we have to bring the plants down here. We transplant and take them up to the greenhouse." The greenhouse schedule includes starting poinsettias the first week of school, followed by Easter lilies in the beginning of December, then mums, bedding plants, and flowers, and finally vegetables near the close of the school year.

Additional Bedding Plant Auctions To Be Held

CHELTENHAM, Md. — Because of the overwhelming success of the first-ever Bedding Plant Auction, the Southern Maryland Regional Farmers Market held an additional wholesale bedding plant yesterday, and has scheduled another for 11 a.m., May 21.

The first Bedding Plant Auction was held on April 23 and offered a wide selection of vegetable and flowering annual plants. Vegetable plants sold included tomato, watermelon, cucumber, squash, pepper, cabbage, collard and kale. Prices for the vegetable plants ranged from $1.50 to $7.50 per flat with an average of $4.77 per flat.

Flowering annuals sold included marigolds, snapdragons, impatiens, cockscomb, salvia, Dusty Miller, geraniums, pansies, and petunias. Prices for these ranged from $5 to $15 per flat with an average of $7.38 per flat. Other items sold included 10-inch hanging baskets of impatiens with an average of $7.89 per basket and various specialty type pots of flowering annuals.

Buyer interest in the first sale was greater than seller interest. However, the market anticipates having additional sellers to participate in the upcoming sales. A similar selection and greater volume are expected for the sale on May 7. Additional produce items such as kale, greenhouse tomatoes, or other early spring crops that growers have ready may be sold in the bedding plant auctions.

The Southern Maryland Regional Farmers Market is located on U.S. 301, south adjacent to the Veterans Cemetery in Cheltenham, Md. This location is approximately 10 miles south of the Capital Beltway (I-495) and 30 miles south of the Baltimore Beltway (I-695).

Commission rates for selling in the auction are 10 percent for Maryland growers and 12 percent for out-of state growers. Buyer registration fees are being waived for the bedding plant auctions.

For more information, call the Southern Maryland Regional Farmers Market, (301) 372-1066 or (800) 533-FARM.

Weigh-ins Now For S.E. 4-H Hog Derby

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — 4-H youth of southeastern Pennsylvania who are interested in swine finishing should call their extension officie immediately — weigh-in for the 1993 South East Pa. 4-H Market Hog Derby starts today and runs through the week.

Feeder swine up to 70 pounds will be accepted into the program. Those youth who have not been notified of the program have until the end of this week to call their local extension agent to nominate and weigh-in up to three hogs.

By March 15, those three hogs are to be identified and weighed by extension personnel helping to run the educational program. One of the three hogs is then to be chosen to compete in the actual derby.

Then, starting 8:30 a.m., August 18, the hogs which are chosen to compete are to be weighed off at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds.

All hogs will be indexed according to the National Pork Producers Council Lean Gain on test formula. Adjustments will be made (+/-.8) for each full deviation from a score 3 to the overall index, according to their given structural score.

The official statement of purpose of the derby is, "To help evaluate your current management and breeding program from the standpoint of carcass merit, growth, and soundness." Which means that youth are to get an introduction into the real production swine finishing competitions — the battle to become and remain a profitable raiser of swine and all that entails.

Winebark said the program started several years ago in the belief that competitions which mirror actual production-level measures better enable the 4-H youth to understand the real world of hog production — keeping down costs, maximizing returns and producing an finished swine that buyers want.

To achieve this, the youth are taught about measuring systems in use by successful commercial producers. The measuring systems, based on records keeping provides insight into the successful management and effectiveness of a finishing program, along with better focus on breeding goals.

Such a measuring system includes recording and analyzing the swine and carcass weights, backfat and loin eye, and length of carcass, and then calculating average daily gain, and also testing for incidence of disease and parasitism. Successful producers also maintain records on feed and profitability.

Winebark said that, for educational purposes, the participating youth should "Please keep a record of the amount and types of feeds you fed to your entry.

"A feed efficiency calculation will be required of each animal before final ranking is determined. (The results) will be of interest to all producers, particularly in correlating protein levels with growth rates and production of lean pork," Winebark said.

This year there is to be a slight change in the program.

In prior years, all hogs entered were slaughtered for a final carcass evaluation. This year the number of hogs which will be slaughtered is 50.

Because of this restriction, according to Kenneth Winebark, Lebanon County extension agent and chair of the derby committee, "the main change for this year will be that any hog under 220 pounds live weight will be sold live and no carcass data will be taken.

"These animals will be shown live as always and exhibitors will receive their premium for exhibiting."

Winebark said that, in addition to a live showing, again this year the pigs will be ultrasound scanned. And for those hogs set to be slaughtered, a veterinarian is to take lung, liver and snout checks and present findings and examples at the carcass evaluation program.

The evaluation program is scheduled for 7 p.m., August 20, at Stoltzfus Bros Meats, in Intercourse. Hogs are to be judged by a committee of three judges — a packer, a commercial breeder, and an educator.

The contest is open to current 4-H members in Berks, Chester, Cumberland, Dauphin, Lancaster, Lebanon, Montgomery, Shcuylkill and York counties.

The entry fee is $15 per three head, payable at weigh-in.

Holstein Announces Leadership Program

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — People aged 22 to 35 years who are involved in the dairy industry and are interested in being considered for participation in a 2-year Holstein Foundation Young Dairy Leaders Institute should send now for an application.

The program is to begin February 1994, starting with a three-day leadership conference in Tampa, Fla., from Feb. 10-11.

However, candidates should file applications by June 1, this year in order to be considered.

According to a news release from the 4-year-old Holstein Foundation, based at the Brattleboro, Vt., headquarters of the national Holstein-Freisian Association, only 100 people will be selected to participate in the two-year leadership program.

For those who are selected, the association pays for most of the costs associated with the attending the institute.

"One hundred members will be selected with expenses paid for lodgings, meals and materials, plus travel stipend," according to the news release.

Young dairy persons, regardless of dairy cattle breed affiliations, are eligible to apply for the institute membership.

The leadership program is to offer development in the art of persuasion, public speaking, goal-setting and other interpersonal skills.

Also to be highlighted at seminars is to be understanding of the external and internal factors influencing the dairy industry, such as government regulation, marketing mechanisms, regional differences, economics and advocacy groups.

For more information, call the foundation at 1-800-952-5200, or write Jason Devino, Holstein Foundation, 1 Holstein Place, Bratleboro, VT, 05302-0816.

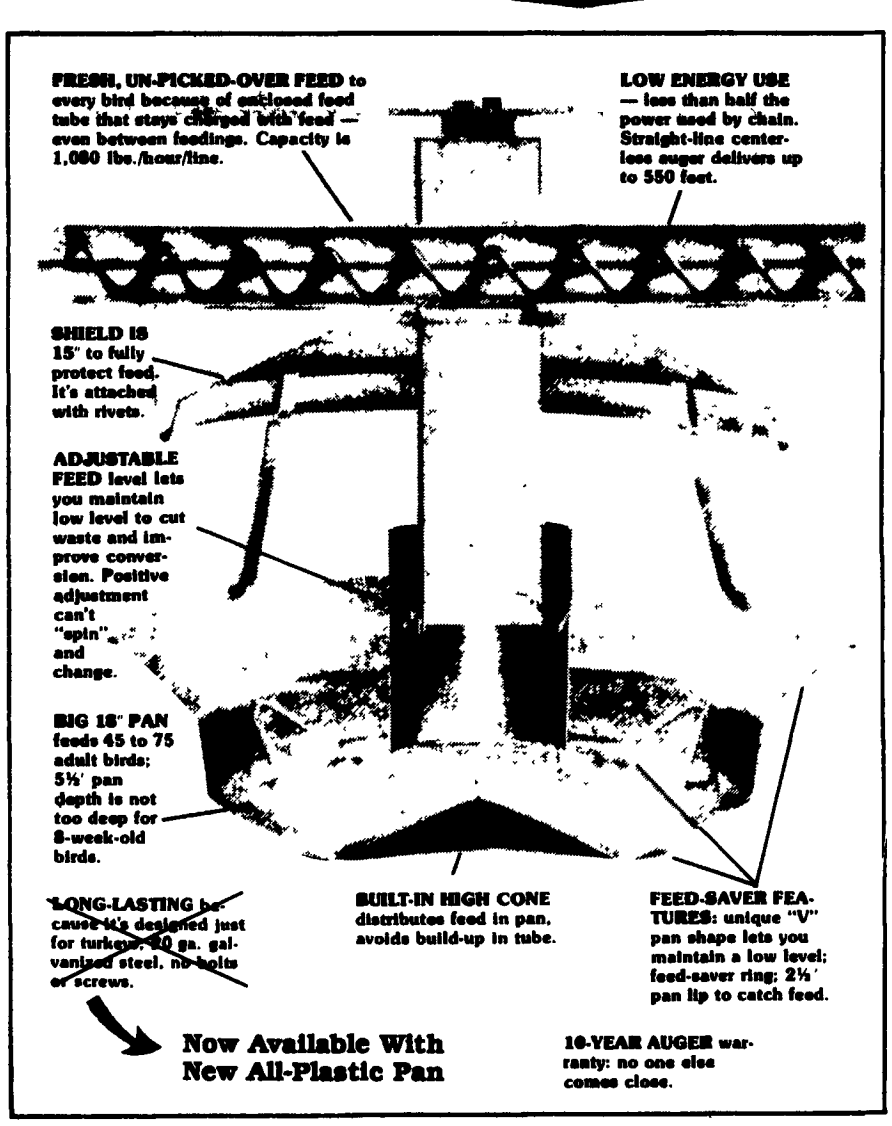
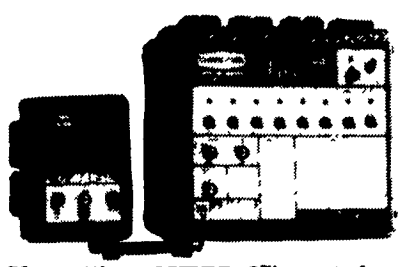
Contracts for new and updated turkey houses using CHORE-TIME equipment



FRESH, UN-PICKED-OVER FEED to every bird because of enclosed feed tube that stays charged with feed — even between feedings. Capacity is 1,080 lbs./hour/line.
LOW ENERGY USE — less than half the power used by chain. Straight-line centerless auger delivers up to 550 feet.
SHIELD IS 15" to fully protect feed. It's attached with rivets.
ADJUSTABLE FEED level lets you maintain low level to cut waste and improve conversion. Positive adjustment can't "spin" and change.
BIG 18" PAN feeds 45 to 75 adult birds; 5½' pan depth is not too deep for 8-week-old birds.
LONG-LASTING because it's designed just for turkeys. 20 ga. galvanized steel, no bolts or screws.
BUILT-IN HIGH CONE distributes feed in pan, avoids build-up in tube.
FEED-SAVER FEATURES: unique "V" pan shape lets you maintain a low level; feed-saver ring; 2½' pan lip to catch feed.
Now Available With New All-Plastic Pan
10-YEAR AUGER warranty: no one else comes close.

Chore-Time H2 ALL-PLASTIC FEEDER floods feeder pan with plenty of feed to attract and start poults from the first day.



Chore-Time SUPER 6™ curtain-sided ventilation made easy

Chore-Time SUPER 6™ Environmental Control System takes the work out of operating curtain ventilation — and does it without requiring anyone to be a computer expert! SUPER 6 accurately and automatically "supervises" your building's ventilation during hot, cold, and even during natural ventilation periods — doing automatically what most hog producers are attempting to do by hand.

Super Star Angus Show Sees 54 Entries

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — The Ohio Angus Association's Super Star Show and Sale saw 20 bulls and 34 heifers compete for grand honors at the show held recently in Columbus. Judge for the event was Steve Gunn of Greensburg, Ind.

In the heifer show, the grand winner was Rains Sweet Dream Girl 1MH2, exhibited by Dale Rains of Mercer, Pennsylvania. The heifer is a May 1992 daughter of P F Hamilton 9H24.

The reserve grand champion heifer was an April 1992 daughter of Da Es Ro Casey 629 named Indian Creek Kay 262. Indian Creek Farm, Stahlstown, Pennsylvania, exhibited the winner.

In the bull show, J Bar J Super Sonic was named the grand winner. The bull is a January 1992 son of TC Stockman and was consigned by Jason Goff of Norwich, Ohio.

Kiata Farms Inc., Hamilton, Ohio, displayed the reserve grand champion bull named Kiata Toto. The reserve entry is a March 1992 son of Leachman Tonto.

New SCC Limits Approaching

TERRY L. MADDOX
Huntingdon Co. Agent

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — All dairy operators should be prepared for the new somatic cell count (SCC) limit of 750,000 or a linear score of 5.9 that takes effect July 1.

Problems with high SCC levels not only jeopardizes milk market but loss of milk production and cow health. Here are some items to help dairy operators address problems with high somatic cell counts.

Mastitis Records

Somatic cell counts are easy to collect and inexpensive to record for management purposes. According to W.C. Heald, PSU dairy extension specialist, the value of somatic cell scores (SCS) increases with the managers ability to use SCS data. Unused SCS records cost money, but skilled use of SCS on farms returns dollars.

Therefore, someone on every dairy farm should learn to use SCS records effectively, or hire someone who can interpret the data and make recommendations.

Heald indicates that often the mastitis history is incomplete because it fails to include short duration infections along with the more common chronic infections.

First recognize that chronic mastitis infections are mostly caused by contagious mastitis pathogens and are the most costly form of mastitis.

This results in monthly SCS data that overemphasize long-duration contagious mastitis cases and under-represent acute infections that often occur early in the dry period, around calving, during humid hot weather or because of poor housekeeping of bedded areas and walkways. They sometimes develop into the debilitating peracute episodes that all managers painfully remember but often fill to record in herd records.

Simply, environmental mastitis — whether acute, clinical or subclinical — can strike and disappear between monthly test periods. While contagious and chronic forms of mastitis are more likely to appear in the historical record, they are also the more economically important mastitis problem for managers. They can cause more sick days and milk loss.

It is recommended that both SCS and clinical records be kept for the most effective mastitis management.

Environmental Mastitis

As producers clean their herd of contagious mastitis, they are faced with mastitis caused by another group of pathogens called environmental organisms, including coliforms.

According to C.M. Burns, PSU Veterinary Extension Assistant, Escherichia coli, organisms such as Klebsiella, and Enterobacter fall into this group of bacteria and are responsible for 5 percent to 10 percent of mastitis cases.

Many of the mastitis cases from environmental organisms remain unnoticed. The infections are usually short-term, less than seven days, and may not show up in periodic SCC checks.

According to Burns, clinical cases most often become acute over a short period of time, even overnight. The infected quarter is swollen, later becoming hard and tender. Milk produced in that quarter becomes watery with thick clots.

As the cow's system absorbs the endotoxins produced by the bacteria, the cow will show other symptoms. She may have a fever of 106 degrees F, go off-feed, and drop in milk production. While some cows may recover as quickly as they become sick, others may die.

Outbreaks of environmental mastitis are often attributed to poor sanitation. Coliforms naturally live in bedding and become prolific when cattle conditions are dirty. Weather changes can increase the incidence of environmental mastitis. Hot, moist conditions in summer, as well as moist, warm, poorly-ventilated barn conditions during winter, predispose cows to environmental mastitis.

Antibiotic therapy doesn't seem to be as effective with cases of environmental mastitis as with contagious mastitis.

Major emphasis for control is placed on keeping cows and their living areas clean and milking equipment in good working order. Using a germicidal pre-dip may sanitize teat ends more effectively than washing them. Special effort needs to be taken to ensure the teat ends are dry before applying milking equipment.

Burns cautions that coliforms can survive in cracks of worn teat liners or dirty dipping containers. Milking equipment should be regularly checked and replaced when necessary. Unused dip should be discarded, and cups used for pre- and post-dipping should be washed after each milking.

PFA Asks PMMB For Pricing Formula

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Spokesmen for the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association/ Farm Bureau (PFA) Wednesday asked the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) to replace the temporary over-order premium for Class I milk with a permanent economic formula to determine the over-order price.

Harold Shaulis, a PFA State Board member and chairman of PFA's Dairy Committee, testified of behalf of the statewide farm organization at a PMMB hearing in Harrisburg on the future of the current 80 cents per hundredweight (cwt.) over-order pricing scheduled to expire on June 30.

"The dairy farmers of Pennsylvania who I represent thank the board for their support, and the over-order premiums that have been in effect since 1988," Shaulis testified. "In many individual cases, these monies have meant the difference between staying in business or selling out."

But sizeable fluctuations in dairy prices over the last several years, Shaulis said, have made it difficult for dairymen to operate within a budget and have frustrated consumers. "A price indexing formula would significantly reduce these price variations for both the consumers and the dairy farm families of Pennsylvania, while also helping to maintain an adequate and stable supply of milk," Shaulis said.

Shaulis, who operates a 140-cow dairy farm in Somerset County, told the board that the price indexing formula proposed by PFA would provide dairy farms with economica viability and the stability to upgrade to remain competitive in the future.

A formula would also benefit the PMMB, SHaulis said, by reducing its need for costly and time consuming hearings such as the eight which have already been held to set or adjust the current over-order price.

The board could use the saved funds for more auditing and enforcement" ... also of vital importance to both the dairy farm families and consumers," Shaulis said.

Mel Eckhaus, PFA's dairy specialist, explained the components of the pricing formula proposed by PFA which would, he said," ... enable the over-order price to be self adjusting according to changes in costs, prices and marketing conditions."

The formula proposed by PFA would adjust the over-order price monthly based on the difference between the price received by dairyem and the production costs as determined by the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS), plus costs for management, interest on equity, USDA assessments and 3.5 percent profit. The over-order price would be capped at $1.35/cwt, a price selected because it has already been tested in the marketplace, and a floor of 40 cents/cwt. would be set as the minimum over-order price.

"The Board's establishment of over-order premiums since 1988 has significantly helped to maintain a stable supply of milk in this state," Shaulis told Board members.

Save 30% On Your Electric Bill with our 175 Watt Heat Bulb

Philips

Long Lasting 5,000 Hours

These 175 watt heat lamp bulbs put out as much heat as a 250 watt bulb but use 30% less electricity at $.10 per K.W.H. that's $37.50 over the life of the lamp. Even better, if you run 40 lamps that's a savings of $1,500.00

Bulbs are Heavy Duty Industrial type with high brass base and are resistant to urine and water splash damage, so you'll save even more on those costly breakage problems.

Delweaco #8104 Action TRAIN Alarm Clock!

If you remember the old steam engine going down the track with the 'drivers' chugging away, the whistle screaming, and the bell 'ding-dong' ing; you will be amazed at this latest edition to our DELWEACO line of mantle, alarm, and novelty clocks.! When this alarm goes off, the miniature steam engine goes round and round, in and out of the round house; the whistle blows (VERY realistic!), the red and green lights blink on and off on each side of the station; and the bell clangs and clangs, the drivers chug-chug! Sounds exactly like the old steam engines used to! You will be very impressed with the sound of this toy train! YOU MUST SEE AND HEAR THIS ONE!! NOTE: This is NOT A TOY although my grandchildren love to watch the train go round and round and listen to the bell, the whistle, and the rumble of the drivers! I promise you it will wake you in the morning. Very loud.. Do not use as an alarm if you scare out of sleep etc., as we said before, it is LOUD! The clock movement is our quartz movement, accuracy to + or - 3 minutes a year. Uses 3 'AA' Alkaline batteries. (not included.) Silver and black finish case id 8" tall and 7" circumference. Dial is 2 1/4" round with black numbers and hands. Our ONE YEAR GUARANTEE! Suggested Retail: $49 95.

Mother's Day Tribute

Because 'I Love You, Mom'

Compiled by
LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — What's the perfect gift to give your mom for Mother's Day?

It's a printed tribute to your mother in Lancaster Farming. Guaranteed.

Maybe you forgot to write your letter in time to be included in this Mother's Day feature. Sorry you missed it, but you certainly won't want to miss reading about other moms and grandmoms.

Here are the letters written alias toddlers to retirees. Letters about wives, moms, grandmoms, great grandmoms, soon-to-be moms, and daughters in progress.

Even it you do not know the women for whom the tributes were written, you will laugh, cry and gasp as you read about the mothers and grandmothers who make the world go round.

Happy reading on this special Mother's Day!

Today, I would like to honor my mother Ethel (Midge Summers) Maitland, my friend. We have heard many interesting stories about her growing up with 14 brothers and sisters. What a joy her family is to us!

I'ms so proud of her concern and courage that led her to join the army in World War II, where as a sergeant, she met my dad. After the war, marriage, and some moves, they settled in a valley in Narvon, where my sister, two brothers, and I grew up. We were a normal family with good times and some squabbles, but there is an enduring memory of always being loved!

Although my mother had a small hair dressing business, she was always there for us. Even as teens and working adults, we would come home to find her and a warm supper waiting. There are many happy memories of trips with Mother and Dad, especially camping. They wanted us to enjoy nature and the simple things of life. My mother excelled in taking care of my dad before he died. Her love and submission were beautiful to see.

Today, she loves each child, each in-law, and each grandchild dearly and intercedes to our heavenly Father daily for us. (Yes, by God's grace we are all in God's family, too). She is unassuming, yet well informed about the times we are living in. A time stands out that typifies my mother: recently, as she was visiting us and not feeling well, she braced herself holding onto a chair and the kitchen counter, and offered to dry dishes for me. My mother, always giving, always serving! Today, I arise and call her blessed!

V. Hillard
Narvon

Gay Brownlee. My mother. How can I adequately describe her? Webster's defines mother as being a "female parent" yet my mother, of necessity, was the male parent as well. By herself, she raised, instructed, nurtured, disciplined, but most of all, loved six children.

When thinking of my mother, it is her great love for her family that stands out. Through the very hardest of times as a single parent, that abiding love gave our family a secure, solid foundation. We always knew that she would be there for us no matter what the situation or problem. The same still holds true today, although we have reached adulthood and lead our own lives.

Next to her love, my mother's sense of humor is what I treasure most. She has a wonderful capacity for laughter, which was given to her by her mother. She finds life full of the absurd and comical and has a true appreciation for both. We children have learned to laugh at ourselves and not take life too seriously. Mother also has the distinction of making her new grandson, at just four-months-old, break into laughter and this with just one look. Our family gatherings are punctuated by merriment and fun, thanks to mother.

My mother. She is a friend, confidant, and mentor as well as the "female parent." As I think about her a favorite passage from the Bible comes to mind. "Her children arise and call her blessed...Many women do noble things but you surpass them all." Proverbs 31:28a-29.

Mrs. Florence Ziegenfuss with great granddaughter Kimberly Dawn and son Alton.

My mother was born May 28, 1910. She lost her mother when she was two years old. Raised mostly by a kindly aunt, she worked hard, attended Sunday school and church. She married my dad on June 20, 1931, right during the great Depression.

Still farming in Chennyville, though in their 80s, my parents are a blessing and example to their two children, nine grandchildren and nine great grandchildren.

TO BARBARA BERNARDINI
My Favorite & Only Mother-in-Law

Mothers and Fathers
Have their days,
For My Mother-in-Law
I too give praise!

Dear Barbara's a wonder,
And a jolly joy,
So gladly declares her
Son-in-Law Roy.

She gave true treasure—
Helen, my Wife.
Now Barbara too enriches
My heart, my life.

Thanks and Love to Barbara,
I express with awe,
To my one, my only,
My Mother-in-Law!

Kitty Foor and daughter Ashleigh.

My wife Kitty is the one responsible for making our house a home and "holding it all together," when my farming schedule pulls me in 10 different directions. Kitty is a good-hearted country girl that understands late nights in the field picking up hay, the muddy footprints across the kitchen floor, the manure-caked coveralls, the bawling of newly weaned claves, and all the other fun things associated with farming.

Kitty has a B.S. degree in animal science from Delaware Valley College and is presently going to school part time to get her nursing degree from Lynchburg College in Virginia. We have a daughter Ashleigh, 2½ -years old. Our second child is due around Mother's Day.

I'm very thankful to be married to such a wonderful person and that she's the mother of my children. Happy Mother's Day, Kitty.

Meagan Dourte with Grandmother Janice Ruhl

My grandma is the best grandma in the world because she loves me so much. She has pretty red hair just like me. I like to visit her house because there are so many things to do. Sometimes she teaches me to cook. She taught me how to make the best pancakes in the whole wide world. I spend every Friday night at her house. Every Saturday morning we have either pancakes, French toast or oatmeal. They are my three favorite breakfast foods. My grandma makes them better than anyone I know.

I especially like to spend time at her house during foaling season. We sleep in our clothes so when the horse starts to have the baby, we just grab our shoes. We do so many things that have to do with the horses. Every year, they take horses to the State Farm Show. I like to help Grandma braid the tails and manes. My favorite time is when she wins a ribbon in a cart class. I am really proud of her for winning any place.

My grandma also has sheep on her farm. During the spring, I like to go to her house to watch the lambs playing in the fields. My grandma and I do many things together. One is planting flowers. Last year we planted a whole flower bed together. Once in a while I go to her office and help. If I go on Fridays, I get to hand out paychecks! I also get to shred paper to be recycled. I also give papers to the workers. Sometimes I help her on the computer with typing in files. I really like to spend time with her. My grandma is the nicest person in the world. I love her so much.

My mom is the best mom because she makes sure that I eat the right food. She doesn't let me have Nuturasweet. She tells me that it kills brain cells. I believe her. I do not drink any Nuturasweet. My dad syas that he has lots of brain cells to kill.

My mother is really nice. She has green eyes and brown hair. She has two kids, my brother Ian and me. Ian will be four in July and I am 11.

She helps me with my homework when I don't understand it. She also plays with Ian while I'm at school.

In the summer, she likes to take walks in the woods, go camping, and to the beach.

We don't have a farm, but if we did, mom would want Scotch Highland Cows. She likes them a lot. We drive aournd looking for them sometimes.

She also likes clowns. Her birthday is in August. I love her a lot!!!

'I Love You, Mom'

I don't know why I'm writing this. I don't like my mother. Actually, she drives me crazy. I talk to her almost every day, and a week doesn't pass that I don't see her at least twice.

I still tell her what is going on in my life. I mean, she expects it. She always listens when I tell things that bother me, and she usually has advice. Sometimes it's advice I don't want to here. And what makes me even madder, usually it's good advice. The woman is still one of the smartest people I know.

Now she has my kids for grandchildren, and even though she has a job since daddy died, she still has time to teach them all the beautiful songs and stories she taught me as a child. I mean, what am I to do. I thought I was the one that was going to get to tell those stories and teach those songs. Now all I do is get to sing along with the kids on the way to and from Nanna's house, and tell stories about Nanna when I was a kid. The kids think it's hilarious, but I'm sure if I think about it long enough, I'll figure out a way that this isn't right.

You know what else? She still makes better chocolate chip cookies than I do. Even though I use her recipe. I think she must have left out an ingredient on purpose when she gave it to me. Of course, she raves about my shoo-fly pie and makes me make it at every family gathering. I think that's just because she doesn't like to make shoo-fly pie.

I mean, what am I supposed to do with a mother like this?

This year, my oldest daughter wanted a special Easter dress. I remembered the one my mother had made for me as a child. Sure enough, Nanna still had it hanging in the closet (the woman throws nothing out) and Easter morning, my daughter had the most heart-special dress in the entire church. All because Nanna rehemmed it, washed it with the "good detergent" and pressed it carefully. You'd think she didn't trust me to get that dress ready for her grandchild.

And just because I work one day a week, she insists that my preschooler spend that day with her — not a day care center. Now my youngest will be deprived because instead of learning all the politically correct things a four-year-old should learn, he spends his days following Nanna around the farm.

What can I say? No, Nanna, I don't like you. Like is just too mild a word. I love you, the grandkids love you, and we always will. Besides teaching me how to be a mother, thanks for the future insturctions on being a perfect grandmother.

Our mom is a housewife and also the best cook. She cooks and bakes from scratch and cans and freezes all different things. She always gets phone calls asking "Can you cater my party?" Here's another one, "I need a couple of pies or cakes for a birthday party."

I wish that she could open up a bakery. That's her dream — also, to live in Alaska or Hawaii. She loves the beach and the snow.

My mom has four kids. She trys to make the best out of us. She takes us to lots of places like the park, fishing, and plays with us. She plays baseball with my brothers and we catch and fetch.

We always try to make her days special for her. When it's her birthday or any special day, we make her an award for being the best parent or mom that she is. And, sometimes, we make her breakfast in bed to show how much we love her. Like she does for us. My mom likes animals and nature. She also has lots of friends. Everybody says that she would do anything for you. Also she is always there for you when you need her — boy, do we kids know that! There is no other mom like ours!

Happy Mother's Day, Mommy. We love you!

Rebecca, Kyle, Linday, and Cody Woodrich

The Woodrich children write that their mom hates having her picture taken so they don't have one of her. But, they sure love her so here is one of them.

Mary Mosemann and husband.

My mother is very special. She had the ability and talent to keep a home running smoothly, raise children with love and compassion, while being a helpmate to her husband while running a business.

Her deep and sincere love for the Lord, and a constant commitment to her husband and family epitomizes every child's desire to have a mother like her.

Her children grow up in the knowledge that they are special and become unique individuals who in turn impact other lives.

I am so fortunate to have inherited this wonderful mother from my husband through marriage — Mary Mosemann.

She is too precious to me to be called "mother-in-law."

Now 82 years young, she resides at the Mennonite Home in Lancaster.

Mrs. Daniel Mosemann

I am thankful for my mother Ruth Rutt. She does many things to help people. She had many kind words of advice for me in my growing up years. She taught me love, patience, kindness, and the art of housekeeping.

She is a great mother to her 5 children and is very fond of her grandsons. She loves to work in her garden and flower beds and she also helps with the many dairy chores. Happy Mother's Day, Mom.

A VERY SPECIAL PERSON... MY MOTHER

As I was growing up, Mom, I realize that I caused you a lot of hurt, frustration, pain, turmoil, and heartache. But I pray that I also brought you a little bit of joy and sunshine through the years. While I was not always there for you when you might have needed me, you were always there for me. For that I cannot begin to thank you enough. With the ordeal I have undergone over the last several years, I recognize that it has been just as hard on you as it has on me, and I want you to know that your standing by me and being there for me has made it much easier. I have not been able to get you the things I wanted to for your birthday, Christmas, and so forth, but on each and every day I think about you and I miss you when we can't be together.

I want to take this opportunity to thank you for all of the times that you've gone out of your way to do something for me, and to say what I so often think but fail to say: Mom, I love you. I have seen so very many young people who've come from broken or dysfunctional homes and who have no relationship with their parents and each time it makes me so very thankful that I have two parents whose love has been totally unselfish and unconditional. While we've had our ups and downs, never did we cease to be able to talk with each other or turn to each other. Mom, you are so very special, and I just want to wish you the warmest and most wonderful Mother's Day that you've ever had.

Your son,
Don K. Love

Dorothy Landis

My mother, Dorothy Landis, is a person who makes everyone feel comfortable. Always a caring person willing to listen, she is a Christian example of the mother I want to be.

Mom has become even more special for all her support in the last couple of months. On December 3, 1992, I delivered surprise twin boys who were seven weeks early. Mom drove two hours to stay with my 2- and 4-year-olds while we went back and forth to the hospital. She came again in January when the twins were hospitalized again. It was great to come home to a hot meal and a clean house.

She enjoys her grandchildren, reading, sewing, gardening, and taking care of disabled people while their parents are on vacation. She's a special mother and grandmother to her six children and 19 grandchildren.

We love you, Mom, and thanks for everything.

Kaye Martin
Lewistown

Our Mother

Many times she would play with us in the snow when we were young children.

She was an exceptional cook. Many remember her good pies and scrumptious dishes that she brought to family gatherings.

She always seems to have a "magical" green thumb for plants.

She would lend a helping hand and call when she knew you weren't feeling well and she would offer some homemade soup.

She also does volunteer work for the church. She has time to spend with her two granddaughters, Lori Hess and Tina Myers.

Most recently, she had the privilege of celebrating her 50th wedding anniversary.

Our most treasured memory of our mother is to know that when trials come to anyone in our family, we are certain she will lend her support emotionally and with prayers.

Esther Ober

From daughters Lois Hess and Linda Myers

GROWING UP

I see a small child playing there, gloriously contented
With the April breeze ruffling his hair.
Face taut and ears oh so red
Not aware it's time for bed.

To dream pleasant dreams tomorrow will bring,
When he returns to play and hear robins tenderly sing.
Each new day brings him rapturous thrills
Exploring all the nooks and nearby hills,
And like all boys who before him ran
Someday, he will become a man.

On mother's pride, God's gracious gift to man!
Guided from infancy, by loving hands.
What life's endeavor befalls you to do
Do not delay, mother's love will help you through.

Leave nothing undone, never give cause to make her blue.
Always, to thy mother's will, be steadfast and true.
No matter how painful may be your disobedience.
In your journey through life you will cherish her magnificance.
Try not her patience, too soon she will bid you adieu
Mothers are awarded but once to little ones like you.

Radnick of Bethel Park wrote this poem as a tribute to all mothers. Radnick had it printed on a photo poster of a little boy in a meadow.

Edith Smeltzer at her quilting frame.

Edith Smeltzer thinks it's a great life to sit at her quilting frame because she loves sewing. She quilts from three to four quilts every year for people that bring quilts to her. This is her winter past-time. She would rather sew than anything else. She also sews for neighbors who bring coats to her to shorten or put in new zippers.

No matter how much she sews, she takes time out to cook three meals a day and bake bread, cakes, and pies. When her children come home, they know where to go for some cake or a piece of pie. She will occasionally bake a pie or a loaf of bread for her children. Nothing pleases her more than to help someone else. When her children have some torn clothes, she sews it for them.

Although she had a hip operation two years ago, it did not slow her down. Occasionally she will use a cane, but she still sews and bakes as usual. She is supposed to be retired but I do not think you can call this retired. She has been married for 52 years but does not slow down.

Her husband, Merle Smeltzer

"A sunbeam, a sunbeam, Jesus wants me for a sunbeam. A sunbeam, a sunbeam, I'll be a sunbeam for Him."

The words to this song must have been written for my mother. Her kind, gentle face has been shining for everyone around her all her life. I'm sure she was not always happy with what I was doing, but as a child I could always count on her to be there for me and gently guide me toward the proper pathway. As a foster mother for many children, and a day care provider, she touched many young lives, all with her gentle, smiling way. Now, fighting leukemia, she has been in and out of the hospital six times in a year. Her disease has taken her hair and a lot of her weight, but not her spunk. She is still a sun beam. Her smile is always present and her faith in God is as strong as ever. Sarah Seibert (Linglestown, my mother, my sunbeam.

Our grandma is Kathleen Brandt, wife of Roy L. Brandt. She has been married 46 years and has nine children and 15 grandchildren. She lives on a farm near Millersville.

Our grandma was raised on a farm so she has worked hard all her life. We help her a lot in the garden. We help pick vegetables and go with her to Root's Market to sell the vegetables. Some of the vegetables we pick are canned to make chow chow in the fall. We like to make chow chow with grandma, she makes it fun. We make it in big tubs and only she knows how many handfuls of spices it needs. She gets it perfect every time.

Grandma is also a very good cook. We love holidays because we get to go to her house and everyone comes home. She makes each of us feel special. She knows what each of us likes and never forgets our birthdays.

We feel especially lucky because we live close to Grandma. She comes to visit us a lot on Sundays. It's nice to have her come to our house for supper because she doesn't have to cook. We like to see her relax, which she doesn't do very often.

As busy as Grandma is, she always has time for us when we need her. She loves us, she helps to take care of us, and teaches us. She listens when we talk and scolds us when we are wrong. And though there are many of us, we are all made to feel very special in Grandma's eyes. And, of course, we love Grandma very, very much.

I'd like to take this opportunity to wish a Happy Mother's Day to my wonderful mother, Eva G. Burkholder. She resides at 290 Reading Road, East Earl, where she loves working in the yard and flower beds and keeping her little corner of the world beautiful. She works at Good's Store in the yard goods department where her love and knowledge of sewing come in handy. She attends Weaverland Mennonite Church, where she is Sunday school teacher to 11 three- and four-year-olds.

I want to praise my mother for the many times she sacrificed her own desires to do things for us when we were growing up. she was a working mom, but she still spent hours in the kitchen making good things to eat and hours at the sewing machine making dresses and flannel nightgowns for us girls. We looked forward to coming home from school on her day off to find her busy at one project or another. Sometimes it was freshly baked cookies, other times, something new for us to wear.

Mom's children are grown, and she's now a grandma. She is still busy in the kitchen. Now she sets the table for 19 on holidays and special occasions. She hasn't given up sewing either. Now her projects include sheets, pillowcases, and quilts for her grandchildren's beds.

Happy Mother's Day, Mom! We all love you!

Frank, Harold, Thelma, Chad, Eric, Duane, Staci, Jane, Wanda, Bruce, Justin, Drew, Shane, Harry, Sue, Sheldon, Trent, and Kara.

Dear Readers,

I want to express my appreciation about my mother. She's 46 and still going. She's such a wonderful person and I don't feel worthy having a mother like her. She is a caring and concerned mother to her children. I can come to her anytime and find her willing and ready to listen to whatever is on my mind. I owe my thanks to her for all she does for me — sewing, cooking, and much more. I can say I have a very dear mother and I thank God for her. Her name is Sadie. She teaches me about God and she is a very fine Christian.

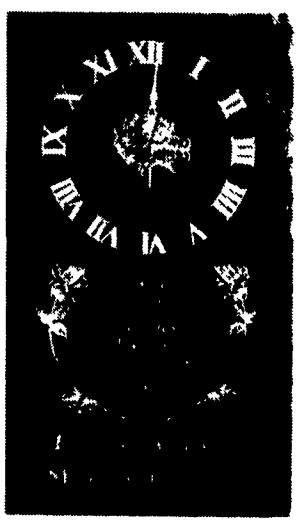
A Gift of Genuine Slate



Are you in the need of a new and truly memorable wedding gift idea this year? Consider a clock made of genuine Pennsylvania slate handcrafted at the Capozzolo Brothers Slate Company. The Capozzolo Brothers are among the few who actually practice the time honored tradition of slate mining and they take great pride in creating their many gifts of slate The stone used to create these slate gifts is mined at their quarry site nearby the famous old slate mining village of Bangor, Pa

The wedding clock pictured in this add measures 10" x 18". It features a clock dial and poetic wedding verse imprinted in bright gold Its most distinctive characterictic, however, is that the names and wedding date of the couple to be married is carved directly into the stone This handsome clock is sure to become a most favored and cherished gift for it will be used many times each day. The foreverness of a slate carving will also symbolize the permanence of the marriage itself

A simple double AA battery keeps this U S made, battery operated clock movement running smoothly for well over a year Since no outlet is needed it can be hung anywhere within the home. This clock will also make a lovely anniversary gift

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

We are slowly recovering from the loss of two beloved, long-time companions.

Their demise occurred almost at the same time, after having served faithfully and productively. Both played a role in our everyday lives, so much so that a sort of mourning period lingers.

It was actually a week earlier that the first symptoms of unhealthiness turned up in the computer. Busy writing for this column, I hit the key combination to save the last few paragraphs. Having lost copy in the past to sudden power outtages, saving the data to the disk every few paragraphs is just second nature as a protective measure.

But, the "Save" command brought only a "Disk error" explanation to the screen. Tried again. Same result.

Now a bit of worry set in. Perhaps the drive head just needed cleaned, though it had been done not long before. But to exit my word processing program and be able to go into the cleaning mode, I'd lose all that had already been written.

Luck held while I finished and printed the column. A telephone diagnosis suggested a simple, no-cost, interior cleaning job on a particular lens would probably render the patient good as new. I tore the system down, hauled the computer to the "hospital," and after an hour's worth of outpatient surgery, owned a computer with considerably less interior dust.

It worked! Until a week later. In the middle of another column. Another call brought a more costly diagnosis: probable "mother board" problems. Engine failure, so to speak. My system faced a major transplant — considerable expense with no guarantees — or replacement.

Consultation with a computer-whiz friend and a timely sale on a computer of considerable more size, speed and capability — and less cost than my dying, obsolete model had been — made the decision to "pull the plug" inevitable. Discovery that my old printer could be adapted lessened the pain.

While still waiting for the replacement surgery to be completed, fate swiped a second friend.

We had planted the pair of willow trees in the back yard when the kids were just small, probably some 20 years ago. One was a corkscrew, with curlicue, erect branches. The second, slightly smaller but more spreading, was a classic weeping willow.

The kids rarely played in the corkscrew willow; its growth habit was too tight and dense. But the weeping willow, which had split early into two distinct trunks, was a natural jungle gym.

A playhouse platform in it could be reached on the crude wooden steps nailed to the one trunk. Cats spent as much time in it as did the kids. Yearly, a pair of mourning doves returned to build their nest and raise a family. Robins found the willow, which overlooked both flower and vegetable gardens, handy for launching worm attacks.

Roots of the willow now protruded from the ground at its base, making mowing there hazardous to the mower blades. But, in the nature of weeping willows, most of the root system was right there, near the ground surface.

After years of having rain run down the tracks, the moisture accumulating where the two main sections split near the base, the center of the graceful willow had rotted. Under the force of the year's latest round of relentless winds, unsupported by the shallow root system, half of the willow simply fell over.

Two days later, an early morning cracking sound signaled the collapse of the other half.

A new computer arrived home to replace the hole on the desk and calm my growing panic of having to write without a word processor. (Thanks to Shrewsbury Radio Shack computer surgery specialist Dr. Mike and his assistants Cal and Tom for their dedicated and good-humored guidance through this reconstructive operation!)

The gaping hole in the backyard skyline and the ragged hole in the border will take a little longer to be reconstructed with a transplant.

'I Love You, Mom'

Heidi Negley
Cumberland Co. Dairy Princess

She's not a mother yet, but she hopes someday she will be. I know she'll be a good mother. She's loving, kind, and patient.

She has been like a mother to a few calves, a pig a batch of kittens, and a lmab. She pitched a tent in the barn to stay closer to her pig that was ready to give birth. She even takes care of her brother like a mother hen, protecting him from harm.

I believe God chose Heidi just for the purpose of being a daughter any mother would be proud of. I must be the richest mother.

Joyce Negley

TO MY MOTHER, BARBARA BERNARDINI:

Thoughts of Mother bring to mind
A loving lady, wise and kind
Blue eyes that shine, pink cheeks aglow—
She is more dear than she can know.

When as a child I was distressed,
She put my petty cares to rest
"Not feeling well, what's bothering you?"
She'd ask, and then the truth pursue.

By her kind words my fears allayed,
Her care helped me be unafraid
Compassion, courage, Love and play
She taught me in her gentle way.

"And how are you, dear Mrs. Bloom?"
She'd ask as I from room to room
Would wheel my "baby" carriage fine,
Wherein there rested "Caroline."

While cooking if she burned her finger,
She suddenly became a singer:
"O my gosh, my gee, my jingo—
I (just) burned my Little pingo"

New seasons brought such joy to me—
For Mom another singing spree:
"Over the river and through the wood"
And other songs from her childhood.

At first, she'd sing and I would listen,
But before Long we were in unison
Singing oh so merrily
We cared not if we were "on key"

And now, Dear Mother, I ask You:
How can I give the thanks you're due—
As time goes by, the more I see
Life's beauty, joy, and ecstasy:

Rich gifts, please know, YOU gave to me.

Recipes From Mother's Kitchen

The aroma of freshly baked cookies and breads lingers long after the last crumb is devoured. The warmth of mother's and grandmother's kitchen is recalled each time we taste the foods which was lovingly prepared. Even if we use the same recipes, the food seldom tastes as good as mother's. But, cooks everywhere never tire of trying to recreate those childhood memories. Here are the recipes for which our readers retain fond memories.

LAYERED SALAD

1 head lettuce
1 cup chopped celery
10-ounce package frozen peas, uncooked
¼ cup onion or more, chopped
1 cup grated carrot
4 hard-boiled eggs, grated
½ cup shredded radish
1 small jar bacon bits
4 ounces Muenster cheese, grated
2 cups mayonnaise
2 tablespoons granulated sugar

Tear lettuce into bite-sized pieces. Layer first nine ingredients in a 9x13-inch dish. Save some bacon bits for garnishing. Mix mayonnaise and sugar; spread over the other ingredients. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate 4 to 8 hours. At serving time, garnish with shredded cheese, bacon bits, and sliced tomatoes, as desired.

MOM'S JELL-O CAKE

1 box white or yellow cake mix
1 large box strawberry Jell-O
1 container whipped cream topping
Strawberries for garnish

Prepare cake mix as directed on the box for a 13x9-inch pan. While cake is baking, prepare Jell-O by dissolving in 1 cup hot water. Add 1 cup cool water and let Jell-O cool slightly. Cool cake.

Make holes in cake with handle of wooden spoon. Pour Jell-O over cooled cake. Refrigerate. Prior to serving, top cake with whipped cream. Garnish with strawberries or other favorite fruit.

Instead of Jell-O, you may prepare pudding as directed on box. Add 1 cup confectioners' sugar. Mix well and pour over cake poked with holes. Refrigerate before serving.

REFRIGERATOR ROLLS

2 cups boiling water
¼ cup sugar
⅓ cup shortening
1 teaspoon salt
2 packages yeast
¼ cup warm water
2 eggs, beaten
8 cups flour

Mix together sugar, salt, shortening, and boiling water. Let cool. Dissolve yeast in ¼ cup warm water and add to cooled mixture. Add beaten eggs. Add 4 cups flour and beat thoroughly. Add remaining 4 cups flour and beat. Do not knead. Cover tightly and store in refrigerator until ready to use. Remove from refrigerator 1½ hours before serving time. Shape into 3-leaf clovers for each roll and place in muffin pan. Let rise until double in size. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes.

Dough may be kept in refrigerator for seven days.

My mother was the next to the oldest of 12 children. She learned to cook at an early age. She always made homemade rolls for company, which is a specialty of hers. We have 81,000 layers in partnership with my folks. My dad and husband work at full-time jobs away from home. My mom and I pack the eggs each day and the men take care of the maintenance. Three years ago, we built our new cape cod house beside my folks' farm house. My husband and I have two girls, Cari, 10, and Kristen, 8.

MOMA ROSA'S CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIES

1 stick butter
1 cup sugar
1 cup ricotta cheese
1 egg
1¼ teaspoon vanilla
2 cups flour
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
6 ounces chocolate chips
½ cup nuts, optional

Cream butter and sugar. Add cheese, egg, and vanilla. Add dry ingredients. Fold in chocolate chips. Drop on cookie sheet. Bake 10 minutes at 350 degrees.

My chocolate chip cookies never turned out good until my mother gave me this recipe.

HAMBURG PIE

¾ cup biscuit mix
1½ cups milk
3 eggs
Pepper, to taste
1 pound ground beef
1 chopped onion
1 #2 can drained chopped vegetables such as green beans or chopped frozen broccoli
6 slices American cheese

Brown ground beef and onion. Arrange the meat mixture in bottom of 9-inch pie plate. Arranged vegetables on top of meat. Blend biscuit mix, milk, eggs, and pepper and pour over meat. Bake 400 degrees for 25 minutes. Arrange cheese over hot baked pie. Serve with catsup.

Contributor writes, I'm sending this for a Mother's Day recipe because I have not had any children of my own or visiting who did not like this pie. It's easy, too, and high in calcium.

CORN FRITTERS

2 cups crushed corn
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon sugar
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons milk
2 eggs, lightly beaten
Shortening for frying

Put all ingredients except the shortening in the blender and mix well.

Melt the shortening in frying pan and drop corn mixture by spoonfuls into hot shortening. Brown on both sides. Makes about 16 fritters.

I remember my mother making corn fritters and taking them to Sunday school picnics.

She made fastnachts and raised doughnuts. I helped to eat some and she sold some.

She had two sisters and they came to our house to make chow chow. It was delicious.

Recently a cousin talked about the cracker pudding my mother made and another cousin talked about shoo fly cake. She made many kinds of cookies, pies, meats, and and salads. She entertained many people.

MCKINLEY CAKE PIE

2 unbaked 9-inch pie shells

Lower part:
1 egg
½ cup sugar
1 cup molasses
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup water

Mix together sugar, eggs, molasses, and flour. Add water and blend. Divide between 2 pie shells.

Upper part:
2 cups sugar
3 cups flour
1 cup milk
½ cup shortening
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 egg

Cream egg, sugar, and shortening. Add milk alternately with flour and baking powder. Divide mixture between the 2 pie shells. Bake at 375 degrees for 35 minutes.

BAR-B-QUED SPARE RIBS

Sauce:
1 #2 can crushed pineapple (in heavy syrup)
¼ cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon dry mustard
2 cans tomato sauce
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ cup vinegar

Drain fat from ribs. Combine sauce ingredients. Pour over ribs. Bake 45 to 50 minutes.

No M.A.M.!

"No M.A.M.!" That's what I say to the on-going conflict ot "Mothers Against Mothers." On this day before Mother's Day, I issue a special challenge to mothers of all ages, economic status, employment situation and family style. I challenge you to say, "No M.A.M.!"

Several months ago, I received a disturbing phone call. A woman shared with me some tensions she had experienced first while employed and now as a stay-at-home (part-time) mom. She told of how in the past she had made hasty judgments about other women. She remembers thinking that NO women leave their jobs to care for children.

To her surprise, once she chose to work part-time, she discovered other women who had made similar choices. She found that they were dynamic, intelligent women who were wrestling with some of the same questions that her professional colleagues had addressed.

My caller described how that had been a learning experience for her. She made some sad observations, and I began to ask, "What are we fighting for?" What is accomplished by putting another mother down through our thoughts, actions or subtle assumptions?

Employed moms, have you:

- ever sensed that others think you are slighting your children by placing them in a day care situation for 8-10 hours each day?
- winced when another person reports how your child took her first steps or called their name?
- donated extra cash to a fund raiser because you were unable to bring baked goods?
- felt neglected when you couldn't attend a Mother's Day Out or daytime Mother-Daughter event?

Stay-at-home moms, have you:

- ever felt uncomfortable serving on a community committee where everyone else identified themselves by job title and employer?
- felt bubbling resentment when another mom dressed in expensive clothing and driving a fancy car comments to you that she HAS TO work because her family can't afford not to have her work (especially when you're conversing while standing beside your 10-year-old used four-door car and wearing a T-shirt with slogans that are three or four years out-of-date)?
- been frustrated when you applied for a part-time position, a volunteer board, or a loan and found that people doubted your ability to fulfill commitments because you didn't have an impressive resume or work record?

Women have a history of being sensitive and nurturing. We are known for our strong communication skills and our ability to build coalitions — networks of cooperation. I challenge you to take steps today to put those skills to work. Feel confident that you have made the very best choice for your family. Then give other moms that same latitude to make different choices given their own unique circumstances.

Take an active part in screening your reactions so that we can reduce the amount of tension and guilt on both sides of the issue. Mothers need support and encouragement, no matter what "hat" they are wearing. Research has indicated that the better women feel in the roles they have chosen — no matter what those roles are — the more content their children will be. Supporting mothers builds a positive environment for children too. This Mother's Day celebrate the women that have supported you, and mothers accept honor for your own dedication. Begin today to put an end to mothers against mothers. Say, "No M.A.M."

Home Run Contest

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — For a third consecutive year, Pennsylvania dairy farmers, through the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, have joined forces with the Harrisburg Senators Baseball Club and Giant Foods to bring fans the ice cream "Home Run Contest." This is conducted as part of the Senators regular games and related promotional activities.

"The Senators feel that the addition of not only the home run contest on the radio but also the one in the park really increases the excitement in the game at the ballpark and over the radio," says Mark Mattern, public relations director for the Harrisburg Senators Baseball Club. "The contest increases listenership. We feel that when people sign up for this, it gives a plug for all dairy products and dairy farmers."

The "Home Run Contest" has grown and matured over the past couple of years. On the radio network, fans enter the "Home Run Inning Contest." A single name is drawn for every game with this contestant competing during the fourth inning of that game. If any Senator batter hits a home run during the fourth inning, the contestant wins 25 half gallons of ice cream. Contestants win a consolation prize, a half-gallon of ice cream, if no one hits a home run.

"In the fourth inning of each game, we pick one name and that person gets the entire half inning to win. If ten batters come up in an inning, you get all ten. We wanted to have more big winners in the contest," says Mattern.

"The good thing about the contest is that we have done it in the past. People are used to it, get excited about it, and look for the entry blank in our program. We've had a lot of people enter already and we have not been in town for too many games," adds Mattern.

Inside of the stadium, fans attending Senators' home games can also win ice cream. For each game, the Pennsylvania Dairy/Giant advertisement is stamped in one program. If a Senator ballplayer hits a home run over the ice cream billboard, in left centerfield, the program holder wins 25 half gallons of ice cream. A consolation prize is awarded in this contest, as well.

The dairy farmers are also part of the Senators' radio network, on WNNK-AM 1400, Harrisburg, and WCTX-FM 92.1, Palmyra. Milk commercials featuring voices from the farm system are shared with listeners. The messages emphasize the benefits of drinking milk. The Senators' network and stadium activities offer dairy farmers a great vehicle to get messages to consumers of all ages.

"Pennsylvania Dairy has been a solid sponsor from day one," says Mattern. "Everything the dairy farmers have done certainly has helped the Senators grow. Hand-in-hand, both of us are really moving forward by leaps and bounds because of the association."

Cook's Question Corner

If you are looking for a recipe but can't find it, send your recipe request to Lou Ann Good, Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address.

QUESTION — Mae Pugh would like a recipe for chicken rice soup like that served at Ponderosa.

QUESTION — Mrs. Kenneth Ulmer, Waymart, wants a recipe to can a mixture of mushrooms, onions, green peppers, and oil in pint jars.

QUESTION — R. Smith, Jonestown, heard about hunter green pumpkins, not squash or gourds, sold at a roadside market in Lancaster County and would like to know where to buy the seeds.

QUESTION — Mark Kopp, Tower City, would like to know what happened to sauerkraut. She said today it is shredded cabbage rather than the kraut she remembers.

QUESTION — May Ozinek, Flemington, N.J., wrote that on a recent trip to Florida, she and her husband ate at Shoney's the whole way down and back. At the breakfast buffet, Shoney's serves a delicious sheet cake that is spicy and filled with raisins and chunks of apples. The cake has a crumb topping and is very moist. Does anyone have a recipe?

QUESTION — Gloria Fready, Mount Joy, would like to know how to make French fried sweet potatoes. She tried making them, but they tasted soggy.

QUESTION — Evelyn Reinfeld, Halifax, would like recipes using buckwheat flour without yeast.

QUESTION — Patricia Corkell, Henderson, Md., would like a recipe for pickled garlic.

QUESTION — Patricia Davis, Dillsburg, would like a recipe for hard sugar cookies like those made by Archway.

QUESTION — Patricia Davis, Dillsburg, wants to know where to buy pasteurized egg whites.

QUESTION — Alverna Martin, Wellsboro, would like a recipe for mock pecan pie made with dried beans.

QUESTION — A reader from Potter County would like a recipe for fudge made out of goat's milk.

QUESTION — Mary Snyder, Manheim, writes that she planted hot Senano peppers by mistake. She froze them but has not used them. She would like recipes using this type of pepper, which could perhaps be used for gift jars of sauces, relishes, etc.

QUESTION — Karen Yourga is looking for a recipe to can strawberries in a glaze that can be poured right from the jar onto a cake. She has tried several recipes that bleed and turn pink. She would like one with a dark red color in which the strawberries are not mushy.

QUESTION — Edith Vuxta, Elizabethtown, would like a recipe for red velvet whoopie pies.

QUESTION — Sue Pardo, Jarrettsville, Md., would like recipes to use in a bread machine.

QUESTION — Sherry Craner, Bridgeton, N.J., would like a recipe for chocolate pasta, made with wheat flour. It is used for a dessert topped with sauteed strawberries and white chocolate.

QUESTION — Cissy McKeon, Birdsboro, would like a recipe for hand-dipped chocolate-covered strawberries such as those sold at Kaufman's in Pittsburgh. Cissy writes that it appears as if a layer of cream is between the strawberry and the chocolate.

QUESTION — Ralph Johnson, Sewell, N.J., would like a recipe for green tomato pie with raisins and a top crust.

QUESTION — Lisa Kerrigan, Bath, would like a recipe for Kosher Dill pickles that taste like the Claussen pickles that are stored in the refrigerator.

QUESTION — Peg Koser, Lancaster, wrote that in this column she learned how to make a tea concentrate using spearmint leaves and freezing for later use. She asks if there is a similar way to make a concentrate using fresh blue grapes?

QUESTION — Mary Lehman, Elizabethtown, would like recipes for rhubarb and a cookbook on rhubarb. One, that I'm aware of is "Rhubarb Cooking for All Seasons." For a copy, send $6 to Rhubarb Cookbook, Box 392, Hopkins, Minnesota 55343. It is small, but has 150 recipes in it.

QUESTION — L. Weaver, Ephrata, would like recipes or ideas to prepare cubed steak.

QUESTION — Fay Leslie, Woodstown, N.J., would like a recipe for spoon bread, which is soft and of pudding texture.

QUESTION — Maureen Wheeler, Kirkwood, would like a yummy recipe for baked beans that uses dried Great Northern Beans (not canned), molasses, brown sugar, onions, salt pork, dry mustard, and cooked in a slow cooker. She said that her mother had made them this way and unlike most bean recipes, this recipe had a sweeter molasses base and not a tangy catsup/tomato base. When cooked the baked beans were deep, dark brown. She thinks the recipe might have appeared in a '70s Rival Crock Pot recipe booklet.

QUESTION — Maureen Wheeler, Kirkwood, would like a lemon pudding cake recipe. She said her mother made it before cake mixes were invented. She remembers her mother poking holes in the top of the warm cake, just removed from the oven, with a toothpick and drizzling lemon glaze over the top. When the cake cooled, the lemon glaze hardened and "was mighty tasty."

QUESTION — Melanie Kozlowski, Kingsby, would like a recipe for chocolate muffins, a deep, dark chocolate muffin that is very heavy and moist.

QUESTION — Melanie Kozlowski, Kingsby, would like a recipe for mousse such as that served at Ponderosa.

ANSWER — Barb Hicks, Hawaii, wanted a recipe for homemade beef jerky, the spicier, the better. Thanks to Ted Wills, Frederick, who sent a recipe in which beef, deer or goose breast can be used to make excellent jerky. Also, thanks to Melanie Kozlowski, Kingsby, for sending a recipe.

Jerky

Cut strips with the grain (about the size of a piece of sliced bacon). Remove all fat. Prepare pickling solution.

1. Add enough cool water to an earthen crock to cover meat you want to brine (about 2 gallons).

2. Add kosher or pickling salt to water until a raw egg (in shell) floats.

3. Add about 12 bay leaves, small handful of peppercorns, 2 large tablespoons dry mustard, 2 cups brown sugar, stir until dissolved. Soak venison in brine solution for 24 hours in a cool place.

Remove from brine, wash meat in water, rinse out crock, add 2 gallons fresh water. Soak venison in clear water for 8 hours.

Remove from water and trim off any fat you missed the first time.

Dry meat: this step is very important. You want to dry smoke the meat — you do not want to cook the meat. If too much moisture is present, the jerky will not store well. However, if you choose to keep it refrigerated when completed, drying the meat completely is not that important. Use one of the following methods to dry the meat:

1. Hang meat on clothesline in basement (paper clips make handy hooks).

2. Hang meat outside on a cool windy day.

3. Place several layers of paper towels, repeat process, alternating layers of meat and towels. Place in refrigerator, uncovered. Change towels if necessary after 8 hours. (This is Ted's favorite method).

Place in smoker and smoke for 8 hours, usually about 3 pans of chips are required over that period of time.

Beef Jerkey

1½ pounds meat (flank, top round, etc.)
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
1 teaspoon liquid smoke
½ teaspoon garlic powder
½ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon Accent
1 teaspoon onion powder
¼ cup Worcestershire sauce
¼ cup soy sauce

Trim excess fat. Cut meat into thin strips. Marinate overnight in a shallow glass dish thoroughly covered with sauce made from above ingredients. Lay strips of marinated meat in a single layer on oven racks. With oven door open a crack, roast meat at lowest possible temperature for 8-12 hours. Taste occasionally, until it is as chewy as desired. Makes ½ pound.

ANSWER — Pauline Sensenig wanted to know where she may purchase Washington's Golden Seasonings and Broth. Someone wrote that it can be purchased from Dutchway stores in the gravy and broth section. Rose Blessing wrote that she purchased it at Karns Grocery Store in Harrisburg. For those who do not live near these stores, you may want to contact American Home Foods, Inc., General Offices New York, N.Y 10017 or Milton, PA 17847, which packs the broth.

ANSWER — Mary Lehman, Mifflintown, wanted a brownie recipe that uses mashed potatoes. Thanks to Rose Blessing, who sent a recipe for a cake made from mashed potatoes.

Idaho Potato Cake

1 cup butter, softened
2 cups sugar
2 eggs
1 cup cold mashed potatoes
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups all-purpose flour
¼ cup baking cocoa
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup milk
1 cup nuts, chopped

In a mixing bowl, cream butter and sugar until fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, heating well after each addition. Blend in potatoes and vanilla. Combine flour, cocoa, and baking soda; add alternately with milk, blending well after each addition. Stir in nuts. Pour into a greased 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 to 45 minutes or until cake tests done. Cool on wire rack. Yields 12 to 16 servings.

Reduced Fat Cheeses

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — In response to consumer demand for reduced-fat foods, the dairy industry has produced a variety of lower fat cheeses. "Light" versions of American, cheddar, Swiss and mozzarella are now widely distributed. There are also fat-reduced versions of Muenster, Havarti, Monterey Jack and provolone, but at present, these are not as widely available.

Fat levels among these products range from about 20% less than full-fat to virtually fat-free, with most at about 33 to 50% under that of their traditional counterparts. At present, the terms "low-fat," "reduced-fat" and "light" are not standardized by law, so the only practical way to determine actual fat savings is to read and compare nutrition labels.

Butterfat gives cheese its characteristic consistency, texture and rich flavor. To compensate for the loss of fat, reduced-fat cheese is formulated and processed differently. Some manufacturers add milk solids, while others use natural gums or fat substitutes. Reduced-fat cheeses do not "age" as well as their full-fat counterparts and as a result are usually milder in flavor. Also, as fat levels decrease, texture becomes firmer.

Generally, cheeses with fat reductions up to 33% are quite close in taste, texture and performance to the full-fat versions. However, as more fat is removed, the differences become more pronounced.

Cooking With Reduced-Fat Cheese

Here are some suggestions for cooking with reduced-fat cheeses, recognizing that the variations in fat content and formulation affect performance:

• When making a sauce with reduced-fat cheese, keep heat exposure to a minimum, using grated, diced or slivered cheese and adding it at the very end of the cooking. Remove from heat and stir until melted. The addition of such condiments as mustard, or salsa, or various spices will complement the cheese's mild flavor.

• Most reduced-fat cheeses melt smoothly when layered in a casserole.

• Top casseroles and baked pasta dishes with reduced-fat cheese near the end of the baking time and heat until just melted. Serve immediately. Cheeses with very low fat levels take longer to melt and may produce a "skin" when baked.

• When broiling reduced-fat cheese slices on an open-faced sandwich, place it as far from the heat as possible or use a lower broiling temperature.

• To "lighten" a favorite recipe without altering the flavor or texture of the dish, replace up to one-half of the full-fat cheese with a reduced-fat variety.

Storing Of Reduced-Fat Cheese

Because these cheeses have a shorter shelflife than their traditional counterparts, it is important to keep them well wrapped, refrigerated and use them as soon as possible.

Notes About Nonfat Cheeses

Nonfat cheeses — the cheddar and American types — are best served "as is" in sandwiches, as a snack, on cheese boards and in salads. They tend to have a very mild flavor. If desired, they can be enhanced with mustards, salsas, chutneys, red hot sauces or spices and herbs. Serve at room temperature for best texture.

The new nonfat cream cheese, as the label recommends, should not be used in baking. However, it can be used very successfully in no-bake cheesecake and refrigerated desserts. It can also be turned into a creamy sauce when tossed with hot pasta.

Triple Cheese Pasta Primavera

1 pkg. (8 oz.) spaghetti
1 T butter
2 C diced sweet red or green bell peppers
2 C sliced zucchini or yellow summer squash
1 pkg. (8 oz.) fresh mushrooms, sliced (about 2¼ cups)
1 C part-skim milk ricotta cheese
½ C (2 oz.) shredded mozzarella cheese
¼ C milk
2 T grated parmesan cheese
1¼ tsp. Italian seasoning
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. ground black pepper

Cook spaghetti according to package directions in unsalted water. Meanwhile, in a large skillet melt butter. Add bell peppers; cook and stir occasionally until barely tender, about 3 minutes. Add squash and mushrooms; cook and stir occasionally until barely tender, about 4 minutes. Drain pasta; toss with vegetables in skillet; cover to keep warm. In the saucepan in which the spaghetti was cooked, combine ricotta, mozzarella, milk, parmesan, Italian seasoning, salt and black pepper. Over medium-low heat, cook and stir cheese mixture just until hot, about 1 minute; do not boil. Add reserved pasta and vegetables; toss to coat; remove to a serving platter. Sprinkle with additional parmesan cheese, if desired. Yield: 4 portions.

Athletes Get Dairy Treat At Special Olympics

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — "What a great promotion. What a great and rewarding day," said Dottie Dunkleberger of Cumberland County Dairy Princess Promotional Committee. She said that the committee put on one of the most enriching promotions on April 13 and 14 at Cumberland Valley and Carlisle High Schools/ Football Stadiums.

"We passed out ice cream cups to more than 900 special children from 26 school districts at the local Special Olympics Athletic Meet," she said.

The athletes ranged in age from elementary through high school. They participated in everything from the 5-yard dash to the soft ball throw.

"We spoke to children and adults who had never heard of the Dairy Princess Program," Dottie said. The children were overwhelmed with the Cow Coloring Books and willingly sampled ice cream.

The promotion reached people of all ages with promotional materials. Several Home Economic teachers gathered up recipe pamphlets. They said that they would be able to use them in their class rooms, as they are always looking for good, nutritional recipes.

"It made your heart feel good watching these children. Even though they knew they couldn't win, they ran and jumped with great determination and always wearing a smile. We hope to make this promotion an annual event with our promotional committee. There were no losers only winners," Dottie said.

John Deere's Ready Rooster Communicates Safety

MOLINE, IL — "Sometimes it's good to be a little chicken." That's one of the safety messages for children from Deere & Company's newest safety information source Ready Rooster. Ready Rooster is introducing himself and crowing about farm safety in an activity book entitled "The Adventures Of Ready Rooster."

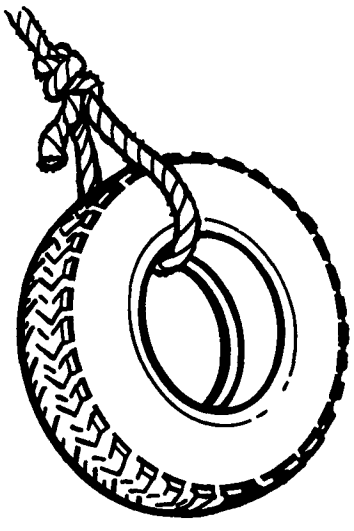
In the book, Ready Rooster shows children where to play safely around the farm and how to scout for dangers. He reminds his safety-minded little friends not to let anyone dare them to do something they know isn't safe. This is when it's good to be a little chicken.

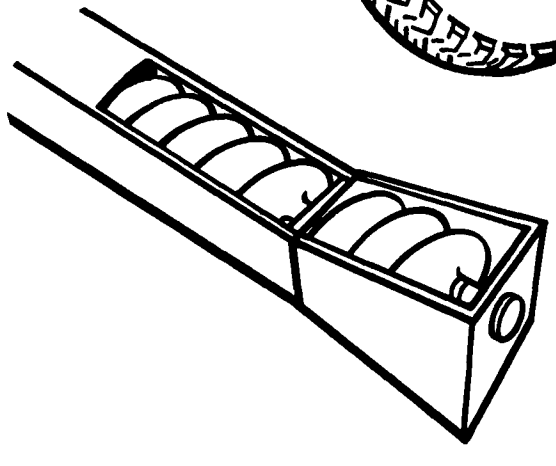
In addition to the safety messages, there's plenty to do in the book such as coloring, drawing, connecting dots, finding "hidden" objects, and using a secret decoder.

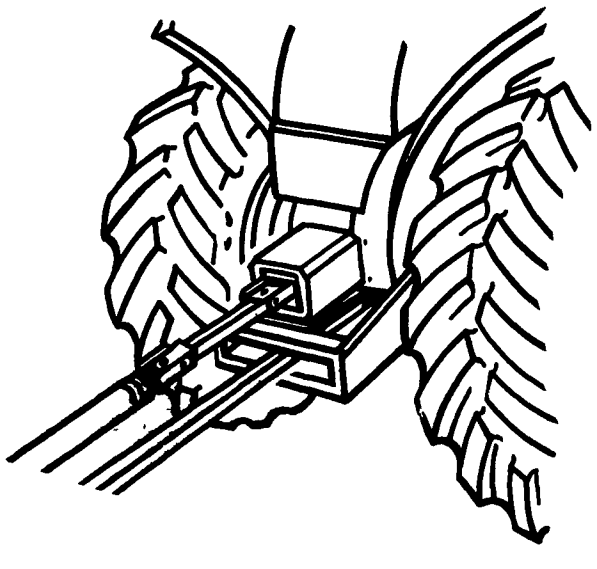
"We developed Ready Rooster and the activity book to help carry the farm safety message to children," says Bob Hove, project manager for marketing and training in the safety department at Deere & Company. "If we can help develop a safety awareness among farm children, we believe it will stay with them throughout their lives. Also, they can give safety reminders to their parents and others who help on the farm. Children can often motivate adults to be good role models and always observe safe practices around the farm."

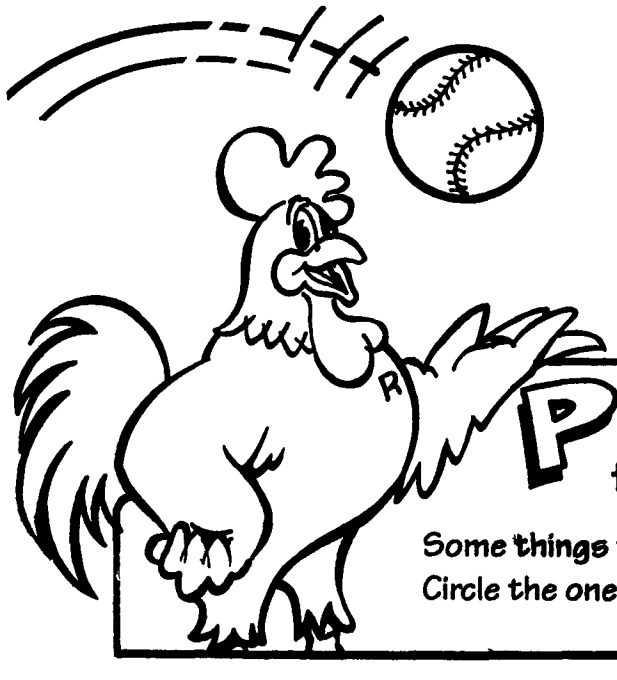
Information about how to obtain a copy of the Ready Rooster activity book (number DKB410) is available from John Deere farm equipment dealers.

THE ADVENTURES OF Ready ROOSTER
I have lots of special jobs here on the farm.
One of my favorites is helping the sun wake people up.
I'd also like to help wake people up about how to stay safe on the farm. I can't crow enough about farm safety.
Sometimes, it's good to be a little chicken.









Host Families Needed

Host families are needed for a group of French, Spanish, and German students who will be arriving for a one month summer visit or the academic year. The students begin to arrive in early July and a second group arrives the third week of July. Academic year students will arrive at the beginning of the school year.

Participation in the summer hosting program involves sharing home and family life with a student, ages 14-18, for a period of four weeks. The students all speak English, bring their own spending money, and Nacel provides medical, accident, and liability insurance.

The only real obligation of the host family is to share its everyday activities and to treat the student as a family member.

Host families are also being sought for the teacher chaperones who accompany the students.

Although families with teens are encouraged to apply, families with no children as well as families with younger children are also eligible to apply.

The exchange program is sponsored by Nacel Cultural Exchanges, a non-profit educational organization which is listed with the National Association of Secondary School Principals, the Council on Standards for International Education Travel, and the President's International Youth Exchange Initiative.

Nacel Cultural Exchanges is also seeking American students ages 13-18, who would like to spend one month studying in France, Spain, Ireland, or the Soviet Union or living with a foreign family in France, Spain, Germany, the Ivory Coast, Soviet Union, or Ireland.

If you are interested in hosting a French, Spanish, or German student for one month this summer or the academic year, please contact Local Representatives: DEBORAH MORROW, 56 Conoy Avenue, Elizabethtown, PA 17022, Phone (717) 361-8131 or call toll free 1-800-622-3553.

Trees Thrive

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — An old proverb says that to be immortal, plant a tree. Some gardeners may find, though, that trees are anything but immortal if they are not properly sited in the home landscape. For a tree to thrive, it has to become well established in the landscape; to become well established, it should be well sited.

"Site assessment is the key to good plant establishment," says Nina Bassuk, horticulture specialist with Cornell Cooperative Extension. The site is so important that Bassuk recommends that home gardeners choose the site before they choose the tree or trees they wish to plant, instead of first buying the tree and then deciding where to plant it.

First, test the pH of the soil where you think you want to plant a tree or shrub. Most plants need a pH range of 6.5-7. If the pH is 8 or higher, the plant you choose must enjoy very alkaline soil or it will not do well.

"Sites near a home foundation tend to have higher pH levels," Bassuk says, "because the concrete and limestone leach into the soil." She says that soil may be amended to raise or lower a pH, but only temporarily. Gardeners should never assume they can permanently change a soil pH without soil replacement.

A high or low pH doesn't mean you can't plant in a certain spot; it means you must choose a plant that prefers that ph level. Next, check the soil drainage of the site. Dig a hole as big as the planting hole would need to be and fill it with water. One inch an hour of drainage is the minimum that most plants need. Slower drainage could result in waterlogged soil.

But even wet soil doesn't mean you can't plant there. It means you must choose a planting that doesn't mind "wet feet." A grey dogwood may thrive in the same spot that would kill a sugar maple within a year.

Consider drought stress if the site is dry. Red maples, azalea, and rhododendron typically won't tolerate drought conditions, while forsythia and crabapple will.

"Of course, we're talking about established plants. Any newly planted tree or shrub should be watered during dry spells for the first years," Bassuk warns.

Are there structural impediments that need to be accounted for? For instance, don't plant tall-growing trees directly under utility wires. They'll have to be pruned or even cut down just as they are reaching maturity.

Planting large trees or shrubs too close to the home may destroy the desirable scale and perspective of the home and landscape, and require constant pruning to keep the plants downsized. This makes a high-maintenance landscape in addition to compromising the health of the plantings.

It doesn't make sense to plant a shade tree near a flower bed that needs sunlight, or to plant a messy fruit tree, such as the mulberry, near a spot you want to keep neat, like the patio.

If you like to see the dawn, or at least the morning sun, don't plant a large tree in front of eastfacing windows. When planting any tree or shrub, consider the effect it will make when full size, including the views it may block or enhance. Finally, don't overlook the most obvious needs of plants. Do they want sun or shade? How cold tolerant are they?

"Make good choices for sites so that you don't have to move mature plants or overly prune plants," Bassuk says. Answer all those questions before marrying specific trees to specific sites, and you'll have a better chance of establishing a tree that will be there for generations, even if it's not immortal.

For help with tree and plant selections for a problem site call your local County Extension Office.

KUBOTA MAKES LIGHT WORK OF YOUR HEAVY CHORES

Kubota's rugged, mid-size agricultural tractors are powerful, versatile, and hardworking.

Available in 2WD and 4WD, our line of L-Series tractors come with 20-49 PTO HP. Equipped with Kubota liquid-cooled diesel engines, these compact tractors are powerful enough for heavy loading, lifting and moving. Your clutch life doubles with Kubota's exclusive "Ever Clutch". And, transmission choices include the Kubota Glide Shift Transmission, enabling you to "glide" through 8 forward and 8 reverse gears without clutching.

For larger chores, our M-Series line of farm tractors range from 44 to 91 PTO HP and handle a wide variety of performance-matched implements. These fuel efficient tractors are equipped with Kubota direct-injection liquid-cooled diesel engines, and a choice of manual shuttle or standard transmission.

If you've got a heavy work load, and want power plus efficiency, look at Kubota's L & M Series tractors at the Dealer nearest you.

York Selects Cecilia Martin As Dairy Princess

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Cecilia Martin was crowned the York County Dairy Princess during pageant ceremonies held Saturday, April 25, at the York 4-H Center.

The 16-year-old new princess is the daughter of James and Rosine Martin, Spring Grove R3. She is a sophomore student at Spring Grove Area High School and plans to pursue a degree in elementary education.

Cecilia is the fifth generation on the Martin family farm and regularly assists with milking chores for the 90-head herd. The family, including her brother Chris, 18, who served as her pageant escort, also crops 210 acres of land. She is active in school and her church youth group and enjoys horseback riding in her spare time.

As part of her pre-coronation interview, Cecilia was asked by pageant emcee York County Commissioner George Trout how she felt about her agriculture background, compared to most of her school peers who are not from farms. Cecilia responded that she is proud of her agriculture heritage and having had to learn to work while she was growing up.

"I like being able to come home from school and go outside and enjoy nature," smiled the new princess later, in a post-pageant interview.

An original promotional presentation Cecilia gave during the program featured two large, comparative posters. One depicted a healthy athlete who consumed a balanced diet, including lots of dairy foods, while the other showed a greenish-complexioned "couch potato" fond of mostly empty-nutrient "junk" foods.

As York's Dairy Princess, Cecilia says she is especially looking forward to working with elementary-age school groups, since she plans a career teaching children. She anticipates having opportunities to "introduce a calf" to students during her upcoming visits to school classrooms.

Tanya Thoman and Kelly Jo Myers were both named Dairy Maids during the crowning ceremonies.

Tanya, 13, is the daughter of Gail and Gary Thoman, Dallastown R3. She is a seventh-grade student at Dallastown Area Middle School, active in school musical organizations as well as in 4-H and Junior Holstein dairy clubs. Tanya owns nine head in the family's Garwill operation, which includes 110 cows and 114 acres of cropground.

For her promotional presentation, Tanya gave a talk on avoiding osteoporosis, using the poster she designed and titled Mookey Cow Says Only You Can Prevent Brittle Bones.

Kelly Jo Myers, 16, is the daughter of Carolyn and Morrell Myers, Thomasville R2. A sophomore at Spring Grove Area High School, she is her class secretary and a track team member. Kelly Jo owns two Brown Swiss animals which she exhibits in 4-H. She is a member of the county's 4-H dairy judging team.

The poster created by Kelly Jo for her promotional presentation was based on a popular national dairy slogan and titled Move Over Cola Because Milk Is America's Health Kick.

Pageant ceremonies also included the naming of three Dairy Miss representatives, Lisa Jones, Erin Marks and Raechel Kilgore. The Dairy Miss and Dairy maid winners will assist the Princess with selected promotional activities through the next year.

Lisa Jones, 6, is the daughter of Patricia and Dennis Jones, Lisburn Avenue, Shrewsbury. She is a first-grade student at Southern Elementary School and helps to feed calves on the Delta farm of her uncle, Leonard Greek.

Erin Marks, 9, is the daughter of Barbara and Melvin Marks, Airville R1. A second grader at Clearview Elementary School, Erin's chores include helping to feed heifers and moving the family's dairy herd to rotational pasture.

Raechel Kilgore, 8, is the daughter of Pam and Doug Kilgore, Airville R2. Raechel attends second grade at Clearview Elementary School and helps the family with feeding calves and occasionally with milking chores.

Outgoing princess Shannon Doll, Glenville, wrapped up her year of representing the York dairy industry with the crowning of her successor. Through her reign, Shannon visited 15 school classrooms, wrote 14 newspaper articles, made 4 radio presentations, took part in numerous store and mall promotions, farm and non-farm meetings, dairy shows, parades and made other special appearances on behalf of dairy promotion.

Ready for their milk ambassador roles as York Dairy Mis ses are from left, Lisa Jones, Raechel Kilgore and Erin

Berks Spring Awareness Day Grapples With Issues

Laughter Lightens Changes, Challenges, Choices

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — "Laughter is the secret ingredient to health. It needs no prescription, is always available, doesn't cost anything, and is one of the few things that hasn't been taxed," Dr. Julia Cummings told 180 persons who attended the Spring Awareness Day at the Berks County Cooperative Extension on Tuesday.

With the premise that if negative emotions have a negative influence on the body than positive emotions have a healthy influence on the body, Norman Cousins, who had been given one chance in 500 to survive, surrounded himself with people, movies, and things to make him laugh with genuine belly laughter. Soon he was able to sleep without pain and returned to complete health.

Cousin's experience with the healing phenomental of deep belly laughter has prompted the scientific community to explore how humor plays an important role of relieving stress.

"The internal perception of the way we see problems causes stress not the external problem," Cummings said. She encouraged the audience to learn to look for humor in every situation.

"It's important to laugh at yourself," Cummings said. A vain, frightened, angry person can not laught at his or herself. Humor increases self awareness and enables us to see ourselves in relation to others.

Recently Cummings overheard a discussion between an elderly couple in the grocery store: "Ethel, don't buy that; it's loaded with preservatives," a man said to his wife who had picked up a box.

"Fred," the woman replied, "at our age, we need all the preservatives we can get."

For those who are dismayed at the political systems, jokes that poke fun at the system relieve stress. For example, "They say George Washington couldn't tell a lie. Today, politicians can't tell the truth," Cummings said.

According to Cummings, humor can diffuse the most volatile situations. She reported that a company had effective results when sending humorous letters to past due account such as the following: In checking our files, we found we did more for you than your own mother. We carried you for 15 months.

Cummings said, "If it were not for laughter, we would all be sicker than we are."

Many of the audience agreed with the sentiment as the morning session focused on issues of child abuse, neglect, and AIDS.

Child abuse

Berks County has two times the amount of child abuse cases than its neighboring counties, according to George Kovarie, executive director of Berks County Children and Youth Services.

He attributes the higher incident of abuse to the fact that countians are not as tolerant of abuse and promptly report suspicious cases.

While the agency seeks to protect innocent children, the irony of the system is reflected by the abundance of babies born addicted to drugs and the government's inability to intervene.

"A pregnant women who is addicted to cocaine or other drugs cannot be charged with abuse because the child doesn't have status until birth," Kovarie said.

One in four women, Kovarie said, will have had some type of sexual abuse between the ages of 0 to 18 years.

AIDS

Berks County also has one of the highest rates of AIDS in the state.

Amy Ortiz of Berks AIDS Network and Pat Childs of Rainbow Home told of the county's services for those infected and of the education to stop the spread of AIDS.

Rainbow House is a 12-bed residential facility for people 18 years and over who are terminally ill with AIDS. Rainbow House is a non-profit corporation supported by private donations.

Herb scents

Patrice Dyer, manager of the Village Herb Shop in Blue Ball, and Cindy Bishop, owner of Aromatic Essentials in Elizabethtown, demonstrated ways of growing and using herbs.

When container gardening, Dyer said that half potting and half gardening soil should be used. Garden soil should be sterilized by placing it in a 200-degree oven for two hours.

Herbs should not be overwatered.

Oil scents are stronger if herbs are not overwatered," Dyer said.

Dyer told of the uses for the many different herbs that she display. In addition to using herbs for cooking and for aromas, some herbs also repel insects and some such as lemon balm remove offensive odors from the air.

Pennyroyal leaves repel fleas and ants, patchoulli herbs repel silverfish, sweet herbs such as mint or lemon balm, repel moths, and tansy or citronella repel mosquitoes. Mice do not like the smell of mint, but if you want to attract them to a mousetrap, use anise seed with peanut butter.

Scholarships

Two $400 scholarships, given by the Berks County Extension Homemaker's Scholarship, were presented to two Albright students who are pursuing nutrition or home economics education. The recipients are Lynelle Harbold and Susan Leiby, who is a 4-H program assistent working toward a degree.

Have You Heard?

Eating For Pleasure And Health

When we eat for pleasure and health, how we fix food is as important as what we fix.

Cook with less fat. Prepare food in ways that take away some of the fat. For example, trim skin from chicken and fat from meat. Take fat off the top of cooked food.

Broil, steam, bake, microwave, stir-fry using very little fat, grill, boil, or simmer instead of frying or cooking in a fatty sauce or gravy.

Add less fat to food. Even small amounts of the following fatty extras can add a lot of fat. Margarine, butter, oil, shortening, bacon grease, lard, salt pork, mayonnaise, sour cream, cream, cream cheese and nondairy creamer.

Use less fat than the recipe calls for. It is easy to cut the fat in many recipes by one-fourth to one-third without much change in taste. Or use a "light," reduced or low-fat or fat-free product.

For good taste with less fat, season food with onion, garlic, spices, herbs, hot sauce, salsa, lemon juice, vinegar or other low-fat or non-fat seasonings.

Make one change at a time. There are many ways to fix food with less fat. Only you can decide what is right for you and your family.

Start with changes that are easy for you, and try one new change every week. Give yourself and your family time to get used to the changes, one by one.

If you find that you prefer a food with more fat, just use less of it or use it less often. There are no forbidden foods when we are eating for pleasure and health.

Eat less meat. Eat small or medium portions of meat, poultry and fish. Three ounces, cooked and boneless, is a good serving for one adult or two children. A deck, of cards is about the size of three ounces of meat.

When you enjoy smaller portions of meat, fill the rest of your plate with vegetables, beans, rice, noodles or bread. Stretch smaller portions of meat and make them more interesting by cooking them with vegetables in soups, stews, casseroles and stir-fries.

Use leaner cuts of meat. Trim fat away before cooking or set meat on a rack in a cooking pan so it does not sit in the fat as it cooks out. Baste with water, broth or tomato juice instead of fatty drippings.

Tenderize lean meat by grinding, pounding or slicing it thinly across the grain. Marinate it in a mixture of acid (like vinegar, or wine). Cook it slowly with a cover to keep in the juices. Simmer, stew, braise or pot-roast, for example.

Remove skin from poultry before cooking. To make the skin easier to remove, place it in your freezer for 20 to 30 minutes before trying to skin. This partial freezing also makes it easier to slice poultry or meat into evenly sized small pieces for stir-frying.

Use leaner, trimmed meats, skinned poultry and fish in combination dishes. Brown meat and drain off the fat that cooks out before adding other ingredients. Spoon fat from the top of soup or stew, or refrigerate and lift off the solid fat.

Use more dried beans and peas, vegetables, rice and noodles. Dried beans and peas have a lot of protein with very little fat - unless fatty extras are added.

Use a smaller amount of sharp or aged cheese, like Parmesan or sharp cheddar to get plenty of taste with less fat. Or use a lower-fat cheese, like part skim mozzarella or farmer's cheese.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Gift To Support Pennsylvania Friends Of 4-H

The Pennsylvania Friends of Agriculture Foundation recently contributed $1,000 to Pennsylvania Friends of 4-H.

This contribution will support a number of 4-H efforts, such as sending a 4-H member to State Achievement Days or National 4-H Congress, enabling a 4-H'er to compete on a livestock judging team, or teaching a teen about the U.S. government during Citizenship Washington Focus.

"The mission of the Pennsylvania Friends of Agriculture Foundation is to identify and support educational, scientific and charitable programs that further agriculture in Pennsylvania," said Richard E. Denison, the foundation's executive director. "We cannot think of any educational effort that is more important to Pennsylvania agriculture than support for our leaders of the future — the youth in Pennsylvania 4-H. We are delighted to continue our support."

The foundation, in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Farmer's Association, has supported Pennsylvania Friends of 4-H for many years. Other interested individuals or organizations may send contributions made payable to The Pennsylvania State University to Pennsylvania Friends of 4-H, Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences, 232 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802.

Chester Team Places Second

On Saturday, April 17, the Junior 4-H Dairy Judging Team from Chester County placed second overall in a contest at Delaware Valley College.

Nine teams from Pennsylvania and New Jersey were at the competition, where six classes of cows and heifers were judged. The team received one of three gold medals awarded.

Craig Nolan of Cochranville led all contestants with a score of 273 our of 300, earning him the top individual gold medal award. Kevin Nolan, also of Cochranville, qualified for a gold award by placing 13th overall. Other Chester County team members participating were Katie Young, West Grove; Mike Troop, Cochranville; and J.R. St. John, Lincoln University.

The team is coached by Glenn and Duane Stoltzfus of Morgantown and will be practicing over the next few months for the major 4-H competition at Penn State in July.

Junior 4-H Dairy Judging is only one of the many activities offered by 4-H. For further information about the 4-H program in Chester County, contact the Penn State extension office at (215) 696-3500.

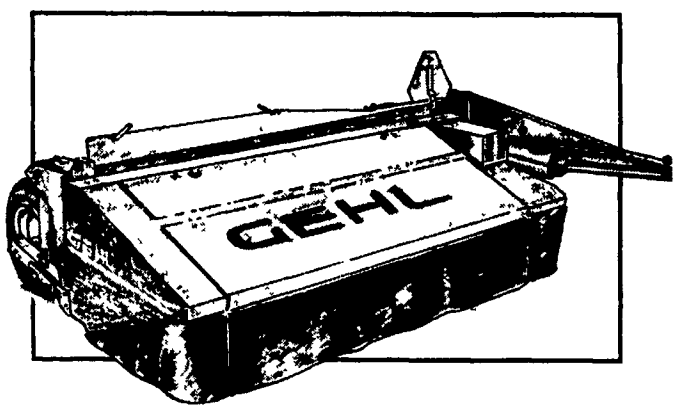
GEHL

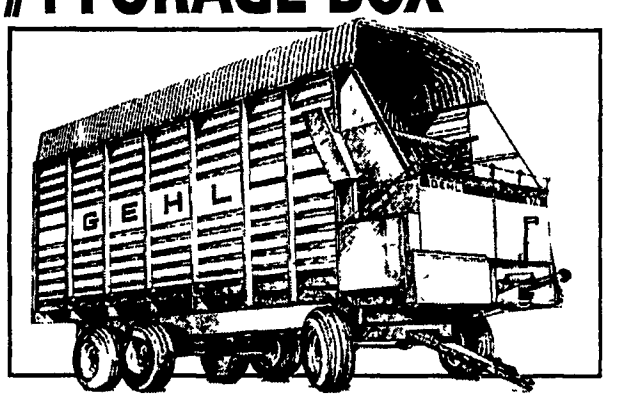
COST CUTTERS



Gehl has two all-new disc mower conditioners to cut your crop down to size, fast and easy. The DC2340 has 7 discs and a 9 foot cutting width; the DC2360 has 8 discs and a 10-1/2 foot cutting width.

- High speed discs – Each disc has two knives to slice through the toughest crops and conditions; the disc gear drive operates in an oil bath for long life.
- Sturdy frame – Cradles the cutterbar for extra protection and durability.
- 540 or 1,000 rpm driveline with equal-angle hitch for smooth power transfer.
- Standard hydraulic tongue – Makes it easy to position the unit without leaving the tractor seat.

NORTH AMERICA'S #1 FORAGE BOX



Gehl makes the best selling forage box in North America. Here's why:

- Five sizes deliver the capacity to match your forage harvesting operation
- 10-Year Warranty against rust-through on sides, endgate, stakes and roof
- Wide 23-1/2 inch cross conveyor extends nine inches beyond the box side, for easy positioning to the blower
- Even-Feed third beater has extended tines to break up clumps for smooth crop delivery to the cross conveyor
- Four-speed drive system features #50 roller chain for added durability
- Heavy-duty Gehl running gears match the capacity of Gehl forage boxes

EXPAND THE DAIRY HERD?

Roland P. Freund
Farm Management Agent

Out here in Pennsylvania Dutch dairy country, there appears to be a strong interest in dairy herd expansion.

We hear of expansion from 60 to 120 cows, 100 to 200, and even 200 to 1,600 as common occurrences.

If we examine history, we see that this is just a continuation of a trend in the industry. But, before we conclude that the only way to survive in the dairy business is to call in the contractor tomorrow and double the herd, it might be advisable to "push the pencil" and examine the alternatives.

This past winter my colleague, agricultural engineer Dan McFarland, and I did just that. We made presentations of our findings at a limited number of county dairy meetings in the region. We hope that this information will be helpful if we share it with you.

Are You Ready To Expand?

The normal advice of getting better before you get bigger applies here. An unprofitable small dairy will not become a profitable one when it doubles its problems.

Analysis would suggest that unless a dairy is in the top 25 percent in terms of profitability, it is unlikely to gain from expansion. Pre-existing debt must be manageable, and some surplus cash flow should be available from the present operation before expansion has a chance of success.

Dairies with a beginning debt load in excess of $1,500 per cow are likely to have greater problems. Some older owners should consider continuing to operate with a terminal operation, unless there is an enthusiastic heir to shoulder the new burdens.

The obligations of an expansion decision could outlive present management. Expansion will increase risk, and could force the owners to scrimp and scrape even harder for the rest of their lives. Budgets can help us to avoid mistakes.

The Long-Range Picture

Each management team needs to examine their resources and then set some objectives for the operation. Budgeting alternative strategies can help decide which combinations of cows, heifers, crop acres, and crop enterprises have the best potential for profit.

It is relatively simple to demonstrate that, for example, doubling the herd will pay for new facilities and increase net farm income. Bankers may even be quite willing to finance the expansion on the strength of the long-range picture. So farmers are tempted to rush out and hire the contractor.

The most important step in the process is to determine exactly how we can get to the long-range situation from here. Different expansion processes could be the difference between success and failure.

One Giant Leap

There is a strong desire to get where we want to be and get there right away. This may be technically feasible, but it could be economically disasterous. Let's look at a model of a doubling dairy herd which we constructed.

If we bring in a new herd and move into new facilities, we have a good chance that we will experience a drop in production of maybe 10 percent for at least the first year or two. The bank wants the new cows' debt to be retired within four years. Herd culling rate could run at 30 percent. But there will be no raised heifers from the new herd freshening for two years, so replacements have to be purchased. Meanwhile, the cost of rearing the additional new heifer calves also has to be borne. Labor requirements may double, so family living/labor costs will increase.

All these factors taken together result in the newly expanded herd, in the first two years, being unable to pay any more on debt for new facilities than could the original stable herd. If, in year three, production returns to prior levels, the operation will have a cash-flow deficit equivalent to any pre-expansion debt payments. In year four, the new operation could break even.

If the business began the expansion with zero prior debt load, and if labor costs and family draws were to remain at original levels for the first three years, then the "giant leap" expansion program might maintain cash-flow obligations.

Closed-Herd Expansion

When heifer rearing is well managed, it should be possible to increase the herd by 10 percent per year and still maintain an effective culling rate. This would result in doubling of the herd in a little over seven years, without bringing in outside problems, and with a good chance of maintaining prior production levels. We could have a stabilized doubled herd in year eight instead of year five with the "giant leap" alternative.

The slower expansion process enables the herd to grow into new facilities which are added as they are required. No new debt is incurred for cows or replacements. This reduces risks, but it is not without inconveniences. The new barns can be built and financed as required. There is a major problem if the parlor has to be built early in the process unless there are no pre-existing debt payments. If existing milking facilities (or a makeshift, low-cost modification of them) can be made to handle milking for six more years, then the expansion can cash-flow even with moderate pre-existing debt payments.

Conclusion

Our model suggests that the closed herd expansion is far less risky than the giant leap alternative. If you want to see the assumptions and computations upon which this is based, please write Penn State Extension York County, 112 Pleasant Acres Road, York PA 17402-9041, or call (717) 757-9657 and request a copy of "Expand the Dairy Herd?"

Every farm situation is distinct, and all its unique circumstances must be considered before an expansion decision is made. Plan on making your own long-range budgets, and then preparing a careful and detailed cash flow for every year of the expansion process. This should enable you to see potential mistakes on paper before you make them with concrete.

Next time we will look at economic considerations of dairy facilities.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Recently, I took a tour of Lancaster Laboratories with a group of "Church Women United" of Lancaster County. We toured their facilities in small groups. Our guide explained their work in improving the environment. We also observed their testing of pharmaceutical and food products.

Many farmers are familiar with their work due to the fact that they have their water tested for purity at Lancaster Laboratories. Here they also test ingredients in food products and check for shelf life. Sludge is checked for heavy metals like copper and lead.

However, one part of our tour was entirely different. You see, Lancaster Laboratories instituted a Chid Care Center in 1986. It wa a pioneer effort to keep employee who had young children. The started with 20 children and no care for 150 each day. The facilit is just two minutes away from th workplace and parents can se their youngsters at lunchtime Most of the women return to wor when the baby is three months old They even have a separate area t provide care for mildly il children.

An Adult Day Care Center i linked by a corridor and here dependent family members ar cared for. This way they do no need to be put in a nursing home Another place that we toured wa their Fitness Center that encou-

LEADERSHIP AT WORK

4-H Camps

NEWARK, DE — Cooperative Extension's University of Delaware 4-H is offering several summer camps throughout the state. The camps are always fully subscribed, so early applications are recommended. To be placed on a mailing list to receive applications for summer camps call one of the following numbers: Kent County, (302)697-4000; New Castle County, (302)831-8965; Sussex County, (302)856-7303.

A statewide teen conference will be held August 5-7 at the University campus in Newark for youths age 13 and older. The program will focus on leadership development and life skills and will cost approximately $70.

Times certainly have changed, as when my six children were young, I was expected to care for them in my home. And, my exercise included running after them and tending a big garden to help feed the family.

4-H Woolies

The Lancaster County 4-H Woolies Club met recently at the Farm and Home Center for their reorganizational meeting.

The results of the election were present- Tracy Bollinger, vice president- Peter Hoffines, secretary- Regina Landis, assistant sectetary- Amy Bollinger, treasurer- Lisa Reiff, assistant treasurer- Amy Hoffines, news reporters- Jill Hoffines and Jessica Schmidt, refreshment leaders- Raphel Peters and Jessica Stolzfus, and activity leaders- Ryan Tracy and April Leaman.

Chester Hughes introduced the 4-H Sheep Program to new members. Projects can be either market lambs or breeding sheep.

Anyone interested in joining the 4-H Woolies Club should contact Chester Hughes at (717)394-6851.

4-H Keystone Winners

Five Adams County 4-H members were selected as "4-H Keystone Winner" in six National 4-H Award programs.

The winners were selected on the state level through judging of a member's 4-H Accomplishment Record. The top 4 or 5 individuals in each program area were selected as Keystone winners and invited to Penn State for a personal interview on May 4.

Based upon the results of the interview, individuals will be selected as state winners and represent Pennsylvania in natioal competition and attend National 4-H Club Congress. Club Congress will be held in Chicago just after Thanksgiving.

The Adams County Keystone winners are Beth Green, Gettysburg, in food preservation; Julie Zepp, New Oxford, in dairy foods; Debbie Wilkinson, Gettysburgt, in horse and public speaking; Heather Hawkins, New Oxford, in Pennsylvania Livestock Association; and Mike Linebaugh, New Oxford, recreation program categories.

4-H HAPPENINGS

These prizes will be awarded to winners in Lancaster Farming's Dairy Recipe Drawing. This annual event salutes dairy farmers and shows how great tasting and versatile dairy products are when used in a variety of ways.

Win A Prize For Dairy Recipe

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — In a salute to dairy farmers, Lancaster Farming wants to show our readers how versatile and great tasting dairy products are in appetizers, dips, soups, breads, main dishes, vegetables, desserts, beverages, snacks, and salads. And, we want to give you an opportunity to win a cow — well, not a real one, but a replica of one.

Jot down your favorite recipe using dairy products and send it to Lancaster Farming for the annual Recipe Dairy Drawing.

If your name is drawn, you will receive one of the following prizes — all highlighting the cow: Afghan, place mats, milk pitcher, mail box, porch mat, Jersey cow plaque, Holstein cow plaque, towel rack, paper towel holder, stuffed cow, appliqued pillow top, padded photo album, "Pennsylvania Farm Women Cookbook," "From Mother's Cupboard Cookbook," "TMR Cookbook," "Schuylkill Fair Cookbook," or "Real Royal Recipes," recipes compiled by dairy princesses.

Please send your recipe using a sizable quantity of at least one of the following ingredients: milk, cream, sour cream, butter, yogurt, buttermilk, cottage cheese, ricotta cheese, cream cheese, or any other hard or soft cheese.

Print or type your recipe and be sure to give accurate measurements, temperatures, times, and sizes of baking dishes to use. Be sure to print your name, full address, and phone number on the recipe. Please include a few paragraphs about yourself or your family. Although it is not required, we'd like a picture of you or your family to include with the recipe.

All recipes submitted will be printed during the month of June. Also, included will be the photo and sentences telling us about yourself and your family. Our readers especially like to read these tidbits of information as it helps to make us feel like "family." Even if you entered the drawing other years, we want you to participate again.

Send your entry to Lou Ann Good, Lancaster Farming Dairy Recipe Drawing, P.O. Box 609, 1 E. Main St., Ephrata, PA 17522.

Only one recipe per family, please. Send it immediately as the deadline is postmarked by June 1.

4-H Horse Club Offers Youth Schooling Show

Backtrackers 4-H Horse and Pony Club of Northampton County is sponsoring a Youth Schooling Show to be held Saturday, June 5.

The show will be held at the Northampton County 4-H Center, Bushkill Center Rd., Nazareth and will start at 9 a.m.

This show is open to any youth under the age of 19 years. It will offer lead line, walk-trot, open, jumping, and gymkhanna classes throughout the day. Each class is $3 per entry. There will be a "special nonrider" trail class offered during the day.

This show is offered as a learning experience for the youth of the area. Francis Flaven from New Hope will be judging. It will be an informal show, so appropriate riding boots and hard hats are required. Entrants will receive help and encouragement throughout the event. Ribbons and awards will be given in each class.

There are age restrictions on certain classes and restrictions throughout divisions in the show. This allows all exhibitors an opportunity to participate and learn. All youths under the age of 8 years old must be on ponies in order to exhibit in this show.

Super Spreader

Double Rotating, Heavy Duty Expellors

Meyer Mfg. Corp. has developed a new style of manure spreader that can handle a wide variety of manure. The double expellor system rips away tough pen or frozen manure and applies it to the field in a smooth, even pattern. The new Meyer unit unloads out the rear, not the side, to prevent debri from coming back to the spreader and tractor. The Super Spreader is available in 260 bu., 325 bu., 360 bu., 390 bu., 450 bu., and 540 bu. units.

Two Large 20" Augers Help Prevent Bridging Problems

Our tank sides are almost straight up & down, not V shaped like other units. The augers are made of tough 3/8" sectional steel flighting. Our auger design cleans the bottom of the tank completely — no frozen manure buildup like beater type spreaders have.

For Your Satisfaction

Meyer Mfg. Corp. has developed a new style of forage box that can unload at a much faster rate of speed. This is accomplished thru a low range-high range variable speed system. Apron speeds range from 0-7.5' per minute in low range and 0-17' per minute in high range. The Meyer TSS also allows the operator to inch the augers free of material before engaging the apron chain. This box is available in the All Steel TSS or the TSS AL Aluminized model.

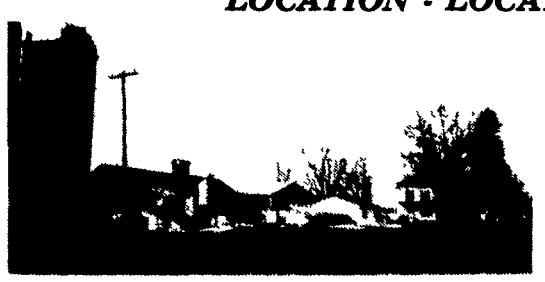
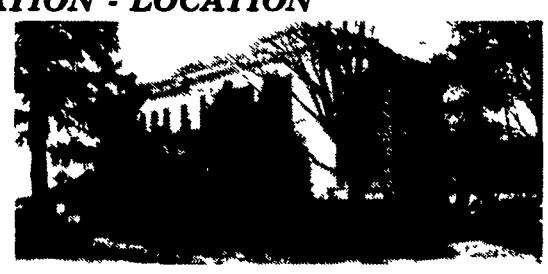
(17 PARCELS RANGING FROM 3 to 166 ACRES)
LOCATION - LOCATION - LOCATION





Parcel #3, the Farmstead, originally the show place farm of the area. One of the greatest Victorian homes ever sold. Needs a little paint outside, but you have got to see it inside. Has staircase like in "Gone With the Wind". Extra large modern kitchen; 5 to 6 bedrooms; excellent wood work inside; 2 bathrooms; 9 to 10 ft. ceilings. A home that rarely ever comes up for sale. Also on this parcel is a three bedroom 180 year old home; barn with over 100 stanchions and 2 silos; 20x40 greenhouse with 28x25 building; large garage space. Barn equipment sells separate. Parcel #5 has older 3 bedroom house on 6 acres. Parcel #16 has a barn suitable for horses or cattle on 16 acres. All parcels have wonderful frontage on Page Brook Rd. Lots of 3 to 12 acre parcels. One parcel has 166 acres.

This historic farm was started in 1837 and now you, the public, have an opportunity to buy as much of it as you want. Each parcel has been surveyed, flagged and marked. Parcels sell singularly, in combination or its entirety. IT ALL SELLS ABSOLUTELY TO THE HIGHEST BIDDER(S) REGARDLESS OF PRICE.

Terms: 10% down on each parcel day of auction. Balance on closing in 30 days.

PUBLIC AUCTION
June 12, 1993 11:00 A.M.
Valuable Farm
110 Acres +/- Farm in Windsor Township, York County, Pa.

Attention Investors, Developers, Farmers

Here is a farm with outstanding potential. The land is mostly all clear and rolling with a view for miles. There is 20 acres or so surrounding the house & barns. The pasture has a stream. Very nice setting.

Road frontage galore. Approximatley 1673 feet on White Oak Rd. Approximately 880 feet on Craley Rd. and approximately 400 feet on Blacksmith Rd. Public sewer is along these roads on the South on a downhill grade. Public water is closeby on the West and Northwest. Other developments are popping up all around this property.

The farmstead has a 2 story frame home in good condition. The huge barns were used for beef cattle. There are 2 mobile homes on the property presently used as rental units. The valley with the farmstead would make a beautiful setting for a farmette.

If you are looking for a farm to farm this is a good one as there is very little unuseable land. The cropland is in good condition with good conservation practices.

Call for an appointment to see the boundaries.

Terms: 10% day of auction balance in 60 days. Balance of terms by Rob Lloyd of Stock & Leader - Attorney. Balance of terms day of auction.

21 EXCLUSIVE BUILDING LOTS
PARTNERSHIP
LIQUIDATION SALE
SAT., MAY 15, 1993
10:00 a.M.

Southwynd Associates, Ltd. is dissolving its partnership. they will offer twenty-one exclusive executive residential building lots for sale in the elegant community of Southwynd. The Southwynd Development is only minutes from downtown York, near York Hospital, York College, Apple Hill Medical Center and the Country Club of York, and only 45 minutes from Hunt Valley, Maryland via I-83. Nestled safely away from noisy highways in a gently sloping valley and surrounded by woods, this premiere location is already the preferred community for executives and professionals. The large building lots range from one-half acre to 1¼ acre and all have public water, sewer, gas and cable.

Sale will take place on the premises and bidders are invited to inspect the lots on the weekends of May 1-2, May 8-9 and at other times by appointment. Some owner-financing is available for up to 75% of the purchase price if pre-arranged in writing before May 11th.

All lots will be sold subject to a one-time $500.00 Storm Water Pond maintenance fee and to a public sanity sewer assessment by Spring Garden Township. A non-refundable deposit of 10% of the purchase price is due when the property is struck down, of which $5000.00 must be by cash or certified check and the balance by approved check in 45 days.

SUBJECT TO SELLERS CONFIRMATION.

Super All Traction 23°

R-1

- New top-of-line bias-ply tractor rear, featuring our long bar/long bar design for tread stability, and heavy bar bracing to extend tread life.
- Long wearing and smooth riding, due to the more uniform, flatter contour of the long bar/long bar design.
- Proven 23° bar angle for traction and open center for self-cleaning.
- Bead and rim protector shields the rim to help keep stubble and soil from getting between the bead and rim flange.

SE REDUCTION PROGRAM

John H. Schwartz, Ph.D.
Lancaster County
Extension Director

Salmonella enteritidis (SE) is a major public health issue in the United States. Eggs have been identified as a source of SE in human outbreaks.

During the past four years, Pennsylvania and the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) have spent a lot of resources in trying to identify the risk factors associated with SE. Several risk factors have been identified. These include improper food handling, improper refrigeration, rodents, and poor sanitation.

Everyone has a role to play if we are to minimize the outbreaks of SE. The farmer must maintain an excellent rodent control program, refrigerate eggs promptly, maintain SE-negative environments, and monitor the status of SE on the farm. The egg processor must wash and sanitize eggs correctly, reduce the number of crack eggs sold, rotate stocks in retail outlets, and make sure eggs are maintained under refrigeration. The food service industry must make sure food is prepared under strict food safety guidelines and properly cooked.

There is a need for a producer program that will reduce the level of SE at the farm. The goal of this program should be to significantly reduce the number of SE positive eggs reaching the consumer. This program would emphasize the management practices that should significantly reduce the level of SE in the production environment and tests to monitor the SE status of eggs produced.

Based on the experiences of the SE Pilot Project, the project team is proposing a SE monitoring program for egg producers. The program will be a joint effort between the industry, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, and USDA. The goal of this program would be to gradually reduce the level of SE in the production environment and thus reduce the potential for SE outbreaks.

The proposed program would require from producers:

- To conduct a rodent control program.
- To test the environment of each house for SE sometime between reaching peak production and being sent as spent fowl. If the flock is molted, the environment will be retested sometime between again reaching peak production and depopulation.
- Houses with a positive SE environment would be required to clean and disinfect prior to placement of a new flock.
- Replacement pullets should have been tested as chicks and their environment tested between 12-16 weeks of age. The pullet houses should be engaged in a rodent control program.

Egg testing would be done when either an election was made to do egg testing in lieu of environmental testing at peak production of either a one cycle or molted flock or environmental testing at peak production was positive.

Food safety is a major consumer issue of the 1990s. The consumer is demanding that someone develop a program to reduce the risk of food poisoning.

By taking the leadership and developing a program based on scientific research, the industry will be insuring a reasonable set of guidelines are developed. This program will give the industry good public relations, reduce producer liability, reduce insurance costs, and improve flock performance.

For more information or comments on this program, contact Dr. David Kradel, SE Pilot Project, 1352 Harrisburg Pike, Lancaster PA 17601, (717) 399-8810.

By working together, we will insure the consumer receives the highest quality eggs possible.

Feather Prof's Footnote: "Food safety is everyone's responsibility."

Farmers Cautioned Against Illegal Seed Sales

DOVER, Del. — It's planting season. Farmers and gardeners are looking for good deals on seed, often from local growers.

However, producers who sell seed must meet criteria set forth by the Department of Agriculture's Seed Laboratory, and buyers and sellers should be aware of the requirements.

According to Seed Lab Administrator Dick Goerger, anyone who sells seed grown from a crop or resells seed purchased elsewhere must meet labeling and advertising requirements. An analysis tag containing the following information must be attached to each bag of seed offered for sale:

- Kind and variety of seed
- Lot number or identification number
- State or country of origin
- Percentage of weight of all weed seeds
- Percentage of weight of other crop seeds
- Percentage of weight of inert matter
- Percentage of germination and date of test
- Percentages of hard seed if present
- Full name and address of seller or labeler.

In addition, all seed treated with chemicals that improve germination or control disease must have a label that identifies the chemical used. Depending on the toxicity of the product, a caution or poison statement may be required, Goerger said.

These labeling requirements are designed to protect buyers from getting less than what they pay for, Goerger said.

Sellers also must be careful selling seed varieties that are patented and protected by the Plant Variety Protection Act. This federal regulation prohibits the sale of patented seed varieties without written permission of the variety owners. Goerger explained, however, that some varieties covered under a portion of the Protection Act can be reproduced and sold for seed by variety name and as a class of certified seed.

Many new protected varieties have come on the market in recent years. Goerger anticipates the trend will continue as the high cost of developing new, improved plant varieties makes it necessary to patent them in order to protect the investment.

Producers caught selling seed illegally can be prosecuted for patent infringement by the patent owner.

Producers with questions regarding proper labeling of seed or what crop varieties are covered under the Plant Variety Protection Act should contact Dick Goerger or Lisa Jones at the Department of Agriculture Seed Lab at (302) 739-4811 or (800) 282-8685.

All Case International 3900 disk harrows are equipped with field-proven Case International Earth Metal®, crimp-center disk blades, built-in furrow fillers, and other features that assure long life and optimum performance. The new 3900 Cushion Gang® II disk harrows provide the additional benefit of a more resilient bearing design that is 38 percent stronger than earlier designs.

Case Improves Disk Harrows

RACINE, Wis. — The Case International 3900 Cushion Gang® II disk harrows incorporate a stronger, more resilient bearing design that makes them superior to previous 3900 Cushion Gang disk harrows.

The new trunnion-style bearing holder wraps around the bearing, preventing breakage that can be caused by heavy spike loads. According to Kurt Schenck, Case product manager-implements, the new bearing design is 38 percent stronger and handles significantly more deflection than earlier designs.

The new bearing design has been incorporated on all units produced since the fall of 1992. It retrofits all 3900 Cushion Gang disk harrows, as well as all Case International 496 Cushion Gang disk harrows, with a special bearing bracket available as a parts item.

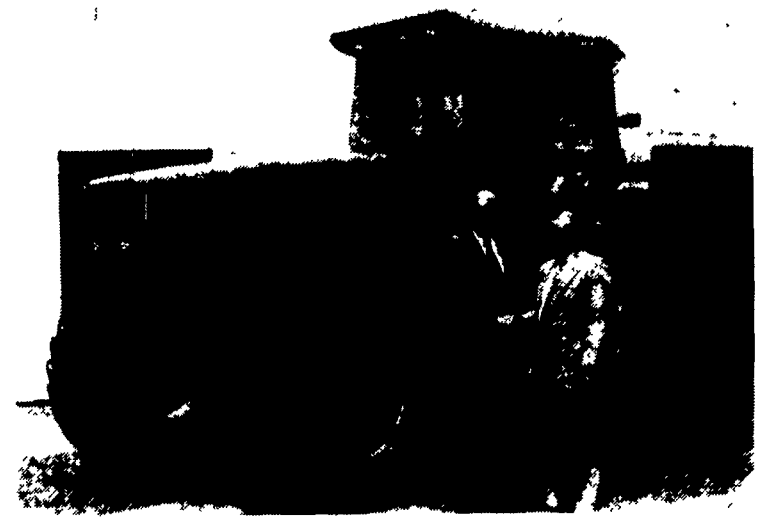
The 3900 Cushion Gang disk harrow is one of three models of 3900 Flex-wing disk harrows available from Case. All have 1.5-inch round, arbor bolts for strength and dependability. All also are equipped with Case International Earth Metal®, crimp-center disk baldes that have proven to have 20 percent longer life and 60 percent greater shock resistance than conventional blades.

In addition, all Case International 3900 disk harrows feature built-in furrow fillers, a self-leveling hitch to prevent gouging, 18-degree fixed-angle opposed-action front and rear gangs to guarantee a full cut with uniform soil mixing, and mechanical depth stops on the wing wheels for more accurate chemical mixing and complete residue incorporation.

The 3900 Cushion Gang® and Rigid models come with standard 20-inch blades on 7.5-inch spacing or 22-inch blades on 9-inch spacing. Sizes for all models range from 19 feet 10 inches to 33 feet 7 inches.

The folding design introduced on the 3900 disk harrows improves field-to-transport efficiency and over-the-disk visibility. Transport widths range from 12 feet 5 inches to 14 feet 8 inches.

Options include a soil mulcher, front gauge wheels for loose soil conditions, rear jackstand for use with the soil mulcher, bearing wear guards, safety lighting package, and solid or notched 20-inch or 22-inch Earth Metal®, crimp-center blades.



Charles Wonsidler, right, is shown in this photograph with AGCO President Robert J. Ratliff in front of the new AGCO Allis 9690 model powershift tractor. More than 800 AGCO Allis dealers and their sales people came from all over the country to attend one of two shows, which included detailed tractor feature/benefit presentations, training seminars, and an opportunity to drive the new tractors.

Wonsidler Attends Tractor Introduction

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Charles Wonsidler, of CJ Wonsidler Brothers located in Quakertown, Pa., recently attended the official introduction of a state-of-the-art 18-speed, full powershift transmission in a new line of AGCO Allis high-horsepower tractors. The program was sponsored by AGCO Corporation, the parent company of AGCO Allis (formerly known as Deutz-Allis).

"This newly designed line of tractors will have special appeal to loyal owners of the popular 8000 Series Allis Chalmers powershift tractors who have been anticipating this introduction," said AGCO President and CEO Robert J. Ratliff. "However, we also are confident the 9600 Series will not only meet, but exceed the expectations of any high horsepower powershift customer."

Aerotech Fans AMCA-Licensed

LANSING, MICH. — Advantage™ fans — from 9 inches to 48 inches — manufactured by Aerotech, Inc., are now licensed to bear the seal of the Air Movement and Control Association (AMCA), a international nonprofit association that tests fans for efficiency.

The ratings shown on Advantage Fan literature are based on tests and procedures performed in accordance with AMCA Publication 211, Section H, and comply with requirements of the newly-developed AMCA certified ratings program for agricultural fans. Ratings are based both on CFM/watt and air performance.

The performance and efficiency figures of the AMCA-licensed agricultural fans are a good prediction of the performance you can expect in real-life swine, poultry, and greenhouse installations. And they can be used to compare the performance of Aerotech fans with other AMCA-licensed agricultural fans.

"Growers and producers now have two excellent sources of independent performance data, AMCA and BESS Labs, to compare fan performance and predict total operating costs," said Robert Mitchell, president, Aerotech, Inc.

In addition, to being proven highly-efficient, all Advantage fans have Aerotech's exclusive Lifetime Advantage Warranty, covering defects in materials and workmanship in the housing, discharge cone, and propeller.

Aerotech markets a full-line of environmental control products, including fans, evaporative cooling systems, heaters, and controls. For more information, contact Aerotech, Inc., 929 Terminal Road, Lansing, MI 48906, (517) 323-2930.

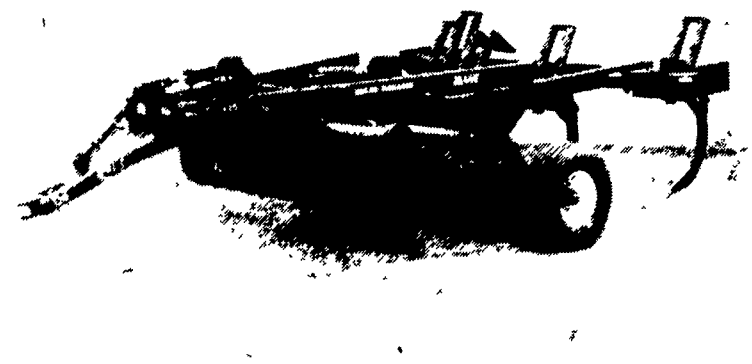
Mulch-Manager For High Residue Farming



GIBSON CITY, Ill. — M&W Gear Company announces a new fall tillage tool for high residue farming, the M&W Mulch-Manager.

A row of coulters, available with smooth, notched or rippled blades, cuts through residue without disturbing ground cover. Behind the coulters, parabolic manual or auto reset shanks fracture compacted ground with minimum surface disturbance.

The coulter gang cutting depth can be hydraulically adjusted from the tractor seat while the shanks remain at the preset working depth. Two models, the five shank Model 1125 and the seven shank Model 1575, are both backed by a three year limited warranty.

The Mulch-Manager comes complete with cylinders, hoses, transport lock and tongue jack. Coulter scrapers, safety lights, and a safety chain kit are optional. For more information, contact M&W Gear Company, 1020 South Sangamon Avenue, Gibson City, IL 60936.

GSI Acquires Ventilation Product

ASSUMPTION, Ill. — Grain Systems, Inc. (GSI), a manufacturer of grain storage and delivery systems, announces the acquisition of the AAA product line.

The AAA product line becomes a part of a new corporate division, Airstream Ventilation Systems, and will continue production of its full lines of ventilating equipment, including the Glass Pac, Maxi-Air, Maxi-Brute, Mini-Brute, and Mighty-Max.

Quality electronic environmental controls for swine and poultry confinement as well as extensive heating, cooling, and air inlet equipment will complete the product lines' diversity.

Administrative offices and manufacturing have moved to GSI International Headquarters in Assumption, Ill.

All inquiries regarding the former AAA Associates may be forwarded to Al Deutsch, Division Manager, Airstream Ventilation Systems, 1004 E. Illinois St., Box 20, Assumption, IL 62510-0020, (217) 226-3198.

Best Values in New Equipment

We hear you.

From the beginning, Case International MAGNUM™ tractors were built with you in mind – they have everything you want in a tractor.

You asked for more power and fuel efficiency. You have it with an 8.3-liter diesel engine with 25% fewer parts for outstanding simplicity. Like the one found in our 7150 model – at 215 PTO horsepower, it's the most powerful row-crop tractor available.

Smoother shifting was something else you wanted. With 18-speed full powershift transmissions, MAGNUM tractors start in any gear and shift from forward to reverse without clutching. It's a rugged, cast iron transmission that you can depend on.

And, we made sure that operating a MAGNUM for long hours at a time was comfortable. That there was maximum visibility. That the cab was roomier, cleaner, and quieter.

We listened, we responded. See the Case International 7100 Series MAGNUM tractors. After all, you asked for them.

White Distributor Airships Planters

COLDWATER, Ohio — Starting this year, the fields of Kazakhstan deep in the old Soviet Union will look a lot like the American Midwest as Kazakhstan farmers start planting their crops with White 6000 Series planters.

A shipment of 20 of the U.S.-manufactured 6000 Series planters was recently airshipped to Kazakhstan, which borders Russia to the south. In addition, two planters were sent to the Ukraine.

The Kazakhstan shipment was arranged through an international distributor for White-New Idea, Agro-Industrie-Projekt, located in Germany. Agro-Industrie-Projckt has been exporting White and New Idea products for twenty years and is spearheaded by Jochen Gaede.

According to Gaede, "This shipment of White planters to Kazakhstan is very exciting as it opens up a new area for us. We feel confident this will lead to additional sales of planters and other products."

The 20 planters sold to Kazakhstan will be distributed to 10 state farms and two cooperatives located closely to the capital Alma Ata. Corn and sunflower seed are primary crops for Kazakhstan.

The planters were shipped April 15 via the Russian Antonov AN124 Aircargofreighter, the world's largest freighter aircraft. The 22-planter shipment was fully contained in the giant aircraft's cargo bay, which measures 118 feet long, 21 feet wide, and almost 14 feet high. Four overhead cranes inside the plane are rated at 5 tons each.

The AN124, making its first visit to Dayton, was loaded at the Emery complex adjacent to Dayton International Airport. Emery assisted White-New Idea with coordination of the transportation arrangements, providing ground support services for the aircraft, and handling shipment export documentation and customs clearance details. Emery Worldwide, a global air freight company, operates its national freight sorting hub in Dayton.

Working closely with Gaede and the Emery officials was Chris Steinbrunner, sales administrator for White-New Idea. Steinbrunner regularly deals with equipment going to U.S. and Canadian dealers, but this shipment was an unusual experience.

"The details were extraordinary due to shipping on the Russian aircargofreighter. Because the deal was finalized in a fairly short timeframe, the details needed to be ironed out quickly for the shipment to occur as required. It has been the most interesting project for me since starting here five years ago," said Steinbrunner.

G&D Attends Tractor Introduction

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Glenn Bollinger and Jere Patches, of G&D Farm Equipment Co., located in Manheim, Pa., recently attended the official introduction of a state-of-the-art 18-speed full powershift transmission in a new line of White high-horsepower tractors. The program was sponsored by AGCO Corporation, the parent company of White Tractor.

"The introduction of the 6100 Series powershift tractors provides the AGCO White dealers with a completely new entry into the high-horsepower powershift market," said AGCO President and CEO Robert J. Ratliff. "Our White dealers now have a complete line of tractors ranging from 63 to 191 PTO horsepower — all in one color — all with the White name."

PSEUDORABIES SUCCESS STORIES

Amy J. Nesselrodt
Paul M. Pitcher
Federal Veterinarians

In this article, we will give case histories for several producers who became quarantined for pseudorabies and who, because of their commitment to the program, successfully eliminated the infection from their herds.

Producer A owns a 100-sow feeder pig producing herd. He chose not to vaccinate for pseudorabies, even though several quarantined herds were within two miles of his confinement unit. After one of his sows tested positive for pseudorabies at slaughter, a herd test showed that his herd had been exposed to pseudorabies virus and he was quarantined. He began a herd plan, vaccinating his breeding herd three times a year.

He increased his culling rate slightly, replacing old sows with purchased gilts. These new additions were isolated for 30 days and vaccinated twice before entering the breeding herd. A blood test done one year later showed that replacement gilts were holding negative. Two years after the herd was quarantined, a whole herd test was negative. After a second whole herd test two months later was negative, the herd was released from quarantine.

Producer B experienced a severe outbreak of pseudorabies in his 80-sow, farrow-to-finish herd in late spring. Sows were off feed, pigs died in the farrowing room and nursery, grower pigs were off feed and several died, and signs of pneumonia were seen in the finish pigs. He began to vaccinate the breeding herd, boostering the sows prior to farrowing and the boars four times a year. He began vaccinating feeder pigs at 12 weeks of age. He continued to raise replacement gilts in the continuous flow grow/finish building.

Three years later, a random sample of the breeding herd tested negative. A few months later, he began testing to qualify for quarantine removal. After three random herd tests were all negative, the herd was removed from quarantine, four years after the outbreak. This producer had very little disruption in his normal pig flow and was able to eliminate the infection from the herd using a sound vaccination program and good management to minimize stress. He recently retested his herd for pseudorabies and the results showed that the herd is still clean, one year after coming off quarantine.

Producer C experienced an acute outbreak of pseudorabies in his large (450-sow) feeder pig producing herd shortly after receiving new gilts. About 10 percent of the pigs in the farrowing rooms, several lambs, and a dog died from symptoms suggestive of pseudorabies. The lab confirmed this diagnosis in pigs showing signs of pseudorabies. Vaccination of the breeding stock was done two weeks after the first signs of pseudorabies were noticed. Vaccination was repeated two weeks later and then every four months. Culling and replacement rates were increased to allow the herd to be completely turned over within a 12-month period of time.

At the same time, farrowing rooms operated as all-in/all-out. Steps were taken to segregate older infected sows from young sows in the gestation barn.

Several months after the outbreak, testing began to show that vaccination and management changes were preventing virus circulation. Young sows were holding negative. A whole herd test done 17 months after the outbreak showed that only a few positive animals remained in the herd. After follow-up testing was negative, the herd was released from quarantine just 20 months after the original outbreak.

These cases illustrate that it is possible to eliminate pseudorabies from a herd without interrupting production. Two of these producers chose to renew their genetics and rapidly roll their herds over, allowing them to eliminate pseudorabies within two years of the original outbreak.

In the next installment of this series, we will report on the progress of several producers currently under quarantine and following herd plans for pseudorabies cleanup.

Electric Fence Deters Deer, Protects Plants

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — With the arrival of spring, many people are eager to enjoy the pleasures of their grounds and gardens. Unfortunately, in many places, so are hungry deer.

With the explosive growth of Maryland's deer population over the last decade, people in more rural areas are finding it almost impossible to maintain a usable garden or to protect fruit trees and other high-value crops from hungry deer, according to Jonathan Kays, natural resources specialist with the Cooperative Extension Service, Maryland Institute for Agriculture and Natural Resources. Even suburban residents living in more developed areas are experiencing increased damage to prized plants and shrubs.

Fortunately for them, said Kays, an affordable electric deer fence has proved effective in keeping deer out of areas up to three acres.

The fence is usually made of polywire, a high-visibility plastic filament wire interwoven with strands of stainless steel, which conducts electricity. A single strand of polywire is suspended about 30 inches above the ground from three- to four-foot-tall fiberglass rods at intervals of 30 to 50 feet. Two strands of wire also can be used, one 20 inches and the other 36 inches above the ground.

Aluminum foil "flags" are attached to the wire with tape or clips. The undersides of the flags are baited with peanut butter. When deer smell the peanut butter and try to eat it, they touch the flags with their noses and get a shock. The shock causes no serious damage, but is painful enough to leave a lasting impression.

"The baited flags are an important element of the electric fence," Kays said, "because a shock to the nose is more of a deterrent than a shock to the leg would be if a deer walked into the fence."

Electrical current is provided to the fence by a high-powered charger. Chargers with outputs of two joules or more are available from electric fence companies. An A.C.-powered charger costs the least per joule of output and requires little maintenance. In many cases, the charger can be located at a nearby power source and an aluminum wire strung to where the fence starts. Because of the pain caused by the charge, landowners who install this fence must address potential liability issues, including the possibility of accidental shock to children or other people.

Maintenance of the fence is crucial to its success. It must be checked every day for the first few months to ensure that the voltage is sufficient and that the fence has not been knocked down. The flags must be rebaited every six to eight weeks.

This type of fence costs less than conventional high-tensile electric fencing — about $277 for a three-acre area. It can be taken down and moved easily when necessary.

If you would like more information on baited polywire fences, contact the cooperative extension service office in your county.

WHAT'S HAPPENING TO PENNSYLVANIA'S PUREBRED INDUSTRY?

The most recent Pennsylvania Performance Boar Test sale occurred February 17. To say that demand was soft at that event is an understatement. But the sobering fact is that the two sales previous to this one weren't much better.

Now our state's purebred industry is in a soul-searching mode. What has happened to a once-vigorous demand? And more importantly, what does the future hold?

Retrospection

Pennsylvania, like most of the nation, began its transition to confinement production in the early 1970s. It was estimated in 1975 that the largest operation in the commonwealth was about 500 sows. Contract production formally commenced in 1977 when the Pennfield Corporation started production in a new 440-sow farrow-to-finish unit in Berks County.

During the 1980s, operations of 400 or more sows sprang up like mushrooms, mostly with contracts attached. These units were filled with crossbred gilts from breeding companies such as Dekalb, PIC, Babcock, and Pro-Genetics. At this time, independent 100-300 sow operations fell by the wayside, leaving many purebred producers hungry for customers.

In 1988, two dynamic decades for Pennsylvania's hog producers were capped off by yet another change when Hatfield Quality Meats instituted its grading program.

Why the Rush To Company Genetics?

The question is, why the rush to company genetics? The answer is, because there has been a rush to contract production. This has led to a demand for large numbers of gilts in short periods of time. With few exceptions, the breeding companies were the only parties in a position to meet the demand.

There are other, less significant reasons. First, with Hatfield's demand for lean hogs and distaste for fat ones, producers were quickly screaming for lean genetics. PIC, because of its reputation for high-value carcasses, saw interest for its product skyrocket (at least in Pennsylvania).

Secondly, following the rules written by the breeding company, producers could buy into a structured breeding program. This enabled the commercial producer to maximize heterosis, and, hopefully, productivity.

Was the product worth the purchase price? That's the $20,000 question, and one to which I have no answer. There is little doubt that productivity of breeding company seedstock, by any measure, can be met or exceeded with a sound independent breeding program beginning with purebred gilts and boars. But comparing the success of breeding programs from one farm or one company to another is speculation, especially when one considers differences in management and overhead costs.

Third, some have suggested that breeding companies produce a healthier animal. Hardly. They have their health problems just like everyone else.

Concentrate On What You Can Control

Those in the purebred business have little impact on trends in contract production. But there are still important issues that the seedstock producer can control:

- Quality. As a seedstock producer, you and only you are responsible for the quality of product you produce.
- Service. Personally knowing your customers and responding to their concerns are just two important components of providing service. This is an area that, honestly, a seedstock company should not even be able to compete.
- Records. Easier said than done. But every animal on the place has associated with it — backfat at 230 pounds, days to 230 pounds, number born live in its contemporary litter, and 21-day litter weight of its contemporary litter. These measures, when written down and summarized, form the basis for genetic improvement. The STAGES program uses records like these to not only document performance in an individual, but more importantly, predict performance in the next generation. Remember that most records on company breeding stock, if known, are kept secret. So here is another opportunity to give you an edge on the competition.
- Selling the best of a contemporary group. Every customer should, at the very least, have the satisfaction of knowing that his or her purchase represents the best of a contemporary group.
- Progress. Can you demonstrate to anyone that asks that you've made progress? Let's look at how, as a group, we've faired in Pennsylvania.

First, the trend in fat depth and loin eye area in barrows shown at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE).

Year	Fat Depth	Loin Eye Area
1960	1.3	4.6
1986	1.0	4.7
1987	1.0	4.6
1988	1.1	4.8
1989	1.1	4.9
1990	1.0
1991	1.1	5.3
1992	1.0	5.2

Between 1960 and 1986, there was a significant drop in fat depth. Since then, it has been relatively stable, and by industry standards, about average. Admittedly, these are barrows (which are already on the fat side). But these are also show hogs, most of which are hand fed in the weeks preceding the show, which should reduce backfat.

Secondly, producers are competing in a contest for a $1,000 prize, so we should expect the averages to be superior to that of the industry in general.

Muscle also remained stable until 1991, when loin eye areas took a nice jump. That clearly will help on a Hatfield system, but a decrease in fat depth would help a lot more.

Now let's look at trends in the Pennsylvania boar test station. First, a word of caution. Since these are ultrasonic scans, often done by different operators, we have to be careful making year-by-year comparisons. And because the measurement of loin eye areas are more approximate than that of backfat, they are not reported.

Finally, fat depth measures are rounded to the nearest tenth of an inch.

Table 2. Fat Depth of Boars in PA Performance Boar Test Sales:

Year	Fat Depth, in.:
1985	.8
1986	.9
1987	.9
1988	1.0
1989	.7
1990	1.0
1991 (winter)	.9
1992 (summer)	.7
1993 (winter)	.7

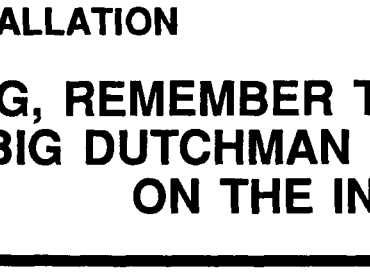
Some reduction in backfat, but not as obvious as we'd like.

It could be argued that these two programs do not represent the purebred industry. Perhaps not, but it is still perplexing that there is no clear response to the demand for leaner hogs since 1988, when Hatfield began it grade and weight program.

Where Is The Industry Going?

We'll always need purebreds. Because of the nature of contract production of commercial hogs, and because of the nature of company production of seedstock hogs, the demand for purebred boars and gilts has diminished. That's a given, and a factor over which you as a seedstock producer have little control.

To stay competitive among the remaining few, you must provide a quality product, prove the quality of the product with records, give your customers the best in a contemporary group, demonstrate your dedication with consistent service, and be able to document progress to yourself and to the world.



Grain Dryers Have 540 To 2,160-Bushel Capacity

ASSUMPTION, Ill. — Top Dry is a fast and energy efficient grain dryer available from Grain Systems, Inc.

This unique system is basically a crop drier located in the roof of a bin. A layer of grain in the overhead drying chamber is dumped by gravity after being dried by a large fan and heater.

A smaller aeration fan below runs continuously, cooling the hot dried grain. The air from the cooling fan captures heat from the hot dried grain below, and rises through a new layer of wet grain above. This recycling of heat increases efficiency which reduces drying costs dramatically.

Batch capacities for Top Dry range from 540 to 2,160 bushels. Drying capacities range from 100 to 1,000 bushels per hour based on 10-point moisture removal.

The Top Dry system doubles as a storage bin after harvest with storage capacities from 2,914 to 20,938 bushels. Top Dry is available in both manual batch and fully automatic flow versions.

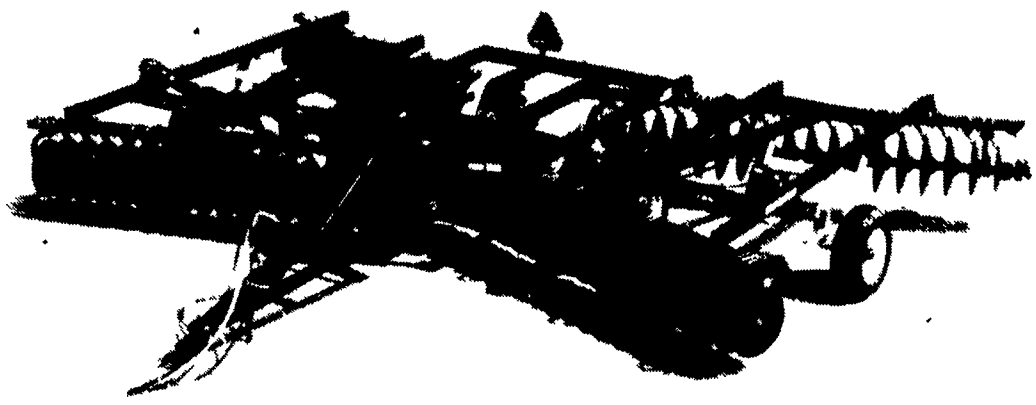
Disc Harrow Targets Residue Management



The 3950 Series is a rugged addition to the famous Krause line of Flex-Wing disc harrows. A medium duty disc harrow offered in 21-27-foot models, the 3950 is available in a wide array of configurations.

HUTCHINSON, Kan. — The 3950 Series is a rugged addition to the famous Krause line of Flex-Wing disc harrows.

A medium duty disc harrow offered in 21-27-foot models, the 3950 is available in a wide array of configurations. The 3950 Series is the first disc harrow designed from the ground up with residue management practices in mind.

The 3950 Series discs can be ordered with 22-inch shallow concavity residue management blades on 7¼ -inch spacing, which have 15 percent less concavity than standard blades. The shallow concavity blades provide excellent finishing and leveling action, while leaving more residue on the soil surface. For deeper tillage and cutting heavy residue, 22-inch blades on 9¼ -inch spacing deliver the performance you need. Gang angles on the 3950 Series are fixed at 17 degrees front and rear.

The 3950 Series carries on the Krause tradition of overlapping disc gangs to eliminate the untilled center strip left by conventional tandem discs. A new self-leveling system automatically levels the disc when working depth changes are made. A handy turnbuckle on the tongue provides rapid fine tuning to match specific field conditions. Wing leveling is convenient and accurate with a new "eyebolt" adjustment on the wing rocker shafts and a new front mounted hydraulic road lock makes safe transport as easy as turning a lever.

The 3950 is available in standard bearing arm configurations or Rock-Flex models for maximum performance in rocky soil conditions. Long-life, regreasable SuperSeal bearings are standard equipment on all Krause disc harrows.

The three-section 3950 Series flex-wing discs feature overcenter fold for easy road transport. All models fold to a transport width of just 13 feet 4 inches. Transport height ranges from 10 feet 8 inches to 13 feet 5 inches.

Optional attachments include wing guage wheels and a two or three-row tine harrow for planter ready seedbeds.

For complete information on the Krause 3950 Series disc harrows, contact Krause Corporation, PO Box 2707, Hutchinson, KS 67504-2707, (316) 663-6161.

"The AgMaster difference really shows up in my forage test results!"

"I've used AgMaster Inoculants for the past three years and I think it's an excellent product... We milked 115 registered Holsteins during the first year we fed AgMaster-treated silage, and we saw a definite increase in milk production as a result of increased consumption... I sure would recommend AgMaster to other farmers because it gives me good quality feed, it's easy to handle, and the frozen shipping/ liquid application method really makes sense."

Financial Analysis From A Lender's Perspective

Editor's Note: This is the fourth of a seven part series to explain how Farm Credit analyzes farm and ranch businesses. A different aspect of financial analysis is addressed in each issue.

Cash flow planning — helping you stay in control

As 1992 shapes up to be a tough economic year for many farmers and ranchers, it's more important than ever to maintain timely financial control of your business. One helpful tool to accomplish this task is a cash flow statement.

Unlike an income statement or balance sheet — which provides information on profitability or solvency on an annual basis — a monthly cash flow statement allows you and your lender a means to assess the cash position of your business and understand your true borrowing needs within a more precise time frame.

What is a cash flow statement?

A cash flow statement is simply a summary of all cash sources such as cash receipts; capital sales; non-farm income; new borrowings; all cash outlays, including interest paid; capital purchases; family withdrawals; and principal payments.

In addition, the following should be monitored monthly for their cash flow impact:

- seasonal planting and harvest requirements;
- inventory buildup and subsequent seasonal sales;
- accounts receivable;
- favorable selling terms;
- unusual purchasing conditions;
- purchase discounts;
- real estate or income tax; and
- capital expenditures.

Monitoring these areas can help you chart when you receive income, when you pay expenses, and when you need money — consequently allowing you to determine whether you need to borrow or reschedule payments.

What should a cash flow statement include?

There are many formats for a cash flow statement, but a recommended version shows four columns: projected monthly, actual monthly, projected year-to-date, and actual year-to-date. In addition, columns for percentage deviation between projected and actual monthly and year-to-date figures can be useful in putting absolute dollar-value differences into relative terms (i.e., 25 percent can be the difference between $10,000 projected and $12,500 actual, or between $500 projected and $625 actual).

It's important to project and analyze monthly cash flow so that you may capitalize on opportunities or make adjustments should a trouble situation arise. Yet, it's also necessary to compare year-to-date information to keep isolated, abnormal deviations in perspective as well as relate subsequent years' performances.

How does cash flow planning help lenders?

A cash flow statement helps you and your lender establish loans and repayment plans that best fit your business cycle by pointing out the fluctuations and resulting cash requirements. In addition, this kind of planning shows lenders that you have goals, a strategic direction, and a sound plan for repayment of debts and other commitments. A cash flow statement is a business tool for making intelligent decisions about the direction your operation will take. Without this type of information, both producers and lenders can only speculate about future business needs. ❖

*Adapted from

Adding a Cash Flow Statement to the Tools of your Trade,' Bill Lipinski, Financial Partner, Spring 1992

Cash Flow Planning Keeps People out of Trouble," Jonas B Kauffman III, Hoard's Dairyman

Next we will look at analyzing loan repayments.

USDA Releases Pesticide Rule

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — USDA has released its final rule on pesticide recordkeeping requirements which went into effect on May 1.

The Pennsylvania Pesticide Control Act of 1973, which is administered by the Pennsylvania Dept. of Agriculture (PDA), already requires pesticide record keeping for private and commercial applicators.

PDA regulations for private applicators require that the following data msut be recorded for restricted use pesticides: date of application, crop to which applied, field of application, total amount of pesticide used, name and ID number of certified applicator, pesticide used (brand name and formulation), application rate, address of application site and time application completed (when labeled with a re-entry time).

PDA regulations for commercial applicators require that the following pesticide record data elements for all pesticide applications: date of application, total amount of pesticide used, name and ID number of certified applicator, pesticide used (brand name and formulation), application rate, address of application site and time application completed when labeled with a re-entry time).

Another requirement in the USDA regulation is for commercial applicators to provide a copy of the pesticide record to the customer within 30 days of an RUP application. PDA intends to revise its regulations to include this in the future. However, the PDA requirements will not pertain to all RUP applications, only to those applications made in the production of an agricultural commodity.

Penn State Cooperative Extension will be offering pesticide recordkeeping forms to all private applicators that request them. These forms are 8½ x 11 sheets that can easily be stored in your filing cabinet. Please call your local extension office for more information.

Maryland Ag College Honors Students

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Tracy L. Hearne of Appleton was named outstanding senior in the College of Agriculture and William P. (Pete) Ramsey of Camp Hill, Pa. received accolades as outstanding second-year applied ag student at the recent annual Ag Alumni banquet held in Columbia.

Dr. Paul H. Mazzocchi, acting dean for the College of Agriculture, received a surprise honor recently as the University of Maryland faculty member to whom the 1993 Student Ag Day program at College Park was dedicated.

Young Poultry Need Health Protection

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Springtime is flu season for all sorts of poultry youngsters, including chicks, poults, ducklings, goslings, and keets (baby guinea fowl). Like newborns of almost any species, poultry peeps have not been exposed to a wide range of viruses and other disease-causing organisms.

So they have not had opportunity to build up antibodies that permit resistance to maladies like avian influenza — a disease that can prove fatal to poultry but is not transmissable to humans.

Even low-level infections to which older birds are immune can cause problems for poultry youngsters, according to Edward T. Mallinson, poultry veterinarian for the Cooperative Extension Service, Maryland Institute for Agriculture and Natural Resources. Mallinson is a faculty member at the College Park campus of the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine.

Mallinson notes that the big avian influenza outbreak during the winter of 1983-1984 in Pennsylvania actually got started in the spring of 1983, when the disease was thought to be active in young waterfowl and/or seabirds.

There also was an avian influenza scare for the poultry industry in the Mid-Atlantic area this past winter. And even though no cases were confirmed in commercial poultry flocks, Mallinson believes that a reservoir of H5N2 virus infection exists, especially in the network of small flocks and live poultry auction markets throughout the Northeast. This emphasizes the continuing need for vigilant attention to biosecurity measures.

Wild waterfowl hatchlings have been known to infect range-reared domestic turkey flocks with the avian influenza virus, and they could infect other types of poultry allowed to run free. So poultry producers are advised to check hiding places for wild waterfowl nests. These hiding places could be under bushes near farm dwellings and other buildings, including poultry houses.

Other sources of infection include:

- Free-ranging poultry wandering to neighboring farms. Such birds might also be killed by predators and their carcasses dragged to someone else's property.
- Contact with the live auction market network.

Most large commercial poultry flocks are kept in confinement these days, largely as a health measure. And Mallinson emphasizes that confinement also can help prevent the spread of disease among small flocks.

A four-page leaflet, "Homemade Comfort Cages for Small Poultry Flocks" (FS 429), is available free from offices of the cooperative extension service throughout Maryland and Delaware. Some feed stores in the Delmarva area also have it available.

Other biosecurity measures include:

- Keep various poultry species separate. Guinea fowl, for instance, may be more susceptible to certain strains of avian influenza than are chickens. Don't take chances with a menagerie, which can favor development of new, potentially dangerous virus mutations.
- Purchase healthy chicks from a reputable source. The "1993 Small Flock Source List" is available free from county extension offices in Maryland and the Delmarva area.

Charles J. Wabeck, extension poultry specialist at the Princess Anne facility of the Lower Eastern Shore Research and Education Center, notes that hatcheries in the "Small Flock Source List" are those that meet rigid criteria established by the National Poultry Improvement Plan of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Wabeck agrees that buying chicks from approved hatcheries will not guarantee disease-free flocks. But the potential for poultry disease problems is greatly reduced.

Both Wabeck and Mallinson admonish small flock owners that this is no time to be complacent about avian influenza and other serious poultry diseases, despite recent easing of restrictions on poultry shows and live poultry auction markets.

"Caution is still, and always will be, the watchword for poultry health," Mallinson said.

NC+ Customers Benefit From Research

LINCOLN, Neb. — While temperatures dip and blustery Midwest wintertime winds roar across the plains, NC+ Hybrids researchers are in the topics tending to NC+ corn and grain sorghum research plots.

But it's no vacation.

The researchers' work is geared to providing NC+ customers with new hybrids faster, according to NC+ Corn Research Division Manager Lonnie Hester.

"Our winter corn research program cuts the number of years it takes to develop a hybrid by about one third," Hester said. "We're benefitting our customers by using the winter programs to speed up hybrid development."

Along with accelerated hybrid development, the winter research programs allow NC+ researchers to cross and evaluate thousands of new experimental hybrids, create new genetic material and monitor quality control. It also lets researchers create breeding materials that are difficult to raise in a Midwestern summer and allows for off-season seed increases.

This past winter's NC+ corn research program compensated for test pilots hailed out last summer, according to Duane Potrzeba, NC+ corn breeder. The program is held on the Hawaiian island of Molokai.

"We had about 35 percent more work to do this past winter due to the lost material," Potrzeba said. "But we ended up even better than we had anticipated. We're fortunate that we can keep the flow of research going that well."

Five NC+ researchers and technicians develop about 1,400 hybrids and put 100 hybrids through advanced testing on about four acres. A service company plants the seed during the middle of November and handles any disease, insect or weed problems.

Potrzeba said the program's goal is to advance hybrids quickly.

"We're not trying to adapt hybrids to a tropical environment," he said. "The main reason we do it is so we can make up seed in the winter and test it in the summer."

NC+ Hybrids has the largest sorghum winter research program of any commercial seed company, according to Jim Osborne, NC+ sorghum research manager. The program uses 29 leased acres in Puerto Rico and has access to acreage in Puerto Vallarta, Mexico.

The recent addition of the Puerto Vallarta testing site increases NC+'s winter sorghum research program by about 40 percent.

"That increase shows the intensity of our sorghum program and the commitment that NC+ has made to the development of better sorghum hybrids," Osborne said. "We intend to be the U.S. industry leader."

NC+ has been using the Puerto Rico site since 1971. The company takes four full-time employees to the island to handle pollination and harvest. In addition, about 10 local people are hired.

The sprinkler-irrigated sorghum is planted in late November. Pollinating starts in early January and the sorghum is harvested in early to mid-March. After harvest, the sorghum is threshed, cleaned, packaged and sent back to Colwich, Kan. and Hastings, Neb. for spring planting trials.

Osborne said he prefers to do winter sorghum research in Puerto Rico because of the quick growing season.

"When we work in Puerto Rico we harvest the plots two to three weeks earlier than other places," he said.

Million-Gallon Milestone

WAYNE, N.J. — American Cyanamid Company and some of its key AgriCenter™ dealers celebrated the one millionth-gallon of Cyanamid product sold in the Mid-South region in System 110™ mini-bulk containers, it was announced by the company here.

This milestone represents the elimination of the need for more than 400,000 2.5-gallon containers, thus providing a significant benefit to the environment.

Cyanamid developed the System 110 mini-bulk container to better address the needs of the growers and the environment. The system 110 holds 110 gallons of liquid herbicide and can be returned for refilling. These replace the 2.5-gallon containers, which cannot be refilled, and therefore need to be disposed of or recycled.

Cyanamid herbicides available in the System 110 mini-bulk include PROWL®, SQUADRON®, TRI-4®, and TRISCEPT®.

Various dealerships, grain companies, and trade media attended the event, marked by a series of presentations on Cyanamid's bulk packaging and environmental programs.

ADC Meets Farmers' Needs

More Than $129 Million in Extra Payments

"At Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, our mission is to maximize returns to members. In the past six years, we returned more than $129 million to members in equity payments, over-order premiums and quality bonuses. That's an average of $36,600 per member. And these extra dollars are continuing at the rate of $1.7 million a month.

Robert B. McSparran
President

"When non-members ask me why they should belong to Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, I am happy to report that we are financially healthy, strong in membership and growing in sales. ADC is the region's largest and most fiscally-sound cooperative, with a guaranteed market and outstanding benefits.

"More dairy farmers joined us last year than at any time in the past decade. If you are not an ADC shipper and are worried about your own milk market, then you should talk to the cooperative that is facing the future with confidence."

Agricenter® Dealers Tour Facility

WAYNE, N.J. — Fifteen AgriCenter™ dealers and their guests visited American Cyanamid Company's Princeton, N.J., agricultural research division, it was announced by the company here.

The tour highlighted the company's research efforts in insecticide discovery, herbicide and plant biotechnology, and chemical formulations.

During the tour, the visitors saw how the products they use were discovered and developed. They also observed how Cyanamid is working to develop new products.

Cyanamid's Princeton facility is the site where the discovery and development of Cyanamid's imidazolinone chemistry, sold as PURSUIT®, ASSERT®, and SCEPTER® herbicides, took place. Since the introduction of the imidazolinones in 1985, pesticide inputs have been reduced nationally by 55 million pounds.

Mark Atwood, vice president of development for Cyanamid's agricultural research division, welcomed the group.

After providing the group with an overview of the company's focus on life-sciences, Atwood discussed agricultural research specifically: "We direct our efforts not just only at improving formulations currently used, but also at discovering and developing technologies that you'll need 10 years down the road."

Following the tour, dealers posed questions on the company's latest research efforts and the future direction of agricultural products and chemistries.

manufactured & erected by
H.B. SMITH CONSTRUCTION CO.*
223 Warner Road, Columbus, NJ 08022

DID YOU KNOW?

H.B. SMITH CONSTRUCTION CO. is one of the few companies in North America that both MANUFACTURES and ERECTS buildings with its own equipment and factory trained technicians? By eliminating the middle man, the customer (that's YOU!) will have CONFIDENCE & PIECE OF MIND knowing that ONE company will guide him (or her!) from the initial planning stages through the completed project!!!

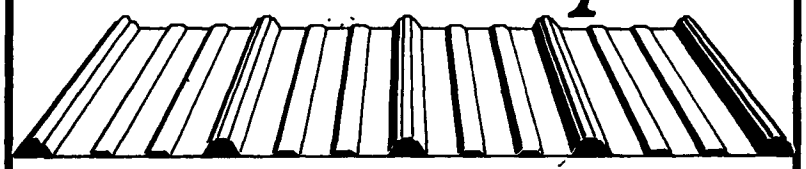
Rural Economy



Cost-efficient Centurydrain™ roofing and siding is on some of the best looking buildings in the country.

Build with Centurydrain roofing and siding and you've built a money-wise structure. Full-hard, high tensile galvanized steel, and an exclusive drain channel for a dry interior give you a building that'll handle years of hard duty and hard weather. Good looking, too. Crisp lines and plenty of bright, long-lasting colors make Wheeling Centurydrain as handsome as it is economical.

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING

A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

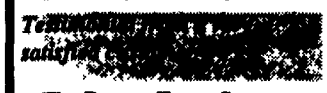
HIGH TENSILE FENCE...THE FARMER'S BEST INVESTMENT



The Beaver Fence Systems are tops! We installed 1 mile of their fence on our farm on Feb. 3, 1993, full size post, 3-1/2 feet deep, excellent braces. We used 5 strand (2 elec.) high tensil, all in place in just 8-1/2 hours! The fence is as straight as an arrow-excellent equipment-very efficient work!

"I am a hard man to convince, but after I saw how Beaver built the fence, I'm ready to put my digging iron away," says David W. Brubaker of Honey Grove Acres, RD1, Box 629 Honey Grove, PA 17035

Have you tried toasted grains?

Consider these advantages over traditional roasting methods.

- ◆ Consistent by-pass proteins and low moisture levels
- ◆ Improved energy density of your rations.
- ◆ Excellent quality control.
- ◆ Exchange programs with feed mills.
- ◆ Economical storage, rolling and grinding available.
- ◆ We also buy corn and soybeans

Planter-Applied Fertilizer? What's New in Fertilizer Technology Is Old Hat For Us!

For over 44 years NA-CHURS Liquid Fertilizer has made a difference at planting time... A difference you can see... Better Yields! ...Outstanding crops!

NA-CHURS Liquid Fertilizer is a N-P-K true solution. Low salt index. Near neutral pH. This allows placement close to the seed for an outstanding planter-applied program.

From start to finish NA-CHURS Distributors are there for you. Soil and tissue testing, agronomic recommendations, and the assurance that you're dealing with the liquid fertilizer leader.

Call your distributor today and find what we've known for years.

EBY AGRI-DUMP BODIES

Rugged...built like a heavy dump truck

Eby Aluminum Agri-Dump Bodies pay off in dependable long-term service. Their all-aluminum construction means:

- Greater payload efficiency
- Maintenance-free service
- Substantially higher resale value.

Eby's time-tested design is available in lengths to 24' for grain bodies and 10½ ' for general purpose dump bodies. A long list of standard features such as tarp rail, built-in steps, aerodynamic uprights and Harsh hoist is complemented by a full range of custom options, including tailgates, Wahpeton tarps and grain chute.

When you select your next grain body or general purpose dump body, consider the value that aluminum offers. It's a worry-free investment in your future.

CHECK OUT THESE FEATURES/BENEFITS

- Up to 40% lighter than steel, for greater payload
- Designed for long life
- Resale value
- Corrosion resistant, never needs painting
- Appearance to complement any truck
- Complete list of popular options, including tailgates, tarps and sides

STANDARD SPECIFICATIONS

- 6" heavy-duty extruded longitudinal sills
- 3" crossmembers on 12" centers on body lengths to 14'; 4" crossmembers on 12" centers on lengths over 14'
- 5"x1¼ " extruded side posts, slanted for improved aerodynamics; 3"x2" heavy wall top rail
- .125" thich side sheets; .188" thick floor sheet (.250" thickness optional)
- Single acting tailgate with center flow chute, hinged top
- Rear ladder rung with step mounted on mud-flap bracket

Haymaker Rotary Mower Slices Hay Cleanly

WARSAW, Ind. — The new Worksaver offset seven foot Haymaker Rotary Mower from Worksaver, Inc., with 71-inch cutting width is equipped with patented, curved "banana" blades that slice the hay instead of chopping it.

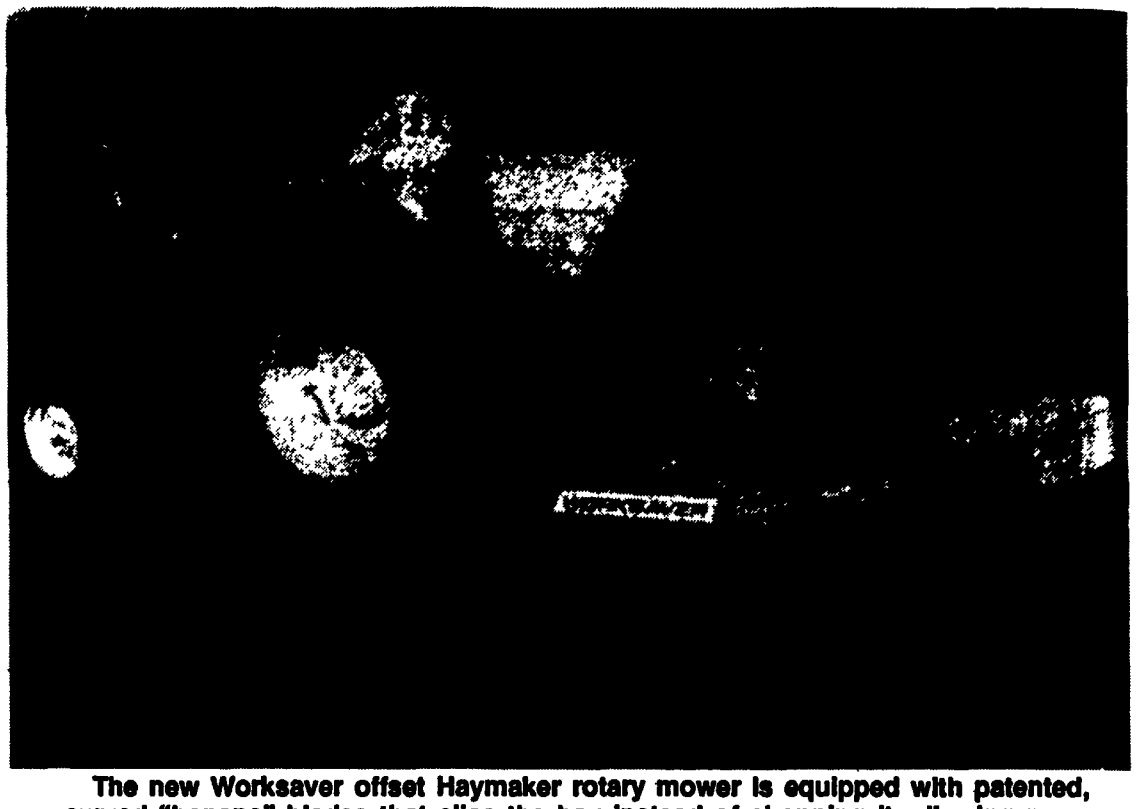
The slicing action allows more leaves to be saved than a chopping action and a higher quality hay to be produced. The clean cut hay stubble also starts regrowing faster.

Operating at 18,707 FPM, the banana blades move the hay to one side so that it is not cut again and gently place it in a fluffy windrow. The blades have a long cutting surface and a natural wear pattern.

Haymaker operates well in a variety of field conditions, including fields with fire ant hills and gopher mounds. A deep mower deck allows the Haymaker to handle heavy hay conditions.

Engineered with few moving parts, the Haymaker reduces downtime and maintenance. Other features include adjustable 1.5-inch to 6.1-inch cutting height, heavy duty steel gearbox with hardened steel gears, and high quality tapered roller bearings and a heavy duty PTO driveline with slip clutch.

For more information, contact Worksaver, Inc., P.O. Box 100, Litchfield, IL 62056-0100, (217) 324-5973.



The new Worksaver offset Haymaker rotary mower is equipped with patented, curved "banana" blades that slice the hay instead of chopping it, allowing more leaves to be saved than a chopping action and a higher quality hay to be produced.

Hereford Association Announces Junior Shows

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — With summer drawing near, seven junior regional shows have been announced by the American Hereford Association. Approximately 600 head are expected to be led out this year by young Hereford breeders competing for a piece of the $23,000 in premiums. These regional shows are organized and planned by sponsoring state junior Hereford associations.

American Junior Hereford Association members seven years of age and older are eligible to compete. Classes for heifers calved from January 1, 1992 and later will be offered. All heifers shown qualify for the AHA Junior AI. AI certificates and semen on proven bulls are available to the junior owners. Also, many of the regions are offering steers, cow/calf pairs, bulls, and group classes.

Summer 1993 junior regional shows include:

- Ohio Junior Field Day and Regional, Warren County Fairgrounds, Lebanon, June 11-13.
- Southeast Regional, Northwest Georgia Experiment Station, Calhoun, June 12-13.
- Northwest Regional, White Hereford Ranch, Burns, Ore., June 12-13.
- Texas Regional, Giddings Fairgrounds, Giddings, June 24-26.
- Far West Regional, Siskiyou Herefords, Etna, Calif., June 25-27.
- Red River Valley Regional, Red River Valley Fair, West Fargo, N.D., July 12-15.
- Indiana Regional, Putnam County Fairgrounds, Greencastle, July 18-19.

Entry information and complete details are available upon request from the American Hereford Association's Youth Department, P.O. Box 014059, Kansas City, MO 64101, (816) 842-3757.

Brillion DEEP TILLS

penetrate the soil as deep as 18 inches to break up plow sole and hardpan.

Moisture from snow and rain is absorbed deep into the soil. Topsoil is left rough and a certain amount of residue remains to combat wind and erosion. Deep Tills are available in widths of 7'6" to 27'6" with optional coulters for cutting residue.

Find out more about the value of deep tilling...stop in and we'll talk.

Brillion SOIL BUILDERS

SOIL BUILDERS are a primary conservation tool that breaks up plow pan to absorb moisture and blends surface residue into the soil with enough residue left on top to control wind and water erosion. 5-13 shank.

Fund Drive Achieves Success

GEORGETOWN, Del. — Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI), the nonprofit trade association working for the continued progress of Delmarva's poultry industry, exceeded its 1993 fund drive goal with cash and pledges totaling $501,727.

That news was announced by Fund Drive Chairman Walter W. Moorhead at the recent Delmarva Poultry Booster Banquet in Salisbury, Md.

Moorhead told the nearly 2,400 DPI supporters, "When you have a quality product or service and a membership such as ours that believes in the organization, success is contagious."

The annual fund drive is DPI's means of raising money to support its many services and programs. DPI's membership consists of close to 4,000 persons and companies, including poultry growers, allied industry suppliers of products and services, Delmarva's eight poultry companies, poultry company employees, and hundreds of nonpoultry businesses on Delmarva which recognize the economic importance of the industry to this area.

The booster banquet is also the occasion at which DPI presents awards to Delmarva's outstanding poultry growers and to two individuals who have made significant contributions to the poultry industry.

The DPI Medal of Achievement is awarded annually to a public servant of an agency or an organization for outstanding achievement and service on behalf of the poultry industry. This year's recipient was Dr. Edwin M. Odor, a poultry diagnostician with the University of Delaware. Odor has contributed significantly to the health of poultry flocks on Delmarva since coming to the area some 12 years ago. In 1981, he joined the University of Delaware as senior scientist, poultry pathology, where his responsibilities include management of the university's diagnostic laboratory. He holds memberships in the American Veterinary Medical Association and the American Association of Avian Pathologists, among other professional associations. He has authored numerous publications and has addressed professional and scientific meetings worldwide. An avid supporter of DPI, Odor has chaired DPI's Poultry Health Committee, served as chairman of the National Meeting on Poultry Health and Condemnations, participated as a speaker on many DPI programs, and serves as an active member of several DPI committees. Over the years, he has provided counsel and advice to DPI on poultry disease issues and has offered valuable services regarding avian influenza, infectious bronchitis, and pullorum.

Delmarva's Distinguished Citizen Award, given in recognition of a person's work on behalf of DPI, the poultry industry, and the community, was presented to Leon J. LaChance of Salisbury. For more than 20 years, LaChance has been actively involved in the poultry industry on Delmarva. As a past president of DPI, a longtime member of the DPI board of directors, a financial advisor for the association, a Fund Drive worker, a member of DPI's Grower Health Insurance Committee, and a frequent chairman of ad hoc committees including DPI's New Directions Committee and the Delmarva Chicken Cooking Contest Review Committee, LaChance is always willing to serve. He is a graduate of the University of Florida. After 10 years with the Ralston Purina Company, he assumed the presidency of Chesapeake Foods in Berlin, Md. Ten years later he joined Allen's Hatchery, Inc. in Seafood, Del., where he serves as corporate vice president of finance. Since 1986, he has represented the poultry industry as a member of the Maryland Agricultural Commission. In addition, he is a member of the Maryland Feed Council, the Eastern Shore Grain and Feed Dealers Association, and sits on the advisory board of the Delmarva Council of Boy Scouts. He is a former director of the Mid-Delmarva YMCA.

Other banquet honorees included 17 poultry growers selected by their companies as outstanding producers for 1993. They were presented silver bowls by DPI President Larry K. Winslow and Grower Committee Chairman Kay R. Richardson. Receiving the awards were, from Delaware; William and Diane Brooks, Milton; Donald and Wendy Cunningham, Greenwood; Marvin J. and Joann Deputy, Greenwood; John C. and Mary L. Hewish, Greenwood; Dale and Evelyn Jestice, Laurel; Howard D. Melson, Dagsboro; Mr. and Mrs. Clifton R. Parker, Frankford; and Charles and Yoshiko Phillips, Laurel. From Maryland: Jerry and Pat Lambertson, Snow Hill; Larry and Brenda Nagel, Federalsburg; Chas Nau, Jr., Kennedyville; Robert and Donna Saathoff, Jr., Easton; Ernest and Daisy Snyder, Newark; Bessie and Pete Truitt, Salisbury; Vic and Susan Brown Workman, Salisbury; Ralph and Emily Wothers, Greensboro. From Virginia: Joe and Peggy Kelly, Parksley.

Ag Organization To Mark 30th Anniversary

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A prominent Washington, D.C.-based international development consulting firm will celebrate the 30th anniversary of its establishment at the group's annual meeting to be held June 7 in Washington, D.C.

During its 30-year history, the nonprofit firm, Agricultural Cooperative Development International (ACDI), has focused primarily on promoting the development of agriculture and cooperative business organizations in developing countries around the world. In total, ACDI has worked in some 70 nations.

In the last two years ACDI has expanded into several new program areas, including trade and investment promotion in Latin America and the Caribbean and broad structural adjustment programs in the emerging democracies of Central and Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union. In both Poland and Russia, for example, ACDI is helping reform and regenerate those nations' farm credit systems.

ACDI's total revenues from all sources have increased significantly in recent years, growing from $4.9 million in 1986 to $12.6 million in 1992.

To further broaden the services it could provide, ACDI earlier this year created a new, allied nonprofit corporation called Agricultural Services, Inc. (ASI). ASI shares many of the same goals that ACDI does, but will differ in the way it funds its activities. ACDI has generated most of its revenues from grants and contracts with the U.S. government's Agency for International Development (AID) or other such "donor organizations." In contrast, ASI will work mainly with private, for-profit companies in the United States and overseas to promote the transfer of advanced agricultural technology and techniques to developing nations and emerging democracies.

ACDI dates its establishment to July 12, 1963. That was when a ACDI predecessor organization, the International Cooperative Development Association (ICDA), was incorporated in Illinois. In 1968, ICDA merged with Farmers Union International Assistance Corporation. FUIAC, like ICDA, had recruited many specialists for its international development projects from U.S. cooperative businesses. The name chosen for the new entity was Agricultural Cooperative Development International.

A special characteristic of ACDI is how it works with U.S. agricultural cooperatives and farmer organizations. ACDI has 47 member co-ops that have provided the organization with funding, and many of them have also contributed their staff and members' time and expertise for ACDI's international development projects.

A number of ACDI member businesses have hosted foreign visitors in the United States for ACDI training and exchange programs, and many of those international guests have stayed with individual U.S. farm families. For other ACDI projects, co-op employees and members have served outside the U.S. as volunteer trainers and mentors for nascent cooperative business. For example, over a three-year period ACDI will recruit 230 U.S. volunteers with expertise in farm credit and agribusiness who will go to the New Independent States of the former Soviet Union and help those nations reform their farm credit systems.

At ACDI's June 7 meeting in Washington, D.C., there will be a business meeting of ACDI's board of directors, followed by gala celebration dinner with invited guests that evening.

More information on ACDI and its various programs is available by contacting the organization at 50 F Street, N.W., Suite 900, Washington, D.C. 2001, (202) 638-4661.

Grangers, Legislators Talk About Issues

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Nearly 400 Grange members recently gathered at the Sheraton Inn, Harrisburg, recently to discuss issues with state legislators.

This annual legislative event is the Pennsylvania State Grange's attempt to bring government closer to its people.

"The banquet is our way of saying, 'thank you,' to the (Pennsylvania) Legislature for the hard work they do," said Brenda Shambaugh, Grange legislative director. "It also gives our members an ideal opportunity to discuss, one-on-one, the problems facing them."

Prior to the evening banquet, members held workshops on various topics. Covered were Gov. Robert Casey's health care proposal, water rights, rural transportation, rural leadership and farm and home safety.

The Pennsylvania State Grange represents approximately 35,000 rural Pennsylvanians. It was the first organized farm movement after the Civil War.

During the legislative banquet, a number of issues were covered, according to Shambaugh.

Among them, were nutrient management and the proposed House Bill 100, which is expected to pass the Democrat-majority ruled Legislature this year. The Grange's position is that statewide nutrient management legislation is needed to protect farmers and consumers.

For years the Grange has been lobbying for a "bottle bill" similar to the ones which have been in effect for about a decade in other Middle and North Eastern states.

Since beverage containers constitute a large and continuous danger to the health and welfare of livestock and rural people, and since littering laws are apparently ineffectual or not enforced, the Grange has sought for a combination recylcing-incentive program which would be compatible to programs in surrounding states.

Specifically, the Grange supports a program which would place a nickle deposit on bottles.

In other areas, the Grange's proposal to increase the attractiveness of rural living to highly trained and otherwise highly paid professionals, would be in the form of an educational loan forgiveness program.

According to Shambaugh, "Many of the state's colleges and universities train some of the best professionals in the country, but often these students are lured out of the state. This bill would give loan forgiveness for agriculture and veterinary students if they farm or practice in Pennsylvania after graduation."

On another environmental issue, deep mine mediation is a hot topic for the Grange. According to Shambaugh, "This compromise on Mine Subsidence Laws, includes a provision that the coal company must replace water and buildings in the event of loss or pollution of the water."

On other issues the Grange:

• Supports the formation of a DER Agricultural Advisory Committee. This DER committee would be comprised of representatives of agriculture whose job it would be to review all proposed DER policies and regulations. Senate Bill 298 would create such a committee. The bill passed the Senate and is now under consideration in the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee.

• Supports seasonal farm labor legislation which would benefit farmers who use migrant workers. (SB 1238)

• Wants to change a proposed water quantity bill, Senate Bill 351, to ensure that local water allocation decisions are made locally. Under the current proposal to ensure adequate water during drought, local authority would not be the case. The Grange seeks creating regional boards to put the plan together at the local level.

Generally, on other issues, Grange officials report that: its insurance committee is looking into the rising cost of health care and what legislative solutions may be possible; it is upset with the consistent lack of, and repeated cutting of adequate state funding for agriculture and agricutlural education; it wants wetlands regulations to take into account historic uses and allow the continuance of those uses; it wants a reform of local tax law so that a more equitable system of taxing can be used.

Lamb Sale Strong At Yeo Farms

LOWELLVILLE, Ohio — 4-H competitors from Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Maryland participated in Yeo Farms', second Livestock Judging Contest held in conjunction with Yeo Farms' annual Club Lamb Sale, April 24. Both events took place at the farm in Lowellville.

Forty seven young people competed as individuals and as county 4-H club teams. There were three junior teams, for those up to the age of 13, and six senior teams. Each particpant was asked to evaluate eight pens containing four animals. There were twp pens of cattle, two of hogs, and four of sheep.

In the team competition, Mahoning County, Ohio had teams in first place in both divisions. On the junior team were Matt Petrus of New Springfield, Alvin Flick of Canfield, Bryan Yosay of Canfield, and Shane Linden of Canfield. On the senior team were John La Rocca of Poland, Travis Moser of Berlin Center, Sherri Sanders of Youngstown, and Andrea Musser of New Middletown.

Second place in the junior division went to Portage County, Ohio, with a team of Justin Pelletier and Brenda Campbell both of Diamond, and David and Cassie Rankin of Ravenna. Second place in the senior division was won by Mercer, Pa. with a team of Amy Lazar of Clarks Mills, Amber Amon of Stoneboro, and Molly and Lisa Friedman of Fredonia.

Trumbull County, Ohio teams won third place in both the junior and senior divisions. On the junior team were Leah Scharville of Burghill, Rudy Solomon of Lordstown, and Josh Boorn and Shaun Palette, both of Bristolville. On the senior team were Todd Pessek and Larry Criddle of Bristolville, and Mike and Jake Biery of Southington.

In the individual competition, David Rankin of Ravenna, Ohio won the blue ribbon in the junior division. Second place went to Matt Petrus of New Springfield, Ohio. Bryan Yosay of Canfield, Ohio won third place.

In the senior division, John LaRocca of Poland, Ohio won first place in the individual competition. Second place went to Andrea Musser, of New Middletown, Ohio. Third place went to Travis Moser of Berlin Center, Ohio.

Club Lamb Sale

At the Yeo Farms Club Lamb Sale that afternoon, 34 club lambs were sold at an average price of $127, up more than 18 percent from the previous year.

Livestock Notes

PREVENTION AND TREATMENT OF INFECTIOUS CALF SCOURS

Frank E. Woodson, Guest Author, West Virginia University, In Cooperation with Extension Service, USDA

Preventive measures

1. Place cows in small groups (10 to 25) well before calving begins. Avoid moving cows between groups and using the same area for different groups. Avoid concentration of numbers and overcrowding.

2. Calve outside on protected, well-drained, clean sod, if available. Barns and small crowded lots are the most likely places for heavy contamination with scour organisms.

3. If you must use a barn, keep the area clean and dry.

4. Assist calf to nurse, or provide with colostrum as soon after birth as possible (within 15 minutes of birth is best). A calf is born with little specific immunity. Most of its protection is derived from antibodies in colostrum, but calves rapidly lose the ability to absorb antibodies. Keep a supply of frozen colostrum for emergency use when calf is too weak to nurse, or when the mother has no milk or refuses to allow nursing.

5. Treat the navel and cord stump by dipping in strong iodine solution or tincture of iodine as soon after birth as possible. Other commercial products may be as good as iodine, but none are better or cheaper. Aerosols and sprays do a very poor job of disinfecting the navel.

6. If hand feeding is necessary, do not overfeed calves. A calf's total daily milk requirement is 10 percent of its weight (1 pint per 10 pounds). Divide this amount among at least two to three feedings the first day of life.

7. Avoid using antibiotics routinely at birth to prevent scours, unless it is a specific antibiotic known to be effective against a specific organism and prescribed for such use by a veterinarian.

8. Observe calves frequently and closely for signs of scours. A full udder is often an early sign of a sick calf. Start full course of treatment immediately. Identify calf for retreatment.

9. With multiple cow-calf groups, always feed and handle group(s) with scours last to prevent carrying disease to healthy groups.

10. Vaccinate your cow herd for IBR and BVD, and maintain vaccination with replacement heifers.

11. Use reo-virus vaccine routinely if this type scours is known to be present.

Treatment

To minimize losses both from death and slowed weight gain, it is imperative that proper treatment be administered immediately when a calf is first noticed scouring. Two types of scours occur: very sudden, severe scours in newborn calves during their first week of life, and a less severe form in older calves. The approach to treating these types differs.

Scours in newborn calves is extremely watery, resulting in severe dehydration and body mineral loss within 24 hours of onset. Affected calves become very dull, often refuse to or cannot get up, and generally refuse to nurse even when assisted. Many of these calves will die within 12 to 36 hours without treatment. It is likely that much of this type scours is caused by the "reo" type virus for which an effective vaccine is available. If this type of scours occurs in your herd, it is highly recommended that you begin vaccinating calves at birth. Contact a practicing veterinarian to get this vaccine. A combination vaccine against both the reo and corona viruses has also been developed.

Treatment of newborn calves with scours can markedly reduce deaths. The objectives of treatment are to stop the scouring by interrupting the infection, to replace the electrolytes lost, and to promote healing of the intestine. Treatment consists of selectively using some or all of the following, as needed:

1. Oral antibiotic to prevent and control secondary bacterial infection.

2. Oral administration of specific drugs to slow the gut and reduce diarrhea to minimize fluid and mineral loss.

3. Oral administration of fluids and minerals to correct dehydration and mineral imbalance (Acidosis).

4. Withholding milk (but not fluids) for 24 to 36 hours to rest the gut and allow healing of damaged tissue to begin. Such starvation must be done early in the course of scours and accompanied by administration of fluids and minerals, either orally or otherwise.

5. Administration of minerals and fluids intravenously, under the skin or into the body cavity, to replace these materials lost through scouring.

6. Administration of nutrients — sugar, protein, vitamins and minerals — intravenously, under the skin, or into the body cavity to maintain the calf's strength, aid its ability to overcome the virus infection, and repair the gut.

7. Supplying heat to maintain body temperature between 100.5°F and 102°F.

8. Systemic antibiotic to help control blood infections.

All these drugs and nutritional supplements are locally available, although some are available only from veterinarians. The process of administration requires judgment and experience, but it can be done by producers if adequate explanation, demonstration, and guidance are provided by a veterinarian. Local veterinary practitioners have already successfully assisted many producers. Give it a try. It's worth it. But remember to get help immediately when scours first appear.

Although scours in older calves (one week of age and older) is usually less severe, it still requires immediate treatment with oral antibiotics to minimize loss. There are several oral antibiotic preparations locally available and many more from practicing veterinarians. No one preparation is best in all cases or in all herds. The best approach is to use the product which has worked best for you in the past. If it fails to produce good results this year, change to another antibiotic (preferably in consultation with a veterinarian to select the most effective product).

Far too many calves are treated for too short a time. The scours may seem to improve with only one treatment, only to recur a few days later. Or it doesn't recur but the calf continues to do poorly. A good rule of thumb is to continue treatment for one to two days after the episode has cleared up.

If the scours does not improve markedly within 48 to 72 hours of treatment, change to another antibiotic product immediately. A drug to slow the gut would be strongly indicated at this point. Such drugs are available only through veterinarians, and all local practitioners have them.

If the calf becomes dehydrated, dull, lies around, and shows poor appetite after a day or two of scouring, then nutritional and replacement treatment as outlined for scours in the newborn calf is strongly indicated.

RECOMMENDED ELECTROLYTE MIXES FOR FLUID THERAPY

Mixes that can be made from household ingredients

Formula #1 (to be given orally)
8 Tbsp. White corn syrup (dextrose)
2 tsp. Salt (sodium chloride)
1 tsp. Baking soda (sodium bicarbonate)
1 gal. Warm water

➤ Feed 2½ pints to a 90 lb. calf four times/day (total of 1 1/4 gal).

Formula #2 (to be given orally)
1 can Condensed beef consomme
3 cans warm water
1 Tbsp Baking soda

➤ Feed twice a day.

Mixes that can be made from a drugstore's ingredients

Formula #3 (to be given orally)
4 oz. Sodium chloride
5 oz. Potassium chloride
5½ oz. Sodium bicarbonate
4½ oz. Potassium monobasic phosphate

Add 1 oz. of above mix plus ½ lb. of dextrose to 1 gal warm water.
➤ Feed 2-3 qts of this solution four times/day (total of 2-3 gal).

Formula #4 (to be given either orally or intravenously)
1 Tbsp. Sodium bicarbonate
100 cc 50% dextrose solution
900 cc Warm water

MILK CHECK

THOMAS JURCHAK
Dairy Specialist
Lackawanna County

(Editor's Note: This was written based on data available as of April 15, 1993. Last week's article was run in error. We appologize for the inconvenience.)

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — In the last month cheese prices have gone into orbit reaching a height unheard of in such a short time and from all indications may set a new record in acceleration at blast off.

Taking nearly everyone by surprise, block and barrel prices advanced 19 cents a pound in the last month and 23 cents since Feb. 26 when they started this flight and are still headed for higher altitudes.

In last month's report there was caution from me about "too much, too soon" when prices went up 4 cents in two weeks. Since then it has been weekly increases of 3, 4 and 5 cents but the week before Easter really shook the market.

On Thursday barrel prices jumped 5 cents for the third consecutive week but block price zoomed 7 cents for a total of over 15 cents to match the barrel price. Even the Easter holiday didn't slow the pace with milk diverted from fluid to processing.

Cheese production was down in most states as well as the upper Mid West but it was the demand pull by dealers anxious to rebuild their inventories that did the trick. Only the demand was ahead of the supply and prices rose.

Sooner And Faster

It isn't unusual for cheese prices to rise in the spring — in fact it's expected — but this time it happened sooner and faster.

Just last year cheese prices went from a low of $1.15 in early March to a high of $1.39 in July for an increase of 23 cents. But that took 20 weeks before they started down again and bottomed out in January of this year.

Now we're looking at an increase of 23 cents again but starting in February and doing it in six weeks with more increases expected before summer.

The question is — how much higher can they go? Right now in mid April they are up to last year's high of $1.38 in July and 11 cents higher than in April last year. This is what makes this year unusual.

We're almost up to record highs and it's only April. Even nonfat powder prices have strengthened because of a demand for powder to improve cheese yields as milk solids drop.

Of course the key to all this is the milk production expected this spring and summer.

It would appear that dealer inventories have been seriously depleted and most are not willing to gamble on getting more milk this summer so they're paying now to get the cheese supplies they need.

If there's another reason, I haven't heard.

Farm Price

The best news of course is what this does to farm prices. The Minnesota - Wisconsin Price Series for March has already gone up 28 cents to $11.02 just on the strength of cheese price increases in early March.

When you add the 19-cent increase in cheese prices in April you should see another dollar or more added to the M-W by May 5 and more again on June 5.

So far, butter and powder prices have been steady and not hurt the M-W price but if we can get some exports started they may even add support to the M-W price. In any case, it's about as volatile as dairy market prices can get so hang on and see how high this ride can take you.

USDA Official to Speak At College

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Dr. K. Jane Coulter, deputy administrator of the Cooperative State Research Service in the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), will address graduates of Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences during the college's spring commencement.

The ceremonies will take place May 15 at 9 a.m. in Eisenhower Auditorium.

Coulter is the key policy official responsible for managing USDA's role as the lead federal agency for higher education in the food and agricultural sciences.

She serves on numerous committees and boards, including the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy's Committee on Education and Human Resources, the Federal Interagency Committee on Education, the Interdepartmental Minority Health Sciences Career Coordinating Committee, the U.S. Department of Education's Mathematics and Science Review Board, and NASA's Space Grants Program Review Board.

Coulter is widely credited for the launch of several new higher education competitive grants programs and has been instrumental in the development of the first national computerized online information system providing data on U.S. higher education in the food and agricultural sciences.

Coulter has won numerous awards, including the highest honor given by USDA, the Distinguished Service Award.

NUTRITIONAL ANESTRUS IN GILTS

Keith A. Bryan

Several scientists have proposed that a critical level of body fat in sows and gilts is needed to maintain normal reproductive function.

Some researchers believe that attainment of a critical level of body fat is required for the onset of puberty in gilts and normal estrous cyclicity. Furthermore, delayed return to estrus of sows postweaning is believed to result from depletion of body fat reserves during lactation. Thus, genotype and nutrition play vital roles in reproduction in swine.

Researchers at the University of Minnesota further examined the relationships among nutrition, body composition, and reproductive cyclicity in gilts that had experienced at least three or more estrous cycles. The gilts were fed normal or restricted (7.5 percent, 15 percent, 22.5 percent or 30 percent of normal) levels of energy from 276 days of age until they failed to show normal estrous cycles.

Although cycles of all of the gilts on the energy-restricted diets were interupted, cycles of gilts that were more severely restricted tended to cease sooner. Gilts were slaughtered approximately seven days after failure to show standing heat, and quantity of body protein and fat were then determined. For the energy-restricted gilts, there was a wide range for body protein and body fat at which the gilts became acyclic. Thus, the researchers concluded that estrous activity is not controlled by critical levels of body fat reserves.

In a parallel experiment, the same group of investigators determined that length of the estrous cycle was increased by about one day in severely restricted gilts compared with control gilts, but length of the estrous cycle was not altered significantly as gilts approached anestrus. The results of this study indicate that severe energy restriction can lead to longer estrous cycles and anestrus in gilts, but anestrus occurs over a wide range of body composition.

LANDSCAPERS: SAVE THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS WITH THIS NEW

Shaker Buddy Mixer™

A breakthrough for professional landscapers, greens keepers, nursery owners, home builders — anyone who needs an economical way to mix or separate materials.

Screening just became a one-man job — with the all-new Shaker Buddy Mixer. Tow it at normal highway speeds with a 3/4 ton pickup. Set up in less than two minutes by simply pressing its hydraulic lever. Change screens in less than 10 minutes with a socket wrench. And put it to work: sizing stone, screening loam, mixing soils, separating wood chips, even sizing coal. With the Shaker Buddy Mixer, it's all a one-man operation.

Made in the USA from heavy plate steel, The Shaker Buddy Mixer is designed for rugged, long-lasting performance on any job site. Put the Shaker Buddy to work for you. It screens as effectively as it cuts your costs.

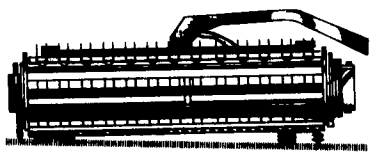
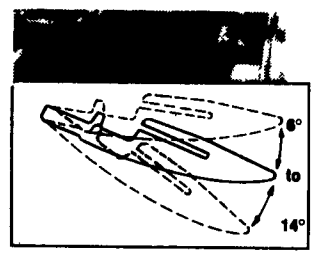
GEHL Swing Frame Mower Conditioners

1 ONLY - 12' Gehl Swing Frame In Stock At Old Price With 2 Year Warranty, Model 2240



Three point flotation support provides both lateral and vertical flotation. The header is carried on two outside arms and pivots on a center link for clean cutting in uneven fields. This faster reacting system provides outstanding cutterbar protection from rocks and other field obstructions. It's easily adjustable for varying field conditions.



Easily adjustable guard angle. Depending on field conditions you may want to adjust the angle on the cutterbar. By simply adjusting the centerlink (top photo), you have infinite variation from 6 to 14 degrees.

When Buying A NEW COMBINE

DON'T OVERLOOK THE CASE IH AXIAL FLOW ADVANTAGE

the single rotor

With the SINGLE AXIAL FLOW ROTOR you get:

1) INCREASED PRODUCTION by the ability to start combining earlier in the day, and to keep combining later into the night.
2) BETTER GRAIN QUALITY because the ROTOR'S threshing action is much gentler than a conventional combine's cylinder.
3) LESS MAINTENANCE because there is NO strawwalker system to repair.

DON'T OVERLOOK THE HOOBER SERVICE ADVANTAGE

HOOBER'S experienced service people

With HOOBER's experienced SERVICE PEOPLE you get:

1) Fulltime Combine mechanics who work on combines year round, not just when you have a problem.
2) PEOPLE WHO CARE about your problems and want to fix them fast. so that you can get back to the field.
3) RECONDITIONED COMPONENTS which are not for sale, but are strictly reserved for use by the SERVICE DEPARTMENT to insert in customers machines who have major component failures.

HOW YOU CAN GET UP TO 15% MORE IN THE BAG WITH THE KELLY RYAN SELF-CLEANING CENTERLINE BAGGER

- Pack more punch from the center with less h.p. for tighter and more uniform bags of feed
- 8' & 9' diameters 2 wh standard (up to 12' by special order)
- ½" cables, 150' and 200'
- No hydraulics. Rust-free, chrome disc mechanical brake
- Tongue centered for close bag spacing and road travel
- Oil bath gearbox & drive chain
- #160 roller chain main rotor drive
- Gearbox 540 or 1000 rpm PTO
- Safety-first, V-belt driven conveyor for side feeding
- Design permits bagging nearly twice as fast as other models
- Adapts quickly for road transport
- Frontload dump hopper available
- 6' Rotor 3-4' above ground
- Many more desirable features

Ford "30 Series" Model 5030
4 Cy - 62 HP Tractor

North America's leading tractor line offers you more:
- Hydrostatic steering. Easier handling, durable, responsive.
- Improved front axles. Both two-and four-wheel drive axles; stronger, durable.
- Transmission. Choose the 8x2 or the 8x8 shuttle... the perfect loader transmission, or the deluxe 16x8 Dual Power.
- Also Choose From: "3230"—32 PTO horsepower
  "3430"—38 PTO horsepower
  "3930"—45 PTO horsepower
  "4630"—55 PTO horsepower

Come in for the full details on the Ford "30 Series" tractors

NEW! Exclusive design produces best-ever bales

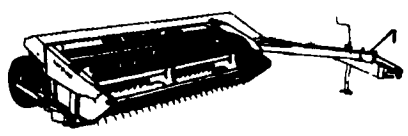
The unique New Holland Models 650 and 660 Roll-Belt™ round balers make the best quality bales ever. Tight bales—dense bales. Good-looking, square-shouldered bales that hold up to the weather. The patented Roll-Belt design means fast, sure core formation, even in the toughest crops. The adjustable hydraulic belt-tensioning system puts maximum bale density control at your fingertips. And, you can choose from three optional automatic tying mechanisms for the smoothest package ever.

The ultimate 9-foot mower-conditioner


Stop by and take a look at the best nine-foot mower-conditioner on the market — the Model 492 Haybine® mower-conditioner You get only the best:

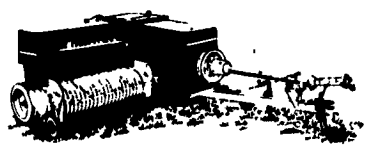
Close, even cutting from the lightweight header that floats over ground contours.

Thorough but gentle conditioning from chevron-design inter meshing rubber rolls.

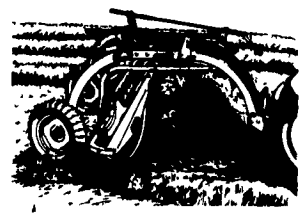
No plugging thanks to the torsion bar roll pressure system.

Swath to windrow in seconds without tools.

Stop by and take a look! You deserve the ultimate nine-foot mower-conditioner.

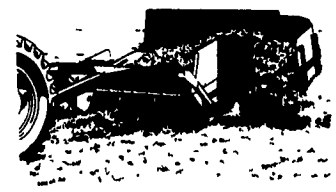
Best-in-class performance, capacity


The "570" New Holland square baler from Ford New Holland brings together performance and reliability, along with improved capacity.

The original Rolabar® rake


Don't settle for second best

Depend on the rugged construction of New Holland Rolabar® rakes. More farmers buy New Holland rakes than all other brands combined because they're rugged, reliable and pick up more of your valuable hay. Don't buy an imitation. See us for an original.

Save hay Save money


The New Holland Model 166 windrow inverter can save your hay crop by turning it over to dry, without losing valuable leaves. Get your hay out of the field sooner, before it rains. Or, if it's been rained on, dry it quickly and gently. Make your hay more valuable with the "166".

Ted fast... beat the weather
You can beat the weather... and save time and money. The New Holland Model 163 tedder is nearly 18' wide, so you can ted faster and bale sooner. And when you're ready to move, the "163" folds for easy transport...no tools necessary.

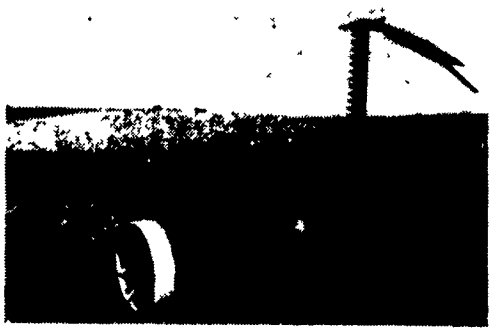
The I & J Cultivator

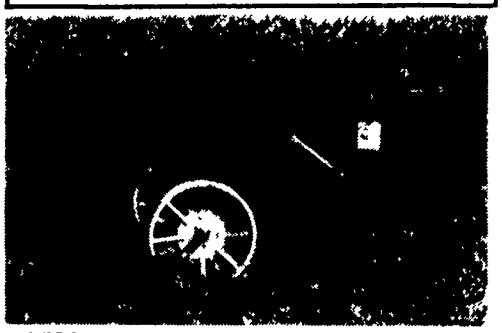
CULTIVATORS: 3 point or horse drawn available in 1-2-3- or 4 rows can be used as a field cultivator with a few attachments. Great for vegetables. We can custom build. Options: rolling shields, disc hillers, liquid side dressers, row tracking system.



MOWERS: 3 point or trailing features: guards & blade, move back and forth cuts like a scissors, virtually no plugging.

2% OFF ALL CULTIVATORS BOUGHT UP TO 5-31-93

RAKES: available in ground drive or PTO steel wheels or rubber tires Features: forms a very fluffy windrow, can also be used as a windrow inverter. Does not rope hay. A real leaf saver.



DEEP TILL SLITTER: Available in 1 or 2 shanks, optional hydraulics.

Corn binders: get your orders in by June 1.

We Also Carry Flex Tine Harrows

SELF PROPELLED FORAGE HARVESTERS FOR HIGHEST CAPACITIES AND UNIVERSAL OPERATION

It's up to you and the available transport systems whether to harvest corn with 4 or 6 rows.

For grass harvesting you need clean and troublefree pickup operation. These are the three working widths you may choose from: 4:30, 3.00 and 2.20 m.

FACT

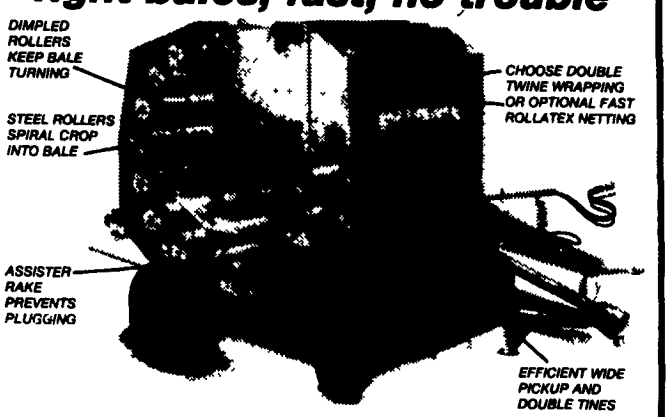
Claas round balers run circles around all others.

In independent test after independent test, Claas fixed chamber balers consistently come out on top in bale density, nutrition and spoilage ratios. Proof that it's the most cost-efficient round baler money can buy. That's why you'll find over 350,000 units in use around the world

So see your Claas dealer about the fixed chamber advantage. And base your round baler purchase on facts, not fiction.

Owners say:

"Tight bales, fast, no trouble"



DIMPLED ROLLERS KEEP BALE TURNING
STEEL ROLLERS SPIRAL CROP INTO BALE
ASSISTER RAKE PREVENTS PLUGGING
CHOOSE DOUBLE TWINE WRAPPING OR OPTIONAL FAST ROLLATEX NETTING

ULTRA-COMMAND™

THERE'S NEVER BEEN A POWERSHIFT LIKE THIS!

- Straight-line shuttle shift lets you move between forward and reverse with a single motion.
- Pulse Shift assures you'll move one gear at a time–with just a tap of the gearshift lever.
- Sequential Shift lets you move through the gears by holding the gearshift lever right or left.
- 18 forward and nine reverse gears let you pick the speed to fit the job.

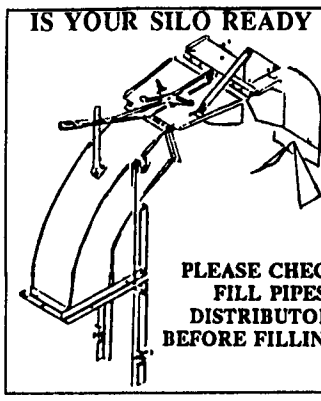
IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH GRASS SILAGE?



PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

CONCRETE REASONS WHY A NEW POURED CONCRETE SILO IS YOUR BEST INVESTMENT...

NO REBUILT SILOS!
NO PREOWNED SILOS!
"ALL NEW FOR YOU!!"

A. Enhancement of cash flow. Improved forage quality results in consistent, and increased milk production.

B. "Safe Silo" Our silos meet or exceed industry standards, reducing/protecting lender liability.

C. Initial Cost. Used or cheap pre-fab silos may have a lower initial cost, but based upon useful life, the new poured concrete silo will have a lower annual cost: due to longer life and lower maintenance costs.

D. Residual Value. Our new, poured concrete silos are built for "generations of use", and enhance the future value of the farm.

E. Storage Losses Reduced. Poured concrete silos consistently out-perform all other methods of storing and preserving the total digestible nutrients in forage crops.

F. Protecting Forage Quality. Oxygen and heat cause the most damage to stored silage and haylage. Our poured concrete silos are the very best system to PROTECT YOUR FORAGE QUALITY... "NOBODY PROTECTS FORAGE QUALITY LIKE WE DO...NOBODY"

"WAFFLE SLAT"®

fiberdome SILO CHUTE

made with fiberglass, the material of the future — and proven in the past —

The Fiberdome chute is designed and engineered to be installed on most types of silos. Its structure allows it to withstand the toughest beating the weather elements or silo unloading systems can possibly dish out.

The chute is constructed in full 7½' sections to minimize the number of joints. Connecting joints have a 2½" tongue and groove design to keep feed in and water out. The large ribbed construction adds stability and strength.

Fiberglass is durable, corrosion-proof, attractive and translucent, allowing sunlight to pass through. Sunlight quickly dries interior moisture in the chute. The hard gleaming gelcote surface will remain for many years.

New Ultimate EXT.™ The Breakthrough Diet That Helps Her Add Several Pounds A Day.

When it comes to weight control and eating, dairy cows aren't like most people. A successful cow's diet should produce more pounds, not less, and her body weight needs to stay up after freshening.

Our new dairy feed works that way: introducing Ultimate EXT™ from Purina® Ultimate EXT helps cows produce more milk: an average of five more pounds a day in over 14,000 cows. By helping cows reduce body weight loss after calving, Ultimate EXT also improves body condition which can enhance breeding efficiency.

To put more weight on your bottom line, ask us about new Ultimate EXT. It turns good cows into great ones.
